School Officials, Clergy Disappointed, Surprised At Court Prayer Ruling

By STEVE KAVANAGH

School officials and clergy here in Quincy expressed surprise and disappointment at last week's U.S. Supreme Court ruling that prayer at public schools graduation ceremonies violates the U.S. Constitution's separation of church and state doctrine.

"I'm disappointed by the decision," said School Committee member Dan Raymond. "The graduation ceremonies in Quincy have been a tradition with dignity. This effects the graduation exercises and not in a positive way...I think there will be a void in the ceremonies."

"I was surprised," said Committee member Peggy King. "I don't know where we'll go from here... I'll talk to some people to see if we can change the law."

"I thought the Justices would carve out an exception to allow limited prayers at graduation," Committee member Steve Durkin said.

Durkin said it appears that the Justices "weren't able to see the difference between prayers in school and a public school graduation."

The Court voted 5-4 that prayer by a member of the clergy at a public school graduation violates the First Amendment's stipulation against establishing religion.

The vote upholds a United States District Court decision in 1990 which was the result of a lawsuit by the father of a Providence, R.I., middle school student against the Providence School Board.

"I believe we have to abide by the law at this point... regretfully," said Committee member Frank Santoro.

Durkin defended his vote earlier this year to abide by the lower court ruling prohibiting prayer at graduation.

"People will say it is the law now. But it was the law then (when the School Committee voted on the issue). Nothing has changed," he said.

School Committee member Ron Mariano said he was disappointed also.

"I think the Supreme Court is a little bit out of step with reality. I think

24-Hour Police Blockade

Squantum Off Limits During Tall Ships Visit

By STEVE KAVANAGH

If a police blockade of Squantum, designed to protect the neighborhood during the Tall Ships visit, does not work, residents may take matters into their own hands.

Alicia Gardner of the Squantum Community Association told the City Council Monday that, "People in Squantum are very nervous" about the Tall Ships visit.

Gardner said residents will block the road out to Long Island "if cars stream past the barriers" manned by police.

Beginning Friday, July 10, at midnight, only Squantum residents, their guests, and authorized personnel, will be admitted into Squantum for 24 hours.

Officials are worried that the neighborhood may be inundated with visitors hoping to see the Tall Ships parade Saturday, July 11.

However, the event will not be visible from Quincy, and Long Island, considered to be the best vantage point, will be closed to the public.

Permits will be mailed to Squantum residents to be displayed in their car windshields. Residents can obtain additional permits and permits for guests at the Squantum Fire Station and the Squantum Community Center.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers said he is frustrated that Boston Mayor Ray Flynn has not cooperated with Quincy in an effort to open Long Island to the public for the Tall Ships.

"It's a shame we're being deprived of this fine viewing point," he said. "It could have been a spectacular event."

Ayers said it would not be fair if Boston residents or guests of Flynn are allowed to visit Long Island that day while shutting out Quincy residents and the rest of the public.

"It's outrageous that (Quincy residents) can't get to this prime viewing spot," Councillor-at-Large Patricia Leland said.

Councillor-at-Large Tim Cahill blasted Flynn for not planning properly for the Tall Ships visit even though he knew it was coming for several years.

"This is a slap in the face to the City of Quincy," he said. "We will be paying overtime to our police force and we get no benefit."

Ayers said that private companies and union members have offered to volunteer to clean-up the island and Mayor James Sheets has offered to provide DPW employees and public safety workers.

Tom Koch, executive secretary to Sheets, said that Flynn has assured Sheets that the only persons allowed on Long Island that day will be employees of Long Island Hospital, emergency personnel and members of the media including WCVB-TV which will broadcast the Tall Ships parade from the island.

A City of Boston spokesman said that Long Island will be closed for public safety reasons. Koch said that Flynn has made it clear to Sheets that he does not want anyone on Long Island, whether they arrive by road or by boat.

$30,000 For Emergency Food Shelter Program

Quincy Community Action received $30,000 Monday for its Emergency Food Shelter program.

The City Council approved the grant from the city's UDAG account following a presentation by Rosemary Wahlberg of the QCA.

"We need to provide skills to help people use other programs to keep people from using the Emergency Food Shelter," Wahlberg said.

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson said the program is worthy because it help people who cannot afford weekly food rations.

"It gives a hand up—not a hand out," Kolson said.

License Board In Recess

With the conclusion of its Tuesday meeting, the Quincy License Board has finished its weekly schedule until September.

The board will hold a summer meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 11, and will resume regular business beginning Tuesday, Sept. 1.

its (prayer at graduation) a harmless acknowledgment of God," Mariano said.

Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon was critical of the decision and said it will hurt Quincy's graduation exercises.

"I'm disappointed for a number of reasons. I believe in traditions and the history of traditions. The more you can enhance them and pass them on the healthier climate you have," Creedon said.

"Graduation will lose a bit of solemnity and purpose. And the clergy play key roles in the lives of our students. It's a sad day.

"It's one more knock at the American public schools... By taking away a tradition of values... something that we can pass on," Creedon said.

Durkin and Raymondi, both lawyers, agreed that the close vote indicates that the issue was difficult to interpret.

"It shows that even the upper echelons of the legal community are divided on whether it is a church-and-state issue," Raymondi said.

"None of the prayers I have heard at the graduations have been offensive. I think they are appropriate," Durkin said.

"In Quincy the prayers were not offensive or coercive," Raymondi said.

Durkin said he will ask the School Committee to include a moment of silence at future graduations so that participants and spectators may pray by themselves.

"I think this ruling can be seen as hostile towards religion. It's not just a separation of church and state issue," Committee member Linda Stice said.

"I'm troubled because I think there is a freedom of speech issue here... that a member of the clergy can't speak. But we could invite someone like a David Duke and he could say whatever he wants to," Stice said.

Mariano said he hopes the educational community can move on to other issues which deal directly with the classroom.

"We've spent a lot of time quibbling over this when there are other issues which need attention," he said.

Rabbi Jacob Mann of Temple Beth Israel has been delivering invocations at Quincy graduation ceremonies for more than 45 years.

"I would love to be there (graduation) and give God's blessing to students and parents. God's name should be mentioned anywhere," he said.

But if (prayer at graduation) is against the Constitution then we should abide by the decision. If we try to change the Constitution for our own desires than the Constitution is no good," Rabbi Mann said.

"Congress opens up its sessions with prayers and we have 'In God We Trust' printed on our coins. The ruling is inconsistent in a way," Rabbi Mann said. "I hope the Justices will recycle their decision."

Rev. Alicia Corea of Houghs Neck

Congregational Church was also critical of the decision.

"At the beginning of our nation, people came here for religious freedom... as well as other freedoms," Rev. Corea said. "To take it (prayer) away from those who want to pray seems to me to take away one of our basic freedoms."

"We are a very diverse people," Rev. Corea continued. "If you don't want to listen or agree with what the graduation speakers say, you don't have to."

"Adults don't give kids enough credit. They are afraid that kids are too impressionable. We seem to have this fear... we are afraid of something different," Corea said. "We are a learning society. We have to learn from each other."

Rev. Cornelius Heery of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, has been a fixture at North Quincy High School's graduations for many years.

"I was kind of disappointed in that I hoped what we did this year at North's graduation was what we could do for subsequent classes," Rev. Heery said.

"I hope in time that the decision will be changed. There is always hope," he said.

Rev. Heery said that the Supreme Court decision won't stop him from offering God's blessing to students and their parents.

"We will invite the graduating classes to an ecumenical service a few days before graduation to ask God's blessing for them."

Morton Liquor License Transferred To Osco Drug

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board Tuesday approved the transfer of the all alcoholic beverage license at Morton's Liquor Store to Osco Drug on Granite St.

The license was previously held by Joseph Hennessey, owner of Hennessey's South Braintree News. Hennessey, who owned Morton's, wanted to sell the liquor store to Osco Drug. In turn, Osco wanted to relocate the liquor store inside its drug store.

The License Board had delayed the matter for two weeks because Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey needed the exact square footage of the area which would house the alcohol. Board members had also expressed concerns that the alcohol should be separated from the rest of store so people would be required to exit the store immediately after purchasing alcohol.

Atty. Howard Wayne, who represents Osco, said the area in question would total 4,070 square feet and would be a "totally controlled department on the left hand side of the store" which would insure that customers would not be able to reenter the other parts of the store after doing business in the liquor department.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he investigated a similar Osco's store in Newton and was pleased with what he saw.

"It's a well-run operation," said Gorman. "If this (Quincy) store is run like that, we'll have no problems."

New Air Conditioning System For Adams Academy

The Adams Academy will be getting a new air conditioning system to help preserve the building and its historic artifacts and to make it a more pleasant place to visit.

The City Council approved $50,000 for a central air conditioning system Monday for the Quincy Historical Society headquarters.

"It's to protect as much as provide comfort," said Councillor-at-Large Tim Cahill, who also serves on the Historical Society board of directors.

Cahill noted that the Academy is the oldest building in downtown and is very attractive. He said it is important to preserve the building particularly since Mayor James Sheets has pledged to boost tourism in the city.

The building has been conditioned and restored over the past 16 years. Society members are worried that heat and humidity will harm the collection of books, manuscripts, photos, maps, newspapers, and other items, as well as make it uncomfortable for visitors touring the building or using the library.

Councillor-at-Large Mike Cheney said that recently the Quincy Partnership raised private funds to light some of the downtown historic sites including the Adams Academy.

"We should make this (the city's) part in the partnership," Cheney said. —STEVE KAVANAGH

Town Brook Project Gets Green Light

The City Council gave authorization Monday for the MDC and the Army Corps of Engineers to begin work on the Town Brook project which will relieve flooding in the Quincy Center area.

Ironically, Saturday's heavy rains caused Town Brook to overflow, flooding the neighborhood around Miller Stile Road and Bigelow Street.

The City's legal counsel, Jay MacRitchie told the council that Quincy's agreement allows the city to oversee the project. MacRitchie estimated the cost of the federal project at $50 million which includes no direct expense to the city.

Derbes Bros. Bids $802,223

Local Firm Receives Downtown Traffic Improvement Project

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A local contracting firm has submitted the low bid for the four-month Quincy Square traffic and sidewalk improvement project which will refurbish Hancock St. from School St. to Granite St.

Derbes Brothers of Quincy was the low bidder at $802,223, Public Works Commissioner David Colton announced at a meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association last Friday morning.

The bid was $77,478 higher than the second lowest bid of $879,701 submitted by Mario Susi of Dorchester. Colton said five bids were received, the highest $979,775 from L.A.L. Construction of Fall River.

Colton said he is pleased with the low bid. "It's an excellent price. We had estimated the job at roughly $700,000, not counting the purchase of the historic lights which will be bought by private contributors.

"It's right on the button as far as what we expected it to be."

Derbes Bros. is familiar with street reconstruction in Quincy. Colton noted the local firm installed the new sidewalks in the Wollaston business district.

The project is essentially the continuation of the Quincy Center Traffic Improvement Project completed on Hancock St. north from Granite St. to Dimmock St. two years ago. Colton said the bid calls for the repaving of Hancock St. and new sidewalks with faux brick accenting from Granite St. south to School St., and Granite St. to the Parkway. Forty-two black antique street light fixtures, similar to those installed two years ago, will be erected, he said.

New sidewalks will also be placed on Revere Rd. and Cottage Ave. and portions of Chestnut St. and Maple St.

Hancock St. will not be excavated, Colton said. Instead, several inches of asphalt will be milled or scrapped off and new asphalt added, thereby avoiding any curbs from being buried.

Tent Too Big, Circus Can't Go On

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Great American Circus which was to appear Monday, July 13 at St. John's Church on School Street has been cancelled.

Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to the mayor, said Tuesday that a mistake in measurement has made it "impossible" for the circus tent to fit in the planned area.

"When the original measurements were taken, they did not take into consideration that the Teen Mothers house that they have put on St. John's property would be there," said Mader. "The tent does not fit, and there just aren't any other sites available."

The circus was one of the special events scheduled for Quincy's Bicentennial celebration.

Mader said the measurements were taken by Quincy Tourism Association Director of Events John J. Miller and Deputy Director of Emergency Management Anthony Siciliano.

She also emphasized that the circus scheduled for Saturday, July 25 at Marina Bay will go on as scheduled.

"The Marina Bay date is still intact," said Mader. "Only the St. John's circus has been cancelled."

Mosquito Spraying In Selected Areas

The Quincy Health Department has been notified by the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project that an early morning application of the pesticide resmethrin will occur today (Thursday) in selected areas.

The pesticide, used to control adult mosquitoes, will be applied in selected areas east of Hancock St. and east of Washington St., which may include these neighborhoods: Squantum, eastern portions of Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Germantown and coastal Quincy Point.

Selected areas of Quincy west of Hancock St. and west of Washington St., including Montclair, western portions of Atlantic, West Quincy, inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy and inland sections of Quincy, were scheduled to be treated in the early Tuesday morning.

Not all areas will be entirely sprayed on a given date. Attempts will be made to spray as large an area of western Quincy on Tuesday and as large an area of eastern Quincy on Thursday.

Spraying will occur between the hours of 2 a.m. and 7 a.m. If inclement weather occurs, such as high winds, rain or low temperatures, or equipment fails, the application will be added to the next scheduled day, or rescheduled for the following day.

Resmethrin is compatible with the environment, has low toxicity to mammals and low irritation levels, and does not harm other wildlife.

Notice of future spraying dates will be made available from the Mosquito Control Project (617-762-3681) each Friday afternoon June through September.

A PAINFUL, STUBBORN PROBLEM

The fever, burning sensation, and painful urination of a urinary tract infection are hard — even embarrassing — to cope with. The difficulty in getting rid of the infection once and for all can make the problem truly maddening. An infection occurs when bacteria that are normally washed away from the body during urination establish a colony in the urethra, bladder, ureters or kidneys. After a urine sample examination confirms the diagnosis, a doctor will usually prescribe a week or more of an antibiotic or sulfa drug. Patients can help guard against recurrences by drinking plenty of liquids, going to the bathroom frequently, and being meticulous about personal hygiene.

P.S. Urinary tract infections don't always cause symptoms, so it's a good idea to have a urine culture done at all routine physicals.

Drinking plenty of cranberry juice can help to stave off a urinary tract infection in its early stages. If you would like to learn more, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. When treating patients, I always try to consider how I would like myself, my wife and children or my parents to be treated by a doctor. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital.

July 4th Day Of Irony

July 4th, you might say, is a day of irony in American history.

America was born on July 4th and the two men who played major roles in that historic event also died on July 4th — 50 years later.

Saturday marks the 216th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and the 166th anniversary of the deaths of its two main architects — Thomas Jefferson and our own John Adams.

Adams, like Jefferson, was a super patriot.

And he certainly was a better patriot than he was a prognosticator. He predicted July 2nd — not July 4th — would be celebrated down through the years as America's birthdate.

Adams made that somewhat erroneous prediction in a letter to Abigail Adams July 2, 1776. In the letter sent from Philadelphia to Abigail here in Quincy, he declared:

"The second day of July, 1776 will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America."

The man who would become second President thought this because the Declaration of Independence was adopted by 12 states on July 2. But, it wasn't signed by anyone until July 4.

And, only two of the 55 signers actually affixed their signatures on July 4th. They were Quincy's John Hancock, who as President of the Second Continental Congress, was the first to sign, and Charles Thomson. Most of the others signed the precious document on Aug. 2. But six signed after that. And, Thomas McKean, of Delaware didn't get around to it until five years later.

Jefferson and Hancock usually get top billing in the history books when it comes to the Declaration of Independence. Jefferson as its author and Hancock as its first signer. Hancock's signature — bold and with a fancy flourish so "King George III can see it without his spectacles" probably is the most famous autograph in history.

But Adams played a key, if not as glamorous a role in putting the Declaration together.

Jefferson himself acknowledged that when he praised Adams "... the most efficient agent in procuring a public Declaration of Independence."

HANCOCK

Ironically, both Jefferson and Adams died on July 4, 1826 — the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Adams collapsed here in Quincy in a wing chair in his second floor study in the Adams Mansion on Adams St. — the home of four generations of the illustrious Adams family and the summer White House for two presidents.

Adams and Jefferson had had a falling out but reconciled in later years through the efforts of Abigail as a peacemaker.

Among Adams' last words as he lay dying were, "Jefferson survives."

He thought Jefferson had outlived him. But actually, Jefferson had died earlier that same day at Monticello, his home in Virginia.

He was 83.

News didn't travel very fast in those days before radio and television. There were no such things as instant news bulletins.

Adams was just three months and 15 days from his 91st birthday. He survived Abigail, his wife of 54 years, by eight years.

ABIGAIL

He had lived to see his son, John Quincy Adams become the sixth President in 1825. But Abigail, the only woman ever to be the wife of one U.S. President and the mother of a second, never knew the second honor.

Four days before he died, John Adams was asked to give a holiday toast to his fellow Quincy residents. The old man replied:

"I will give you independence forever."

Asked if he would add to that, he declared: "Not a syllable."

"Independence forever" — those are words to cherish and remember.

By the way, if you've never been to the Adams Mansion, you're missing a visitor's treat.

The Mansion is under the National Parks Services. The late Wilhelmina Harris as superintendent, gave the Old House her personal loving care. Present Supt. Marianne Peak has carried on that tradition.

They have kept the house in a "lived in appearance."

Strolling the beautiful rooms, you get the feeling that John and Abigail are just out for a little walk and will be right back.

1000 Sign Harold Petition To Keep Braintree In District

Approximately 1000 people have signed a petition circulated by Sen. Paul Harold which aims to keep Braintree within a newly proposed South Shore congressional district.

Last week, the U.S. Supreme Court awarded a Massachusetts congressional seat to Washington state. Not only will the number of seats fall from 11 to 10 in Massachusetts, but the state's district lines must be redrawn.

Presently, the district represented by Cong. Brian Donnelly runs from Dorchester to the towns south of Brockton. The new congressional map calls for removing Dorchester, Braintree, Milton and Randolph and adding coastal communities from Hingham to Plymouth.

The plan would also impact Cong. Gerry Studds' district. He would lose the coastal communities, including his hometown Cohasset. His new district would encompass Cape Cod and the New Bedford and Fall River areas.

Locally, Quincy will likely remain in the district now represented by Donnelly who will retire in January. However, several nearby towns which are also part of Donnelly's district, including Braintree, Randolph and Milton, are expected to be part of a district represented by Cong. Joseph Moakley.

Harold, whose Senate district comprises Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon, has launched the petition drive in an effort to keep Braintree within the South Shore congressional district.

"I've been circulating this petition in Braintree over the last week to show the governor and the state legislature that Braintree wants to be in the same district as Quincy, Weymouth and the other surrounding South Shore towns.

"The petition recognizes the longstanding community interest Braintree has with other South Shore communities," Harold said.

As of Tuesday, about 1000 people had signed the petition, Harold said. All of Braintree's elected officials have signed in support, including the selectmen, town moderator and town clerk. Organized town groups are also backing it, such as the East Braintree Civic Association and League of Women Voters.

Special Events Planned For July 4th Celebration

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Races, parades, contests and other events will be held throughout the city this weekend in commemoration of Independence Day, July 4.

Various organizations are holding celebrations in honor of the day in 1776 when the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson said several groups in his ward, including the Baker Beach Association, the Gull Point Yacht Club and the Adams Shore Association will all hold July 4 celebrations.

"The Fourth of July is part of the fabric of what we're made of. We are the Fourth of July," said Kolson. "All of these celebrations we hold are a kind of tribute to the people who gave their lives for this country."

Kolson said the Baker Beach Association will begin its festivities Saturday at 8:30 a.m. at Baker Beach. Its events will include a neighborhood parade for residents, flag-raising ceremonies, sack races, and pie and watermelon-eating contests.

The celebration will wrap up around 3 p.m. and residents will regroup around 5 or 6 p.m. for a small bonfire and fireworks display, Kolson said. These should conclude around 10 or 11 p.m.

The Gull Point group will meet Saturday at Sargent Street around 8:30 a.m. and its events will include a parade, field games and a costume contest. Events should wind down at the yacht club around 3 or 4 p.m., Kolson said.

The Adams Shore Association will meet Saturday at Herring Road around 9:30 a.m. and its events will include a flag raising ceremony, cookouts, races and volleyball—a "real beach day," according to Kolson. The celebration should conclude around 5 p.m.

The Merrymount Association will hold events both tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday. Association Vice President Dave Grier said Friday's festivities will begin around 6 p.m. at Merrymount Beach and will include a road race, a Mini-Wheels Parade for toddlers who decorate their bikes, a treasure hunt, an egg-throwing contest, a pie-eating contest and the presentation of the Marge Gibbons Scholarship to a Grade 9 student from the Merrymount area.

The evening will culminate with the Miss Merrymount Contest for Merrymount girls in Grades 9-12.

Saturday's events will begin at Perkins Field on Agawam Road around 8:45 a.m. and will include various competitions such as wheelbarrow races, dashes, buddy races, and a softball throw. These will be followed by a presentation of awards to the event winners and the big event of the day, a parade which will include residents, clowns, marching bands and antique cars.

"It's really super to watch," said Grier, who added that those participating in the parade must either be residents of Merrymount or associated with a member family of the association.

Phyllis Bagen, Corresponding Secretary of the Ward 2 Civic Association said her group's July 4 Field Day is always a good time for the entire family.

"I've been doing this for 25 years, and take it from me, it's a lot of fun," she said. "It's really funny to see children who came 25 years ago coming back (in recent years) with their own children."

Bagen said the Ward 2 Association events will begin around 10 a.m. at the Fore River Field with various children's races, including wheelbarrow races, foot races and three-legged races.

After a break for hot dogs, cold drinks and ice cream, bicycle and doll carriage contests (featuring bikes and carriages decorated by the children) will be held. Finally, the annual "Horribles Parade" will be held.

"It's a contest where the kids try to make themselves look as horrible as possible," said Bagen. Referring to past "Horrible" entries, she remarked that "some of those kids are really innovative."

Prizes will be given to all contest winners, and the Ward 2 events should conclude around 1 p.m.

The Squantum Fourth of July Committee, which already held a Field Day last Sunday at the Wendell Moses Playground, will hold a Squantum Fourth of July Parade beginning Saturday at 10 a.m. at the corner of Bellevue and Dundee Roads.

"It's going to be a real good one this year," said Committee Treasurer Sandra Buckley, who also serves as director of the Squantum Community Center. "A lot of the people who have donated money this year (to the parade) have been older people who think that our parade is the best event Squantum has."

"The parade first started in 1909 and the enthusiasm is still there even though it's been so many years."

The Squantum parade will include marching bands, floats and children dressed in costume and will proceed throughout the neighborhood, finishing up at the Squantum School.

The Harborview Residents Committee is also planning to hold a Fourth of July Celebration Saturday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Palmer Playground, Quarterdeck Road and Yardarm Lane. Further details were unavailable at press time.

Kolson noted that such an abundance of celebratory events is a rarity throughout most of the United States.

"In most parts of the country, you have cities that hold one large citywide event for the Fourth of July," said Kolson. "But in the northeast, you have all of these smaller neighborhood celebrations for some reason. It's really quite a unique situation."

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

All In One Dish

Here is a great all-in-one dish that saves time and energy for the busy cook. It's made with pork chops, either with the bone-in or boneless. I used the chops with bones but either is fine.

PORK CHOPS WITH RICE
ALL IN ONE CASSEROLE
4 pork chops (about an inch thick)
1/2 cup uncooked rice
1 small green pepper (cut up)
1 small onion (cut up)
salt and pepper to taste

Saute the pork chops until browned on both sides. Remove from pan. In the same pan, saute the pepper and onion. Remove from pan. Add a half cup warm water to the pan and let set for a couple of minutes. In a casserole dish, place the pork chops, the pepper and onion and the uncooked rice, plus the juice from the pan.

Bake covered in a 350 degree oven for one hour.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

'Invent America' Program At Atlantic Middle School

The students, ranging from grade 2 to grade 8, displayed their inventions at the "Has Off to Hands On Invention" Convention at the Atlantic Middle School.

Inventive thinking is one kind of creative problem solving. Its practice develops attitudes, skills and strategies useful in daily personal and civic problem solving.

The work displayed at the convention by the students evolved over a three-month period during which students learned the inventive thinking process and then invented something of their own.

Quincy residents were invited to view the inventions along with a video presentation, photographs and slide show of the students and their teachers in action.

Participating teachers, having done graduate work with Dr. Delores Gallo of the University of Massachusetts in creative and critical thinking, taught the Invent America program to the students.

Gillis was an advisory board member of the Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers announces he is establishing a "Councillor's Award" to recognize an exemplary child of middle school age living in Ward 6.

Noting middle school years are important in terms of child development, Ayers said providing positive reinforcement is invaluable. The winner will receive a $100 savings bond and an award which will be presented July 4 after the Independence Day Parade at the Quantum playground. To nominate a student worthy of the award, submit a written explanation of why the student is deserving of the award to Ayers at the City Council Office, City Hall, or Ayers Bros. Inc., 440B East Squantum St.,

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

D. Scott Deware

Through the years the success of the American Revolution has been an inspiration to struggle against tyranny worldwide.

But the primary significance of the Fourth of July is for the American people themselves.

The Proclamation of Independence of July 4, 1776, translated our forebears from being subject of a royal majesty into being free citizens of a nation that they themselves had created ...

Citizenship is an active, not a passive condition. Citizenship carries with it responsibilities, as well as rights and privileges ... Unfortunately, too many Americans are content to allow others to exercise the responsibilities of citizenship for them, taking but passing interest in the decisions being made locally and nationally for them.

On this Fourth of July, let us all breathe a solemn vow to commit ourselves to active, rather than passive, citizenship.

Let us remember that apathy is democracy's greatest enemy, and can do more to unravel our liberties than whole battalions of invading troops ...

Sybil J. Mattson, 65

Remained Active Despite
Polio, Paralysis

A funeral service for Sybil J. (Friedland) Mattson, 65, of Quincy, will be held Friday at 11 a.m. in Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St.

Mrs. Mattson died Monday of cancer in her Quincy home.

During the epidemic of 1955 she was stricken with polio, which took away her ability to breathe on her own and left her paralyzed from the neck down. When first stricken, she needed an iron lung to breathe. Later, a chest device assisted respiration and doctors performed trachea surgery that permitted breathing without the other apparatus.

Although mostly confined to bed, she entertained her sewing group monthly and planned a Christmas Eve party for 70 people at her home each year.

Her greatest fear was being institutionalized and when her benefits were cut in 1978, the March of Dimes National Foundation, the Boston Center for Independent Living and others came to her aid.

Friends and strangers, actors and painters united to help her retain her home and independence. In the early days, a variety show raised $2,000 and in 1967 an artist donated paintings to be sold.

She corresponded with other polio survivors and held a reunion for many of them in her backyard. She enjoyed country and western music and old movies on television and read cards and letters when someone held them up for her.

Her husband, Ralph R. Mattson, worked two jobs and cared for her at night. He died in 1966.

She is survived by a son, Cliff A. Mattson of Colorado; a daughter, Deborah J. Jerome of Pembroke; a sister, Joyce Maggiore of Weymouth; and 11 grandchildren.

Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Visiting hours were scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) from 7 to 9 p.m. and today (Thursday) from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Quincy, MA 02170; the March of Dimes National Foundation, 865 Providence Highway, Dedham, MA 02026; or the St. Vincent DePaul Society, St. John's Church, 21 Gay St., Quincy, MA 02169.

A funeral Mass for Thomas J. Scanlan Sr., 87, of Quincy, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mr. Scanlan died June 28 at home after a brief illness.

A retired Quincy police officer, he worked on the force from 1933 to 1970. In his 37 years as a police officer he never missed a day of work and retired with 407 unused sick days on the books.

He did take time out from May 1942 to October 1945 when he served in the Army. His World War II duties took him to the islands of Saipan and Guadalcanal in the Pacific.

When he retired, he was given Police Telegraph Box Number One at a gathering in the George F. Bryan Veterans of Foreign Wars Post. Colleagues called him a "one-in-a-million cop."

A former partner said Mr. Scanlan was called upon to assist during many emergencies but would always return to his beat to rattle each door.

He worked nights for many years before going on days. He worked in a police box on Hancock Street in front of the Quincy Savings Bank across from the cemetery, out of a cruiser in Wollaston and in North Quincy, and for a time, held the city hall beat.

He received nine commendations, one for finding a lost 3-year-old inside an old icebox on the porch of a vacant cottage near Quincy Shore Cottage Drive.

After retiring he was a security guard at the Jordan Marsh warehouse and the Bargain Center in Quincy and at Building 19 in Quincy until he stopped working four years ago.

He enjoyed watching stock car races and midwest car races in Norwood and in Connecticut. Among his other interests were taking care of his daughter's flower garden and growing vegetables, word puzzles, television detective stories, dancing, cooking and swimming.

Born in Salem, he lived in Roxbury for a time before his mother bought a house in Quincy in 1924.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

He and his wife, Peggy F. (Schaeztl) Scanlan, were married 43 years ago in St. Ann's Church.

He is also survived by two daughters, Patricia A. Scanlan of Quincy and Margaret G. Scanlan of Florida; and a brother, William Scanlan of Quincy. He was the father of the late Thomas J. Scanlan Jr. and of a son who died in infancy.

Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Salem.

Morrisette Win Streak Snapped By Braintree

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team had a seven-game win streak snapped Monday night when the defense fell apart and Braintree took a 10-5 decision, dropping Morrisette to 9-2. Morrisette still held on to first place in Zone 6.

Morrisette played at Holbrook last night (Wednesday), will host Milton Friday night at 8:30 at Adams Field, travels to Canton for a 6 p.m. game Monday and will be home to Weymouth next Wednesday at 8:30 at Adams.

Pat Clifford was the starting pitcher against Braintree but was hurt by four errors in the first inning, giving Braintree four unearned runs.

Morrisette came back with three in its half of the inning on a lead-off triple by Robbie Kane, a walk to Pat Shea, an RBI single by Serge Belcastro, another run on a double play, Tom Balzano doubled and scored on Mark Kelliher's single.

Braintree added a run in the second and Morrisette tied it with two in the third on a walk to Balzano, Kelliher's single, an RBI single by Dave Reinhart and an error.

Braintree changed pitchers and the relief pitcher blanked Morrisette the rest of the way, allowing only one hit.

Braintree added two runs off Clifford and two more off reliever Matt O'Toole. Dan Duncer relieved O'Toole and pitched 2 2/3 innings, allowing one earned run on two hits and a walk. Clifford suffered his first loss of the season.

Kane had a single along with a triple and Kelliher had two hits.

In its previous game Morrisette came from behind for the fifth time to edge Wollaston, 6-5, and avenge an earlier one-run loss.

Clutch hitting by Belcastro, Kane and Balzano and outstanding relief pitching by 15-year-old Tom Malvesti keyed the victory.

Wollaston had a 5-3 lead going into the bottom of the fifth, after scoring two runs in the first, one in the second and two in the fifth off starter Mike Patch, who was unusually wild with seven walks, after walking only two in his previous three starts.

Morrisette collected 11 hits off Scott Dunn, who pitched out of several jams.

Young Malvesti relieved Patch in the sixth inning and put out the fire on a pop foul and a strikeout. He pitched a scoreless seventh inning and earned his second win in relief.

Morrisette scored a run in the first on singles by Shea and Belcastro and Chris MacDonald's sacrifice fly. It tied the game at three in the second with two outs when Reinhart singled, stole second and advanced when the throw went into center field. Kane singled him home. Kane moved up on an error and scored on a wild pitch.

It scored another in the fifth on a single by Shea and a long double by Balzano.

Trailing, 5-4, in the bottom of the seventh, Morrisette scored the two winning runs when Kane led off with a double, Balzano hit a triple to deep right field, the next two batters were walked intentionally and an error on Kelliher's rolled allowed the winning run to score.

Quincy Splits Two

The Quincy Legion baseball team, with one of the youngest teams in Zone 6, is having a frustrating season with only one win in 12 games, but it split a doubleheader last weekend with the touring Bayside Yankees of New York.

Quincy lost the opener, 7-0, and won the second, 6-3, over a select group of players from the New York-Long Island area. Twelve of its former players have signed professional contracts.

After three scoreless innings, New York scored four runs on two walks, two hits and an error off starter Jim Byrne, who had struck out five up to that point and walked only one.

Reliever Eric Kreuz, fighting control problems and an incoming fog, held NY to two earned runs. The fog, which would eventually cause the game to be called after six innings, gave Quincy outfielders problems, losing two routing fly balls.

Quincy outfielder Brian Oliver made the play of the game, a spectacular catch in center field.

Terry Gaide had two of Quincy's three hits. The young team has been struggling offensively all season.

Dan Burke and Steve Miller combined to defeat NY in the second game. Burke went the first four innings and Miller the last three, combining to hold NY to four hits and striking out six.

Quincy trailed, 3-0, after two innings but scored two runs in the second, three in the third and one in the fifth.

Garrett Butkuss had two hits and two RBI. Byrne went in to play third base after an injury to Mike Caporale and made two outstanding plays to keep NY from scoring. George Wirtz and Mark Karlson also had fine defensive plays. Pat Bryan, who caught both games, called two good games and threw out two players trying to steal.

"We have been blown out in only three of our 11 losses," said coach Ed Spring. "It is frustrating to play good defense and not be able to score. You can only hold good teams down for so long before the roof falls in."

"These kids have worked hard on defense and we have no place to go but up on offense. This is why it was good to win one of those games over New York."

Wollaston Bounces Back

The Wollaston Legion baseball team bounced back from a tough loss to Morrisette by outlasting Holbrook, 12-11, Monday night. The win improved Wollaston to 8-3 in Zone 6.

Wollaston hosted Braintree Tuesday, will meet Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 at Adams Field, will play at Randolph Monday at 6 and will play at Milton next Wednesday at 6.

Pat Gallagher drove in what proved to be the winning run against Holbrook, giving Wollaston a 12-9 lead. Holbrook rallied with two runs but Steve Loud relieved Terry Manning and put out the fire, earning a save. Steve Manning was the starting pitcher and was relieved by Duane in the fifth.

Duane Holmes went 3-for-4, Chris Cunio 3-for-4, Jeff Craig 2-for-3 and Bob Fitzpatrick 2-for-3.

In its previous game Wollaston lost to Morrisette, 6-5, when an infield error led in the winning run.

"We had our chances to score but left 12 men stranded," said coach Mike Gormley.

Wollaston scored two runs in the first inning on singles by Craig and Gallagher, an infield error and a ground rule double by Loud.

It added the run in the second on three walks and a sacrifice fly by Holmes. Two more runs scored in the fifth on two walks and singles by Loud and Charlie Rozanitis.

Wollaston led, 5-4, in the seventh but a double, a triple, two intentional walks and an infield error permitted the winning run to score.

Scott Dunn pitched the complete game for Wollaston. Loud had two hits and two RBI and Rozanitis had a two-run single.

Pyer Paces Bryan, 10-3

Bryan Post VFW defeated the Elks, 10-3, in Quincy Babe Ruth League action as Scott Pyer continued his fine pitching with his third straight outstanding game.

Bryan jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on Matt McSweeney's hit and threatened to break the game wide open in the second. Leading 4-1, Bryan had the bases loaded when Jon Ryan blasted a long drive to deep centerfield, only to be robbed by Chris McArdle's outstanding catch.

Bryan clinched the win with a five-run fourth inning keyed by hits by Rob Churchill, Bob Shaw and another long shot by Ryan for a double.

Pyer had two hits, Dan

Donahue was a standout catching again, throwing out two runners trying to steal, Shaw, McSweeney, David Rowell, Mike Eddy and Patrick Cummings played strong defense and Mike Koski, Ken O'Connell, Rob Callow and Bill Graney all played well.

David Cooper had three singles and McArdle, Kevin Nichols, Tim Wood and Joel Marquis a single each for the Elks.

Bryan also defeated the Sons of Italy, 9-3, behind Jeremy Nielsen's strong pitching. He struck out 10 and walked only one.

Bryan scored a run in the first inning but SOI came back with three in its half on hits by Jason Downey, Neil Mahoney (three hits), Bill Coughlin and Todd DeBoer.

Nielsen pitched shutout ball the rest of the way, scattering three hits over the last six innings.

Bryan took control of the game with five runs in the third. Churchill, Koski and Ryan singled and Donahue tripled.

Donahue and Koski had three hits apiece and Nielsen and Shaw had hits. Donahue caught another fine game and Koski made a spectacular throw from deep center field to nip a runner at third base.

Pyer, Shaw, McSweeney, Rowell, Eddy, Cummings, O'Connell and Churchill all played well.

Jim Malone had a fine game for SOI with a double and flawless defense.

Registration Underway For Kids' Tennis Clinic

The Quincy Recreation Department is accepting registration for the Reebok Tennis Clinic for Kids, which will be held July 13-17.

The "Free Beginners Program" is for Quincy boys and girls, ages 8-15 and is being conducted by professional tennis coach Danny Mattes.

Registration will be done in person at the recreation office at 100 Southern Artery between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. beginning today (Thursday).

There will be no phone registrations accepted. Registration is on a first come, first serve basis and is limited to 50 participants.

Each session will go from 9 to 11:30 a.m. with a pizza and beverage lunch provided at the end of each session, compliments of Papa Gino's in Wollaston. All participants will receive a free T-shirt compliments of Reebok International and other local sponsors.

Rackets and balls are provided by the New England Division of the United States Tennis Association.

The program will introduce the kids to the game of tennis in a playful, fun-filled way. The kids will work on the basic strokes, how to keep score, and will play games designed to encourage their ongoing interest in the game.

Mattes, the creator of the Reebok Tennis Clinic for Kids, is committed to "the possibility of kids using their development in the game of tennis to empower them in the game of life."

For more information call 376-1386.

Colton said traffic signals will be better coordinated to allow a freer flow of traffic through the square.

About half of the project will be funded by the state with another $300,000 coming from the city's Community Development Block Grant. The remainder will be paid through the purchase of the lights.

While the city is adding new sidewalks and historic lights to the upper end of Hancock St., one long-time street object and perceived business hindrance will be removed. Mayor James Sheets has ordered that parking meters be removed and replaced with parking regulations, such as 30-minute parking, along that strip.

During construction, the city will enforce a "more or less" two-hour parking zone under the city's emergency parking ordinance, Colton said.

As for a parking plan after the project is completed, Colton said the city will discuss parking regulations with businesses which presently have meters in front of their stores. After receiving the input of merchants, he said the city will devise a consistent parking regulation plan for that area of Hancock St.

"We hope to come up with some kind of agreement," Colton said.

The meters on Hancock St. from Granite St. to Dimmock St. will remain.

At the QCBPA meeting, members voted in support of a plan which would reverse the one-way traffic pattern on Cottage Ave. Instead of allowing traffic to move from Hancock St. down Cottage away from the square, the flow would reverse on Cottage Ave. and allow a right hand turn onto Hancock St.

The reversal, backed by the mayor's Downtown Revitalization Task Force and the Traffic Commission, was put into committee by the City Council Monday night.

Traffic Engineer Jack Gillan will discuss another potential traffic flow reversal, along Hancock Court, with area merchants to determine whether they support it.

The Cottage Ave. and Hancock Court flow reversals are intended to "recirculate" motorists into the square instead of steering them away from it.

If traffic is reversed on Cottage Ave., some merchants have asked that the side entrance to the Hancock Parking Lot on that street be opened. Colton said the city will discuss the possibility with Metropolitan Parking Systems, the present operator.

Cottage Ave. would also be narrowed, bringing sidewalks closer together and allowing room for a parking lane and landscaping such as trees along the northerly side.

The city is asking merchants to give input regarding street trees. Because of underground utilities, Colton said any trees would have to be planted in clusters, not evenly spaced every 50 or 100 feet.

Benches or "street furniture" is part of the landscaping scheme, Colton said. Merchants said problems have surfaced in the past with homeless people sleeping on the benches. The bench areas should be patrolled by police to head off any problems, they said.

The project will begin soon after the arrival of the Tall Ships, the city's bicentennial celebration and the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival which will be held Sunday, July 12 through Wednesday, July 15. It is expected to be completed by mid-November.

Once completed, Colton said the upper end of Hancock St. will look the same as the lower end. "The finished product will look very much the same. It will look like we ripped everything up and made everything new."

"Visually, when you're driving down Hancock St., you'll see the black historic lights and concrete sidewalks with brick accents. There will be new line stripping, trees and no parking meters."

DPW Operations Manager Lester Gerry will be the project manager and will be on site, Colton said. A full-time engineer will also be assigned.

In addition, a summer intern will be used to facilitate communications on a virtual full-time basis "so that everyone knows what's going on at all times," Colton said.

Two years ago, some businessmen and residents complained about the reconstruction project because of rough driving conditions and dust storms.

Colton said the city will work with merchants to make sure this portion of the project goes smoothly.

The fireworks display on Sunday, July 12, will probably not be visible in Quincy either. A Sail Boston 1992 spokesman said that the fireworks will be set off from inner Boston Harbor.

Officials expect that most of the activity in Quincy July 11 will be at Marina Bay as boat owners and guests arrive to use their boats.

Walter Hannon of Marina Bay said plans have been in the works for a year at Marina Bay.

"We'll have 1,500 to 2,000 parking spaces," Hannon said. "We've had 25,000 people here in the past. We can handle crowds."

Hannon also said that a portion of the parking receipts will benefit Quincy school athletic programs. The North Quincy and Quincy High School coaching staffs will run the parking lots during the Tall Ships visit, and in return, will earn 25 percent of the gross receipts.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said he will deploy 114 officers in eight hour shifts during the weekend. Two police boats will also work with the Coast Guard and an officer will be assigned with the Harbormaster and one with the Dive Team Chief.

Auxiliary police will also assist the security effort. They will man barricades on the Squantum streets between Marina Bay and the rotary at Dorchester Avenue and East Squantum Street, including Heath, Deerfield, Landsdowne and Essex Streets.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he will add a Deputy Chief, an extra ladder company, an additional firefighter and an ambulance to the Squantum Fire Station on Saturday.

"We want to make sure there will be no delay in getting additional manpower to the area that day," Gorman said.

Tony Siciliano, Deputy Director of Emergency Management, said his volunteers will staff a 24-hour command center and two mobile command centers at the Best Buy parking area on Quincy Shore Drive and at the rotary by the artillery gun in Squantum.

Emergency Management volunteers will also man a 24-hour phone line (376-1234) for emergencies and to offer updated information from July 8 to 17.

The Tall Ships visit is the highlight of the 500th anniversary celebration of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus.

Nearly 220 ships from more than 35 countries are participating.

The ships vary in size and range up to 385-foot long. Several smaller ships will dock at Marina Bay during the week including the Argia (81 ft.) from Mystic, Conn.; Appledore II (82 ft.) from Camden, Maine; Francis Drake (71 ft.) from England; Greater Manchester Challenge (76 ft.) from England; Sylvina W. Beale (84 ft.) from Noank, Conn.; and Voyager (95 ft.) from Mystic, Conn.

In addition, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the petition and is circulating it.

The petition is being circulated mainly in Braintree but any South Shore resident can sign it. The petition is available at Braintree Town Hall.

Harold, who is one of several candidates running to succeed Donnelly, says he is conducting the petition drive in his capacity as state senator, not as a congressional candidate.

"I'm doing this first and foremost in my capacity as the state senator representing Braintree. The petition is in the best interest of Braintree and its citizens.

"I'm elected right now to represent Braintree's best interest and this in the town's best interest."

Besides the petition, Harold has proposed an amendment to the proposed restricting plan. The amendment calls for putting Braintree back into the South Shore congressional district and adding five towns, Berkley, Dighton, Lakeville, Rochester and one third of Raynham, to Moakley's district.

Harold said his amendment satisfies the population requirement for congressional districts. The population of the five Bristol County communities equals Braintree. As a result, both districts would have 601,643 people.

"There would be no deviation from the targeted population. This proposed amendment has been computer generated. It meets all of the criteria of the federal court (for redistricting)," Harold said.

Car Rental License Granted

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Verc, Inc. for a car rental license and a permit to store 200 gallons of gasoline in tanks of vehicles at the location of 231 Southern Artery.

John Vercollone, owner of the company, said it seemed only natural to expand to Quincy since his Weymouth office already rents cars to Quincy customers. Vercollone also owns offices in Plymouth and Marshfield.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who said he is familiar with Vercollone's company, voiced his approval of the license.

"He runs a good, clean operation," said Gorman.

Vercollone said he would first have to do "a bit of tidying up" at the site, which was formerly Mike's Garage. He also said that there will only be 12 cars maximum on the premises at a time and "only about five cars at most times."

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy

Quincy, Massachusetts is a city rich in history and as the Mayor of this wonderful city it gives me a great deal of pleasure to welcome you to the City of Presidents.

This administration and the citizens of Quincy continue to acknowledge our wealth of history and our heritage. Within the City's boundaries are many important historical sites:--the Adams Academy (site of the birthplace of John Hancock), the Adams Houses (birthplaces of the second and sixth Presidents of the United States), the Adams Mansion (the summer White House of the Adams' family, the "Church of the Presidents" (First Parish Church) where two Presidents are buried, the Dorothy Quincy Home, the Josiah Quincy Homestead are but a few of the important sites. While in the City you should also try to visit the Hancock Cemetery, the Abigail Adams Cairn (where Abigail Adams with her children, Abby, age 10, and John Quincy, age 8, watched the burning of Charlestown during the battle of Breed's Hill), the First Productive Iron Works, the First Commercial Railway and Moswetuset Hummock and, of course, old City Hall, built of famed Quincy granite in 1844.

Hundreds of years ago the first Europeans settled in what is now Quincy and even now the City is home to a new wave of immigrants. For 100 of those years Quincy has been a city changing from a small trading post to a city of almost 89,000.

Through the pages of this historic issue you will be able to read about the many places and men and women that play significant roles in our City and our nation and continue to do so, you will learn why our City is QUIN-ZEE and not Quin-see.

Most of the historic sites are within walking distance of each other and are fine examples of the heritage Quincy has preserved for our visitors and citizens.

The City of Quincy and its citizens welcome you to our fine City and we hope that you will find your visit to be a rewarding and memorable learning experience and that you will come back again.

Sincerely,

JAMES A. SHEETS
MAYOR

After Painstaking Renewal Project

John Adams Birthplace Has Original Look

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project in the 1980s.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

The house is well furnished and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979, after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace re-opened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

JOHN ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, the model on which the U.S. Constitution was based.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copies from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was discovered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2.00 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available.

The Adams Cottages

Our Only Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monatiquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was, a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9½ acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of

Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabdiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735 (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

The junction of Franklin St., Independence Ave., and President Ave. in South Quincy is the only place in the country where the birthplaces of two presidents who are father and son stand side by side in the same city.

The precise age of the two cottages at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was retored by the Daughters of Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1681 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, a grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 through Nov. 10, with guided tours. Admission is $2 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days.

The Quincy Presidential Trail

The Adams Birthplaces are an important stop on the newly designated Quincy Presidential Trail, a 10.5 mile route that takes the visitor through the 17th and 18th Century locales associated with the lives of the Adams family.

Historic sites along the trail include the Adams Mansion, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy, First Parish Church, Adams Crypt, City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Birthplaces, Abigail Adams Cairn, First Commercial Railroad, First Ironworks, Col. Josiah Quincy House and Moswetuset Hummock, most of which are described in this magazine.

The Quincy Presidential Trail is a National Recreation Trail, the seventh in the state of Massachusetts and the 625th in the nation.

HISTORIC QUINCY

The City of Quincy has almost everything a city can offer with its brilliant, magnificent shoreline, its national historic sites, its two colleges and its neighborhoods. It is rich in heritage, natural and human resources -- and it is particularly enriched by its unique blend of old and new.

First settled in 1625 at Mount Wollaston, separated in 1640 from Boston as a town called Braintree, our Quincy was established as a town of its own in 1792 and incorporated as a city in 1888.

It continues to be one of the finest cities in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It produced two presidents of the United States. The mortal remains of Quincy's two most famous sons, Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, lie at the First Parish Church, Unitarian, in Quincy Square. The citizens of the City of Quincy are very proud of its history and, working together, they are ready to meet the challenges they face as they look to the future and the 21st century.

ADAMS MANSION NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

The Adams Mansion

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed and warm than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was at first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open to the public from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days.

THE FIRST PARISH CHURCH

TOMBS OF PRESIDENTS John and John Quincy Adams and their wives in First Parish Church.

First Parish Church

Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chappel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56—which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate—and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of its benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

An active Unitarian Universalist Church, it is open to the public for tours Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. through Wednesday, Sept. 2. Visits may be made at other times by calling Wednesday at least one week in advance. For further information call the church office at 773-1290.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.—the first Quincy—was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth president John Quincy Adams.

Apparently all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-see."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it. Seems like a sound argument.

Seat Of Government For 148 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House for the said inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 148 years, the nerve center of government for first the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a president of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

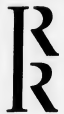

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard - who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months - the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a 3 and one half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

Quincy College Public Report, 1991-92

QUINCY COLLEGE first opened its doors in September of 1956. Since the first graduating class of 3 in July, 1960, Quincy College has grown rapidly with a current enrollment of almost 4,000 students. In 1992 we graduated our largest class ever and proudly welcomed General Gordon R. Sullivan, Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army, as our commencement speaker.

Quincy Campus

Quincy College opened new science and nursing laboratories in 1991-92 as well as a new computer lab featuring 386dx computers. The library and the faculty offices are being renovated this summer.

Plymouth Campus

The College opened a new campus in the fall at the North Street Library complex in Plymouth. Enrollment for 1991-92 exceeded our expectations and we project significantly higher numbers for 1992-93. The College offers a two-year associate's degree program of studies in Liberal Arts and Business for students who want to transfer to a bachelor's program. Also offered is a Health Careers Preparatory Program for students trying to enter nursing or other Allied Health fields. All programs are offered both days and evenings and students may complete their entire program in Plymouth.

Sullivan Labor-Management Center

This Center is dedicated to issues of labor-management. This spring the Center sponsored a forum on Labor-Management issues in the proposed education reform package before the Massachusetts legislature. Over 200 educators participated in the program at which Dr. John Silber was the keynote speaker. We have begun to develop a library and research facility, conferences and seminars, and certificate and degree programs. The Center is named for Edward T. Sullivan, a prominent labor leader in Massachusetts for the past forty years.

Bachelor of Liberal Studies: A New Challenge

Planning is underway for a unique bachelor's degree program to be introduced after 1993. Students with an associate's degree and prior work experience will be eligible for the program. A faculty advisor will be assigned to each student to help create an individualized course of study. Courses would be taken both at Quincy College and at other area colleges with all credits being applied to the degree. A personalized, supportive environment, access to some of the best universities in the world, and full transfer credit for the associate's degree will be features of this unconventional four-year program, which will provide an opportunity for students with practical work experience to continue their education in a flexible and creative environment.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native-son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Col. John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great grandfather.

John Hancock who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock

was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but deceased person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished - and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741 - 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77 - two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888.

But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway

First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, 6 and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Col. Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crochety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year round, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrowhead (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to till some 3,000 warriors for a war with the Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallow with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Moswetuset Hummock, identified by a marker stone and maintained in its natural state, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

The Thomas Crane Library

A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy saw of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial -- preferably a library -- to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestly and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I can not guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library." Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

"You are, but you wouldn't have it if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism -- "Food will win the war," they said -- the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1936, that now houses the stacks and the children's section.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays during June, July and August.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

the fourth Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later vice president of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead is open to the public May through October, Wednesday through Sunday, from noon to 5 p.m. (last tour at 4 p.m. It is also open by appointment only Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon for groups. Admission is $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children age 12 and under.

John Adams 'Father'

U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Quincy, birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, also has claim to the birth of the U.S. Constitution.

The seed for this precious document was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in the law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go to the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Greif, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27, "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us -- but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indiaman he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant: butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of defeat, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs, and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams, and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound up in the law office of his home at the foot of Penn's Hill, paired with his firebrand cousin, Sam, and his ailing friend, James Bowdoin, to write a Constitution for the state of Massachusetts, which in turn became the model for the Constitution of the United States.

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee -- by the Committee upon the subcommittee -- and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee -- so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780.

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admiration in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

WRITING TABLE in old law office is spot where John Adams labored over his law cases in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

It Was Richard

For years, the first name of Capt. Wollaston, the leader of the original settlers of Quincy in 1625, was lost to history.

Only recently did the researchers of H. Hobart Holly, historian of the Quincy Historical Society, turn up the information that it probably was Richard.

Quincy Quiz

What was the role in Quincy's history of "Thomas Morton of Clifford's Inn, Gent.?"

Answer:

Thomas Morton, dubbing himself the "Lord of Misrule," took control of the Mt. Wollaston settlement in 1629, changed the name to Merry Mount, erected a maypole and cavorted with the Indians until the Pilgrims of Plymouth and the Puritans of Boston put an end to such carrying ons.

What was the role in Quincy's history of Francis L. Souther?

Answer:

Francis L. Souther was a member of the Hancock Light Guards, Fourth Massachusetts Regiment, who was killed at the Battle of Big Bethel on June 10, 1861, the first Union soldier to die in combat in the Civil War.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

Quincy Re-enacts First Town Meeting Held 200 Years Ago

HEAR YE, HEAR YE—Mayor James Sheets, wearing a two-piece black velvet suit and silver wig, portrays John Hancock at Quincy's first town meeting re-enactment held in the Council Chambers of City Hall in March. At right is City Clerk John Gillis who played Town Clerk Ebenezer Vesey.

CITY CLERK JOHN GILLIS, wearing a colonial era vest and tri-cornered hat as Town Clerk Ebenezer Vesey, conducts the first town meeting during a re-enactment of that historic event at Quincy City Hall.

PROCESSION OF DIGNITARIES, led by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. of Massachusetts, crosses Hancock St. from First Parish Church to City Hall for the re-enactment of Quincy's first town meeting Saturday, March 7. The first town meeting was held March 8, 1792, to incorporate Quincy as a town from parts of Braintree and Dorchester.

Josiah Quincy Homestead

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquilla" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family -- Col. John Quincy, the great grandfather of John Quincy Adams sixth president of the United States.

How Many Miles From Boston?

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7 1/4 and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-miles marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7 1/4-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock St. in North Quincy and Wollaston.

When Josiah Quincy IV built a house for his family he considered location, beauty, and community, and then he picked the best spot in town...

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children, Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth president of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin St.) meets Viden Rd. atop Penn's Hill a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public free of charge.

Adams Academy

On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body -- 25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 and 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar schools" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Leverett, an amiable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett who signaled the passing of Adams Academy -- and many other 19th Century classical prep schools -- at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did and on June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop.

The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. or by appointment. It is closed Sunday and holidays. There is a $1 fee for non-members; children age 12 and under are admitted free.

Abigail Adams Wife, Mother Of Presidents

Mrs. John Adams, the former Abigail Smith of Weymouth, is the only woman to be wife of one president and mother of another --- and she could have been grandmother of a vice president.

Husband John was chief executive from 1797 to 1801; son of John Quincy occupied the White House from 1825 to 1829; and grandson Charles Francis Adams ran for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, Abigail Adams once wrote to her husband, John:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

ABIGAIL ADAMS

Abigail Adams: A Woman Of Special Honors

Abigail (Smith) Adams was the only woman to be the wife of one President and mother of another.

She was the wife of John Adams, our second President.

She died in 1818, however, and did not see her son John Quincy Adams elected our sixth President.

John Adams did live to see his son become President in 1825.

Hancock Cemetery

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Col. John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

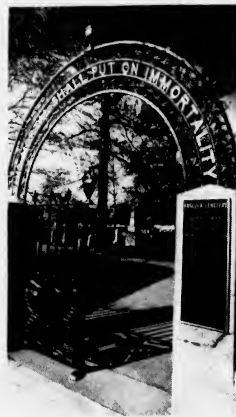

Among the belongings found in the Elm St. lodging house were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and down-trodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

HANCOCK CEMETERY

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and env'y'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

WHY NOT, RAY?—Squantum resident Alicia Gardner (with arm raised) speaks to protesters at a rally Monday night opposing Boston Mayor Ray Flynn's denial of public access to Long Island for the viewing of the Tall Ships parade. Gardner was joined by, 1 to r, Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, State Rep. Michael Morrissey, and Mayor James Sheets.

TALL SHIPS FANS—Between 400 and 500 people turned out in Squantum Monday night to protest the closing of Long Island to the public during Saturday's Tall Ships parade. The island is considered one of the premier viewing places for the event.

Half To Moakley, Half To Studds?

Sheets Threatens Suit If City Split Into Two Districts

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Speculation Tuesday that Quincy could be split into two separate congressional districts disturbed many local officials, including Mayor James Sheets who threatened to file a lawsuit if the proposed redistricting plan is approved by the state legislature.

Sheets said the division would dilute the city's political clout in Washington and create logistical problems, including consensus building. Other public officials criticized the proposal, calling it "political piracy" and a "diservice to the citizens of Quincy."

On Tuesday, there were conflicting reports on the proposed redistricting plan devised by Gov. Bill Weld, Sen. Walter Boverino and Rep. James Brett.

Some Boston media outlets reported that Quincy would be split into two separate districts. As proposed, Wards 3, 5 and 6 would become part of a district represented by Cong. Joseph Moakley. The city's other three wards, 1, 2 and 4, would join a district represented by Cong. Jerry Studds.

Brockton, the South Shore's other major city, would go to Cong. Barney Frank.

However, another news medium reported the plan would not work because it would not satisfy the population requirement of 601,643 people per district. Thus, the report had the leaders going back to the drawing board.

As of press time, a decision on the final plan had not yet been reached. Efforts to reach Brett were unsuccessful.

In any event, the mere idea that Quincy has been put on the block by redistricting leaders unnerved many city officials.

"It's absolute turmoil," Sen. Paul Harold said late Tuesday afternoon. "Massachusetts is the last state in the union to devise a redistricting plan. There are 60 days before the election and the City of Quincy, for the first time, may be divided.

"It would be a disservice to the city if that happened," Harold said, adding a final decision could be reached "within the hour or within the week."

Sheets wasted no time responding to the proposal. If the plan goes through, the mayor said Tuesday that he would consider filing a lawsuit or injunction to stop the plan from taking effect.

"As a total city with total city needs, I don't think we would get the same consideration as smaller towns if Quincy were split. We would have to build consensus among two congressmen.

"I think there's all kinds of logistical problems that we would encounter."

Sheets Pledges To Stand By Them

Squantum Residents Vow To Defy Flynn On Long Island Ban

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Mayor James Sheets in handcuffs?

It could happen Saturday. Squantum residents have vowed to defy Boston Mayor Ray Flynn's order prohibiting the public from Long Island to watch the Tall Ships parade.

And Sheets has pledged to stand by his constituents.

"I'm not advocating that people walk out to Long Island but I have to be prepared to meet their emergency needs if that happens. I intend to be there. I want to make sure there are emergency vehicles and fresh water and other essentials," Sheets said.

"If people are going to go, I'm going to make sure they are protected and the only way to do that is for me to go with them," the Mayor said. "We'll just have to wait and see what happens Saturday. I'm prepared to protect the well being of my people, over the objections of the Boston police."

Following the Fourth of July Parade in Squantum last Saturday Sheets told residents and members of the Citizens for Access to Long Island Committee that he would be with them if they attempted to go on the island.

Between 400 and 500 people, many carrying homemade signs, marched from Nickerson Beach in Squantum to the guard shack on Moon Island at the entrance to Long Island Bridge Monday night to protest the closing of the island during this weekend's Tall Ships visit.

An organizer of the rally, Alicia Gardner of Squantum, said the point of the protest was to ask Flynn "Where have you been the last three years?"

ANN MARIE O'HAGHAM of Ireland, a visitor to Quincy, receives some helpful information about the "City of Presidents" at the Quincy Tourism Association's tourist and information booth located outside City Hall. The booth or kiosk, built by the city, opened July 2. Darlene Stuart, a QTA volunteer who is manning the booth, says approximately 100 people have visited the kiosk since it opened. It is expected to remain open throughout the summer tourist season.

Mosquito Spraying Reset In Selected Areas

Due to unsuitable conditions, last week's scheduled application of the pesticide resmethrin has been rescheduled for today (Thursday) in selected areas of the city by the Norfolk County Mosquito Control.

The pesticide, used to control adult mosquitos, will be applied in selected areas east of Hancock St. and east of Washington St., which may include these neighborhoods: Squantum, eastern portions of Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Germantown and coastal Quincy Point.

Selected areas of Quincy west of Hancock St. and west of Washington St., including Montclair, western portions of Atlantic, West Quincy, inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy and inland sections of Quincy, were also rescheduled for early Tuesday morning.

Not all areas will be entirely sprayed on a given date. Attempts will be made to spray as large an area of western Quincy on Tuesday and as large an area of eastern Quincy on Thursday.

Spraying will occur between the hours of 2 a.m. and 7 a.m. If inclement weather occurs, such as high winds, rain or low temperatures, or equipment fails, the application will be added to the next scheduled day, or rescheduled for the following day.

Resmethrin is compatible with the environment, has low toxicity to mammals and low irritation levels, and does not harm other wildlife.

Notice of future spraying dates will be made available from the Mosquito Control Project (617-762-3681) each Friday afternoon June through September.

6 Residents Commended For Aiding Police Officer

Police Chief Francis Mullen presented commendations to six Quincy men Monday who assisted a police officer who was attacked June 7.

Paul Wassiege of 71 Piermont St., Keith Oliver of 38 Sherman St., Walter Szczesniak of 295 Elmwood Ave., Alfred Brown of 149 Milton St., Angelo Kapetanakis of 216 Newbury Ave., and William Dineen of 91 Tyler St. went to the aid of Officer Robert Cugini who was attacked from behind and beaten with a rock by a Montclair resident.

"It is indeed rewarding to me and all of the officers of this department to know that there are citizens who are willing to risk their own safety to help us when we need assistance," Mullen said.

"I thank and commend all of the brave citizens for their prompt actions which saved Officer Cugini, and I also appreciate the many neighbors who alerted the Police that one of their officers was in trouble. I believe that it is through the combined courageous efforts of each and every one of these brave citizens that a potential tragedy was averted," Mullen said.

Presenting the commendations along with Mullen were Ward 3 and Ward 6 City Councillors Larry Chretien and Bruce Ayers.

Mullen said that Cugini has been released from the hospital and is recovering at home. Cugini is doing well, Mullen said, although he is suffering severe head aches.

A Profile In Courage

Think of all the things you did or could have done in the last 37 years.

Like:

Vacation trips. Cruises. The theater. Movies. Dining out. Shopping. Skiing. Swimming. Playing tennis. Or golf. Putting around the yard. Etc. etc.

And maybe — now and then, anyway — complaining about the problems you have been handed in life.

And while you were doing some — or most of these things the last 37 years — Sybil Mattson couldn't do one of them.

Oh, she could have complained about the problems handed her in life and no one would have blamed her. But she didn't.

She didn't do any of the other things either. Not that she didn't want to. She just couldn't.

Sybil was a victim of the polio epidemic of 1955. She was 28, married and the mother of two young children.

She spent the 37 years since then first in an iron lung and then a chest respirator and a rocking bed — day and night.

She was paralyzed from her neck down — unable to move a finger or a toe.

But she could smile. And she did — cheering those who came to cheer her.

The smile came harder in 1966 when her husband, Ralph, died of a heart attack at age 43. Sybil was 39 then and they had been married nearly 18 years.

"He just wore himself out," a friend said at the time.

He worked two jobs seven days a week to meet the family's necessary high expenses. And he was up frequently every night to be sure Sybil's respiration equipment was functioning properly and to attend to her personal needs.

Sybil couldn't leave her bed to go to his funeral. She went to his Carter St. home while a neighbor comforted her and wiped away the tears with a handkerchief Sybil couldn't even hold.

The children, Clifford and Debbie were 13 and 16 respectively when their father died.

Sybil was blessed with good friends.

They were there for her during the big Northeast Power Blackout of November, 1965 — a life-threatening event to her because the respirator that kept her alive was electrically powered and now Quincy was without electricity as was most of the Northeast.

But while most people that night sat around flickering candles, Sybil's friends were driving back and forth to unaffected Braintree filling power lawn mower gasoline cans to switch the respirator over to a gasoline auxiliary powered generator to keep the respirator going and Sybil breathing.

Friends were there again after Ralph died, to help Sybil and the children.

They raised over $15,000 to help pay the virtual around-the-clock care she required, plus medical expenses and other necessities, even while the March of Dimes was also generously helping. A trust fund for the family was set up.

Neighboring women took turns sleeping on the couch in Sybil's room as Ralph did, to be there when needed during the night.

Her friends were many. A few come to mind:

The Rev. John Bowmar, who was then pastor of Quincy Centre Methodist Church, which Sybil had attended; Rev. Gary Nettleton, who later became pastor; Harvey Smith, Sybil's brother-in-law; Arnold Haskell, Victor Anderson, Jr., Russell Johnson, Russell Barritt, Eleanor Reidy, Isabel Cantelli, Ruth DiBona and Dorothy Johnson.

There were many others who helped and cared.

To them Sybil was an inspiration. A plucky woman who remained active with interests and causes even though she was confined to her bed. A woman who could have cried every day of those 37 years but smiled instead.

Long-time friend Russ Johnson recalled the other day: "If you were feeling down or depressed over something, you'd go and see Sybil. She would have you smiling and feeling on top of the world before you left."

Last week she died of cancer at age 65.

Sybil and her smile are gone — but not to be forgotten.

She will be remembered as a profile in courage — and inspiration.

JAMES (PETE) RICCIUTI, who was a top aide to Mayor James McIntyre, Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin is at Braintree Hospital for rehabilitation after undergoing surgery on his right leg at Beth Israel Hospital a week ago. He is reported as "doing well."

Ricciuti, who served as mayoral executive secretary, public works commissioner and purchasing agent underwent triple by-pass surgery in March.

If you would like to send a card the address is: Braintree Hospital, 250 Pond St., Braintree, MA 02184.

IF YOU LIKE rumors here's a hot one right out of the rumor mill. Ready? Okay. According to the rumor which has been spreading rapidly, the real reason Long Island is off limits for viewing the Tall Ships is because President Bush is going to be out there with a private party to watch them.

BUSH Now, if you were the President of the United States couldn't you find a more comfortable and better vantage point to view the ships? Like maybe on one of the tall ships. Or a friend's yacht.

Some people really believe it and are insisting Bush will be on Long Island.

Wonder if any of them would like to buy a bridge. I know where there's one for sale in Quincy Point and the price is right.

THE CUTTING EDGE OF SURGERY

Have you ever marveled at those amazing films of the body's internal organs at work? The tool used to guide the TV camera is an endoscope, which is the general term for a viewing tube inserted into the body, and it is now being hailed as the means to revolutionize many types of surgery. Particularly in abdominal surgery, where incisions are traditionally long and painful, endoscopy is starting to offer patients minimally invasive procedures with tiny incisions, drastically reduced recovery periods, little pain, and, in many cases, smaller medical bills. Endoscopy has so far been used successfully in such procedures as appendix and gall bladder removal, gynecological and arthroscopic surgeries, and intestinal repairs.

P.S. By the year 2000, as many as half of all surgeries may be performed via endoscopy. Today's surgical techniques are more advanced than ever before. If you would like to learn what you can do to stay healthy and ward off the dangers of heart attacks, feel free to call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Sheets called the proposal a "total dismemberment" of Cong. Brian Donnelly's district. "I think it's taking really a meat cleaver and ax to a congressional district. It reduces the power of the city. Quincy should be a corner stone of a congressional district. Instead, they're dividing the city down and creating two towns. That's totally unacceptable to me," Sheets said.

Harold said, "The city is not best served by being split into two congressional districts. There's no rationale for it." Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson added, "It's political paddy. It's a travesty. It's pathetic. Common decency was thrown through the back door when they started discussing this."

Instead of dividing Quincy, officials said the new districts should be formed by using towns as "building blocks."

"It's unfair and without justification to split the City of Quincy because there is sufficient population in the South Shore and towns should be used to build population," Harold said.

If the proposal appears to be part of the state's new districting plan, the mayor said he will act immediately. "If this unfolds as a probable solution to the state legislature, I will have to clearly investigate the possibilities of court action."

"I must protect the City of Quincy in terms of its representation in Congress. While I may work with Moakley and Studds if the plan goes through, (a divided Quincy district) still reduces Quincy's power in the House of Representatives."

As for legal action, Sheets said the city may seek an injunction to keep the state from establishing the new district.

"As the mayor of Quincy, I have to take whatever action I can to legitimately protect the interests of the city." He said he would seek the support of city councillors before filing a lawsuit.

Donnelly's decision earlier this year to retire from Capital Hill set off a wide-open scramble to replace him. However, the race to succeed him has taken on another dimension because the Supreme Court gave a congressional seat to Washington state.

Since that decision, candidates have wondered what the new lines dividing the 10 congressional districts will be.

Sheets said Donnelly's decision to step down created a "power vacuum" and in turn, easy prey for redistricting.

Harold, who spoke with Donnelly Tuesday, said the congressman is outraged by the proposed Quincy split. "Donnelly agrees with us that there's no justification to splitting the city."

Harold urged Quincy residents upset by the plan to call the governor's office. He noted that the split would stick until at least the next federal census in 10 years.

"The district would be in place for at least the next 10 years, that's why it's of so much importance today."

Navy Secretary Visits Shipyard, Squantum Field

The new Secretary of the Navy, Curtis D. Wilbur paid an official visit to the Fore River Shipyard to inspect the battle cruiser Lexington, which was being converted into an aircraft carrier.

Wilbur came to Quincy by automobile from Charlestown and was shown around the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s shipbuilding plant by the general manager, S.W. Wakeman.

Then the party visited the flying field at Squantum and viewed the facility where destroyers were turned out almost overnight during the World War.

$9 Million To Be Released For Interest-Free Student Loans

Rep. Ron Mariano announces that the Commonwealth will release $9 million for interest-free student loans to assist eligible students in defraying the cost of earning a degree.

The loans will be allocated according to financial need.

"By opening the school door to more students who could not afford the exorbitant interest rates attached to student loans, the state is offering students another avenue to help achieve the high goal of continuing their education," said Mariano.

The funds, which will be disbursed for the upcoming school year, are projected to aid more than 3,000 students in the Commonwealth. Students attending public or private institutions of higher learning are eligible to apply. Following the completion of a student's course work, the principal of the loan is to be repaid in accordance with a payment plan.

Students interested in applying for the loans must file the standard Massachusetts Financial Aid form then notify their school of their desire to be considered for this special program. The Commonwealth will notify each institution as to which students qualify.

"It is imperative that access to college not be for the chosen few," said Mariano.

Those students who would like more information about the program should call the state's Scholarship Office at 727-9420.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Maureen Brow Hospital Employee Of The Month

Maureen Brow, a surgical technician for 20 years, has been named the Quincy Hospital Employee of the Month for May.

Brow, a graduate of Quincy College, was the first state certified technician to work at Quincy Hospital. She assisted Dr. Anthony Dragone, Quincy Surgical Associates, with the first laparoscopic cholecystectomy (gallbladder removal) performed at the hospital. She often assists in orthopedic surgery and credits Dr. Elliot Shiffman, M.D., an orthopedic surgeon, for encouraging her to train as a surgical technician.

"Maureen consistently displays an eagerness to improve on existing methods and techniques in various surgical specialties," said Nurse Manager Patricia O'Reilly, Brow's supervisor. "Her professionalism judgement during surgical procedures is valued by all the members of the surgical team."

Brow said she considers the award to be an award

McGrath Says He Would File Legislation To 'Fast Track' Domestic Violence Cases

Saying the current approach is "simply not enough," Stephen McGrath, a Democratic candidate for state senator, said he would file legislation to "fast track" domestic violence cases if elected.

"I am struck by the fact that a landlord in this state who is having a problem with a tenant can obtain a trial date within thirty days under the summary process statute, yet a woman is the victim of domestic violence must wait up to a year for a trial," McGrath said.

"During the period she awaits the trial, the only protection she has is a restraining order; we have seen first hand that those orders are simply not enough."

Referring to recently reported cases where restraining orders were disregarded, resulting in the murders to two women, McGrath said, "We must have a domestic violence statute for women which works in the same manner as the summary process statute for landlords."

"If elected, I will draft and sponsor legislation which will put domestic violence issues on the fast track, so that the accused faces trial within 30 days after the arraignment. The legislation will call for sentencing guidelines, so that those convicted face imprisonment."

"This way, we insure that in those situations where it is warranted, it is the domestic batterer who finds himself in prison, rather than the victim, who today must live in a prison of fear."

McGrath's legislation would also call for counseling for the victims of domestic violence to be paid for by convicted batterers; counseling for convicted batterers while imprisoned; employment assistance for victims, who often are unequipped to serve as sole provider for their family; and a comprehensive educational program in high schools, through which students would learn to identify and deal with the warning signs of domestic violence.

"The summary process statute insures swift action in landlord-tenant matters. The state legislature must provide women with the same type of statute, and bring an end to the cycle of fear and violence which now exists."

"My legislation is the first step in that process," McGrath said.

Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale, which will run Sunday, July 12 through Wednesday, July 15, will be a very different but possibly even more exciting event this year than it has been in the past.

Highlighted by ethnic activities, children's games, the coming of the Tall Ships and the city's Bicentennial birthday party, this year's sale should provide something for everyone in terms of entertainment.

Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Executive Director Eileen Cohen said she expects a particularly large crowd this year because the sale will coincide both with the ships' arrival and the birthday celebration. "We are optimistic that there will be an influx of both tourists and residents because of the Bicentennial and the Tall Ships," said Cohen.

This year's sale is different for a couple of reasons: the event in the past has run Thursday through Saturday, as opposed to Sunday through Wednesday; in addition, each day this year will have its own theme. Sunday will be "Children's Day," Monday "Sail into Sale Day," Tuesday "Multi Cultural and Food Fair Day," and Wednesday the "Birthday Bash."

Throughout the event Hancock St. between Granite and School Sts. will be closed to traffic to form a pedestrian mall. Hours of the event are Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. and Monday through Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Among the highlights of this year's sale will be:

•A Karate Demonstration by the Masters of Self Defense Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Revere Rd.

•The Norfolk County Sheriff's "K-9 Demonstration" Sunday at 2 p.m. from Granite to School Sts.

•The Children's "200 Years Into The Future" Costume Parade sponsored by the Shawmut Bank Sunday at 3 p.m. from Granite to School Sts.

The parade will focus on what people might wear in the year 2192.

•YMCA activities including treadmill climbing, basketball and others throughout the day Sunday at Cottage Ave. and Hancock St.

•A free showing of "Pinocchio" Monday at 10 a.m. at Entertainment Cinemas in Quincy Fair Mall.

•A demonstration by the Quincy Fire Department Monday at 2 p.m. at Revere Rd.

•The Quincy Alumni Band, sponsored by Key Realty, Monday at 7:30 p.m. under the Big Tent.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"The most precious thing anyone can have is the good will of others. It is something as fragile as an orchid. And as beautiful and as precious as a gold nugget - and as hard to find. As powerful as a great turbine - and as hard to build. As wonderful as youth - and as hard to keep."

Amos Pariah

Needed in our country today, as always, are individuals of good will. We need daily of altruism, tenderness, lawlessness, etc.

Among our 250 million, there are thousands of incidents of good will and brotherhood (which go unpublished) for every ugly incident.

Millions of Americans exhibit good will and good citizenship daily.

These Americans maintain faith in the American dream. There are still enough citizens of good will to make it come true.

The quiet majority exercises a calming and democratic influence on extremists, though this influence is without headlines and sensations ...

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Byrne Fires No-Hitter For Quincy Legion

After dropping a heartbreaking 4-3 decision to Wollaston, the Quincy Legion baseball team rebounded and walloped Holbrook, 12-1, as 16-year-old Tim Byrne hurled a no-hitter.

Holbrook came into the game with a .285 team batting average but Byrne kept the batters at bay with a fine combination of pitches and an outstanding game called by catcher John Gladu.

Byrne had some control trouble in the middle innings but finished with a bang, striking out the side in the seventh inning.

He was supported by a 16-hit attack and some outstanding defense, particularly by center fielder Tom Nutley, who saved the no-hitter with a diving catch of a sinking line drive in the third inning.

Nutley also went 3-for-3 at the plate. Garrett Butkus and Mark Karlson had three hits each and George Wirtz and Terry Gaide had two apiece.

Holbrook's only run came in the fifth inning when Byrne walked the run in after an error and two other walks.

"I thought Tim might be tiring but he got the next seven batters, striking out four," said coach Ed Spring. "He was more frustrated with himself for the walks than he was tired. My hat is off to our outfielders, Nutley, Rob O'Connor and Brian Oliver, to be able to play under poor lighting, and rain and make every play. They did a great job."

"Mike Caporale also did a fine job filling in for Karlson, who had to leave the game with an injured wrist. I can't say enough about the job Tim did and he can only get better, but for us to have 16 hits was as gratifying. Usually we have to play four games to get 16 hits. Hopefully we are out of our batting slump."

Quincy will play Morrisette Sunday night at 8 o'clock at Adams Field, will play at Randolph Monday at 6 and will be at Weymouth next Wednesday at 6.

The Quincy Post thanks its sponsors who made its first golf tournament a success. They are State Rep. Mike Morrissey, City Councilors Pat Toland and Chuck Phelan, St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Legion Auxiliary, Kate Spring, G.T. Wilkinson Co., Beacon Sports, Brillo Catering, Chris Brennan, Local 254, Tony Padula, State Rep. Steve Tobin, Sen. Paul Harold, Nalco Chemical Co., Don Gustafson, and VFW Post 2558.

Eighty players took part in the tournament at the Rockland Golf Club. A dinner was held at Quincy Legion Post and prizes awarded to 43 players. Dave Kreuz was tournament chairman.

The Morrisette Legion baseball team remained on top in Zone 6, a half game ahead of Braintree and two games ahead of Wollaston by defeating Canton, 7-0, Monday night as Mike Patch won his fourth game with his second shutout. Morrisette went ahead, 4-3, on Kane's first Legion home run.

MacDonald stole second, Balzano walked and Kelliher was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Reinhart doubled home two runs and Kelliher scored on a squeeze bunt and Reinhart also scored while Shea was being thrown out.

Kiwanis took an early lead as Chris Curry and Danny Toland had back-to-back doubles and Kelly singled. Kiwanis had a 7-1 lead after Curry and Toland provided the key hits in the third inning.

Cable's Mike Powers gave up only six hits but was the victim of poor support as Cable committed eight errors. Mark Miller's long two-run homer got Cable close in the sixth but Kelly ended the threat with a strikeout after Mark Dunn and Chad Fitzpatrick had doubled.

Cable cruised past Beacon Sports, 15-5, with John Sullivan's bases-loaded triple the key blow. Powers, Kevin Walsh, Paul Flynn and Fitzpatrick each had an RBI in the fourth. Cable scored six runs in the fifth as Walsh, Dunn, Billy Davis, and Jonathan Brillo had RBI. Chris Bregoli got credit for the win, going six innings and striking out 10.

Powers pitched another strong game, limiting VFW to four hits and striking out 10 in six innings.

VFW took an early 2-1 lead as Brian Gates and Rich Rose walked, stole two bases and scored. Paul Hussy's perfect squeeze bunt scored Gates, who had triple, for a 3-1 VFW lead. Mike Whelan doubled and singled for VFW and scored twice.

Cable tied the game at 5, scoring three runs in the fifth without a hit. Walks to Sullivan, Powers and Bregoli loaded the bases. Walsh hit a sacrifice fly and Powers and Bregoli scored on wild pitches.

Cable won it after Flynn and Mike Welch led off the seventh with walks. Dunn reached on an error, loading the bases and Kevin Regan singled home Flynn with the winning run.

Bregoli picked up his ninth win, pitching a hitless seventh inning.

Rotary defeated Beacon Sports, 8-3, with Brian Linskey pitching a complete game for the win.

Rotary came out strong and scored four runs in the first inning.

Trailing in the fourth inning, 3-2, Police exploded for five runs in the fifth. Mike Linki led off with a single, Corner walked and Billy Norris, Jose Diaz and Steve Wiltshire had hits. A few key steals also helped.

The solid play of the team's 10-year-olds, Paul Burke, Matt McAnn, Jimmy Newhall and Mike Sullivan, along with newcomers Norris, Sean Walsh and Chris Wilkie have contributed to the team's run for a playoff spot.

Police also defeated South Shore Buick, 8-2, scoring all its runs in the fourth and fifth innings. Colin Shea was the winner.

N.Q. Youth Baseball Team Seeking Games

North Quincy Youth Baseball Team, comprised mainly of neighborhood boys ages seven through nine, is looking for other teams to play games this summer.

The Farm League has ended and the boys want to keep playing ball. Playing against other neighborhood teams makes the games more exciting and is a good learning experience for the players, some of whom are five and six years old.

The team plays regular baseball except it uses adult pitchers so that the youngsters must hit the ball. There are no walks or strikeouts. Anyone who can organize a group of neighborhood kids of similar age and would like to play some baseball should call Mark Jaehning at 472-3311.

Jaehning said he knows some 10-year-old boys who would also like to play with some older youngsters.

only access by land is through Quincy.

"People are frustrated and angry," Gardner said. She criticized Flynn for poor planning with respect to Long Island.

"The City of Boston has had three years to prepare for this. They have had offers of free help (from the City of Quincy, union workers, businesses and other volunteers) but Flynn turned them down. We have not gotten what we feel is a satisfactory explanation.

"This is being billed as a once in a lifetime event, but people are being denied access to the most pristine viewing area," Gardner said. "It's not just a Squantum or Quincy issue but its for all who would have liked to view the event."

State Rep. Michael Morrissey, whose district includes North Quincy and Squantum, blasted Flynn.

"I've never seen anyone act in such a selfish, rude manner (as Flynn has). This is what upsets people about government. Stuff like this sours everyone," Morrissey said.

"This is the poorest display of inaction in government I've ever seen," he said.

Morrissey said the situation is particularly frustrating since Quincy officials "have gone out of our way" in offering assistance including financial help, providing manpower to clean up and secure the island, etc.

"The sad part is that Boston is paying as much to keep people off the island as they would have if they had worked with us," Morrissey said.

A City of Boston official said that 40 police officers will patrol the island and work with the Coast Guard to keep unauthorized visitors off.

However, Vin LoPorchio, a spokesman for the Boston Police Department, said as of Tuesday no official plan had been determined.

"It is the position of the City of Boston that the island is unsafe," he said. "We hope that people will realize that and not jeopardize their own safety."

Gardner said her committee did not intend on organizing people to go onto Long Island. "That was not our intent," she said. "But if they do we want them to act responsibly."

During Monday's rally flyers were distributed which included safety tips for anyone planning on accessing Long Island. It's about a 2 1/2-mile walk from Squantum to Long Island.

Speakers at the rally included committee members, Gardner, Jim Stamos and Judy Levering, Morrissey, Sheets, Sen. Paul Harold and Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers.

Most of the public officials have pledged to walk with citizens and Sheets.

"This shows that one person can make a difference," Ayers said. "In this case it's Mayor Flynn."

Ayers said he is keeping his fingers crossed that something can still be worked out at the last minute.

"I don't know what's gonna happen. Flynn's holding all the cards," Ayers said.

Morrissey said Flynn is making a mistake by not cooperating with Quincy since there are other issues concerning the island.

Morrissey noted that the island houses a homeless shelter at the Long Island Hospital, the Boston Police Department's bomb detonation area and shooting range, and the Boston Fire Department's training center.

"Let Boston bring 'em out by boat. If they want to be an island we'll treat them like one," Morrissey said.

"I hope Flynn is willing to give at least some access," Gardner said. "There are still enough safe places on the island to access 10,000 to 15,000 people."

Mary Nee, director of Boston's Public Facilities Department, said there are significant public safety hazards on the island including more than 25 foot-deep holes.

Contacted Tuesday,

Donna Marco of the Public Facilities Department said, "Nothing's changed. No one will be allowed beyond the gate (at Moon Island)."

According to Gardner, Nee said that a major reason for the closing of the island was the damage caused by Hurricane Bob and the severe Northeastern storm last October.

Gardner disputed that however. She said 50,000 people were allowed on the island in 1980 despite "the biggest storm of the century" the blizzard of 1978.

Sheets said he plans on arriving in Squantum by 5 a.m. Saturday. He said he wants to be visible and in contact with Quincy police in case of any emergencies.

"I don't intend to see the parade. I don't think that's even a remote possibility," Sheets said. "It's my responsibility to work out the problems in the City of Quincy and I'll probably have my hands full."

Other members of the committee are Marie Stamos, Bill Gardner, Marcia McCarthy, Morrissey and Tim Reidy.

The committee entered a float into the Squantum 4th of July Parade Saturday, a replica of a Christopher Columbus ship, with a banner which read "Quincy's Only Tall Ship. There was also a van with a telescope affixed to it with a banner which read "Is This The Only Way To See The Tall Ships?"

The van also participated in the Merrymount Association parade and flyers announcing the rally were distributed Friday night at the association's annual "Night Before the Fourth" celebration.

Because Squantum will be closed to non-residents beginning Friday at midnight (barring a last-minute change by Flynn), Gardner said that anyone who wants to join those who will try to access the island will have to park nearby at either Marina Bay or Wollaston Beach. People should car pool, she said.

The purchase process took 15 months to complete.

Soldier's Homes in Chelsea and Holyoke and he inserted language in the state budget to allow for the issuance of distinctive license plates to recipients of the Purple Heart. Harold also sponsored the Senate bill calling for a Constitutional Amendment to ban the desecration of the American flag.

"I'm extremely proud of my record on behalf of our veterans," Harold said. "I pledge to continue to work hard in the United States Congress to ensure that those who served our country get the attention and consideration they so rightfully deserve."

TALL SHIPS such as the Esmeralda attracted some 1000 people to Long Island which was opened after Quincy residents and Mayor James Sheets urged that the location be made accessible for the Parade of Sail.

Sales, Crowds Up Many New Faces At Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The organizers of the annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale set out to attract new faces to this year's event. Judging from the reaction of many merchants the 1992 Sidewalk Sale has been a big success.

"I think we've drawn people here that have never been to the Sidewalk Sale before," said Kathy Missell of Infinity Books. Missell, Promotions Director for the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, credited extra advertising and the hard work of the Quincy Tourism Association as key reasons for the influx of, what seemed to be, first-time shoppers downtown.

The QCBPA, which sponsors the Sidewalk Sale, decided to change the format of the event from the traditional Thursday through Saturday and instead scheduled it for four days, Sunday through Wednesday.

"Hancock Street was a sea of people around 1 p.m. Sunday," said Mayor James Sheets. "I am thrilled with the turnout. It was absolutely fantastic. I understand the merchants are very happy and I understand that Sunday was as good as the best days in the past," he said.

"It's been very good. I think Sunday was better than any of us expected," Missell said.

Bob Colman owner of Colman's Sporting Goods was pleased by Sunday's crowd but was hesitant to call the new format a success. He said that the first day of the Sidewalk Sale traditionally draws a bigger crowd.

"There seems to be a good flow of people," Colman said Monday. "The Sunday turnout was good which was encouraging. But we have to take a good look at the next couple of days and then analyze it."

"Everytime you change the dates you wonder - are we doing something wrong?" said Charlie Ryder owner of Ryder's Curtain and Drapery Store.

"But the Sunday turnout was excellent and the crowds have been steady through Monday and Tuesday," Ryder said. "This shows that people are geared to the Sidewalk Bazaar. They know they can get good values."

"Sales are up, crowds are up," said Eileen Cohen, Executive Director of the QCBPA. "It can be attributed to the fact of doing the Sidewalk Sale in conjunction with the Quincy Tourism Association, the trolleys, the city's bicentennial and the Tall Ships. Many of the merchants have commented to me that there were a lot of out-of-towners on hand," she said.

A new feature of the Sidewalk Sale were the Trolley Bus Tours. Trolleys shuttled shoppers back-and-forth from Quincy Center to Quincy historic sites and to Marina Bay where some of the Tall Ships were docked.

"The trolleys are the best buy in town but people have not been using them in any great numbers," said Scotty Miller of the Quincy Tourism Association. "But we have brought a lot of people to town. The long-term impact for the city will be great."

"I think the trolley helped us Sunday," Ryder said. "I'm very happy we coincided with the Tall Ships."

Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site said she hopes the trolleys become a permanent part of Quincy's tourism campaign.

"The trolley is certainly an asset to promoting tourist sites. It is an enhancement to serving the visitor," Peak said.

She said that the trolleys can help improve the quality of a visitor's experience since persons unfamiliar with the city often have a difficult time locating some of the historic sites.

Peak also said she has noticed larger groups visiting Quincy's historic sites recently. "We are accommodating more people."

She attributed the increase to the new historic site highway signs "which help people find us" and to the trolleys.

"We have managed to create a feeling that Quincy is on the map," Miller said.

Miller also said he hopes the Blues Festival will become an annual event. The concert was held Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium and drew about 3,000 people.

"The atmosphere was just wonderful," Miller said. "We hope this is the start of something big. If we work at it we could make Quincy be to the blues as Newport is to jazz."

He said the concert would likely have drawn a bigger crowd if it did not have to compete with the Tall Ships and the fireworks display Sunday.

The Sidewalk Sale was scheduled to culminate Wednesday with a celebration of Quincy's 200th birthday. Cutting of the birthday cake and a Dixieland Band performance were to begin at 5:30 p.m. at Quincy Center Plaza.

Cohen said the Sidewalk Festival could not have been such a success without the hard work of the QCBPA Promotions Committee, Quincy Tourism Association and the City of Quincy.

"They all worked together to make it a wonderful event," Cohen said.

Thomas Berry, also of Quincy, won the second prize, a two and a half hour Tall Ship cruise donated by Traditional Tours of Norwell.

Court Order Allows NQ Bar To Remain Open

By STEVE KAVANAGH

A controversial North Quincy bar, The Sagamore Inn, obtained a temporary restraining order just a few hours before Quincy Police were to close the establishment last Friday.

The troubled barroom, located at 78 Sagamore St., across the street from the Welcome Young Playground, will likely remain open at least until late August or September.

If the Sagamore Inn's appeal is denied in Suffolk County Superior Court then the city will order the bar closed.

The Quincy License Board voted unanimously on Sept. 24, 1991 to revoke the bars license because of alleged drug dealing on the premises. However, the owners of the bar, Michael Domady, a Duxbury policeman, and Daniel O'Leary of Quincy, appealed the decision to the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission allowing the bar to remain open.

However, the ABCC upheld the Quincy decision. Attorney for the Sagamore Inn, Neal Brown, then appealed the ABCC finding to Suffolk County Superior Court. In the interim, an agreement was reached with the state Attorney General's office which allowed the bar to remain open while the case was pending.

The terms of the agreement were not fulfilled by the Sagamore Inn, according to Acting City Solicitor James Timmins.

The concern of this office was that the resolution of this matter was delayed several months. The reason we entered into the agreement was to expedite the resolution in court," Timmins said.

"Due to the delay, and what we believe was a failure of the Sagamore Inn to adhere to the agreement, I advised Sgt. Laracy and Chief (Francis) Mullen that the Sagamore Inn should be closed," Timmins said.

"Due to your breach of our agreement and the resulting delay in the disposition of this matter, I am advising you that Sgt. Laracy of the Quincy Police Department will be closing the Sagamore Inn," Timmins said Friday in a letter to Brown.

Brown then obtained a temporary restraining order from Suffolk County Superior Court preventing Quincy Police from closing the establishment.

"It's the legal process... We live with that. I'm sure we'll come to grips with it sometime or another," said Mullen, who is also a member of the License Board.

The bar has been troubled by drug-related problems in the past. A Quincy man was shot outside the bar following a fight which started inside the Sagamore Inn allegedly over a drug debt.

An undercover police informant made drug buys in August and September of 1991 at the Sagamore Inn and on two occasions was directed to a drug dealer by a bartender on duty at the time, according to testimony at last September's License Board hearing.

Johnston Returns On Interim Basis Litchfield Steps Down As Woodward Headmaster

Expressing a need to share more time with his family, Woodward School Headmaster Marshall B. Litchfield will retire in the fall after serving three years and be replaced by former headmaster Robert Johnston on an interim basis.

Litchfield's request to retire prior to the opening of school in the fall has been accepted by the newly formed Woodward School Board of Trustees. His announcement was not a surprise since Litchfield was expected to serve only one year as headmaster.

Litchfield succeeded Johnston who was headmaster for 10 years. As chairman of the Board of Trustees, Johnston was automatically named interim headmaster for one year. Johnston said he will return to his job with Flavin and Flavin Real Estate after a replacement is named.

"Under the circumstances, it would have been difficult to find someone to handle the situation. Because I have the experience, it was logical that I would fill in for one year. I'll then return to my job with Flavin and Flavin," Johnston said.

ROBERT JOHNSTON

MARSHALL LITCHFIELD

The Board of Trustees will form a search committee and advertise the position. Trustees hope to name a successor before the end of the next school year.

Reflecting on his decision, Litchfield, 59, expressed the need for more time with his family, especially his two grandsons, and to think about his future. After 31 years in education, the last three as the Woodward School headmaster, he said he feels fortunate to have been able to participate in the "growing up" of many young people in a variety of capacities from teacher, coach, counselor and principal.

Litchfield said the Woodward School has a special place in education as single sex institution. He also shares the sentiment of Mayor James Sheets that the school occupies a unique place in the history of Quincy.

"Without the support of Mayor Sheets, the Woodward School could not have survived," Litchfield said.

During his three years at Woodward, the school has experienced some dramatic changes as a result of a settlement of litigation with the city of Quincy. The Massachusetts Probate Court accepted the unified Board of Trustees as the authorized governing body Doesn't Make Sense, Does It?

Editor, The Quincy Sun: The Democratic-controlled State Legislature and Republican Gov. Bill Weld in their haste to create a new map settling the redistricting issue in a new 10-member U.S. Congress delegation have done a disservice to the entire state but especially those communities southeastern Massachusetts that have now been divided like spoils of war.

This legislative lottery cut Brockton in half between the 9th and 10th districts. Quincy goes to the 10th while next door neighbor Braintree is palmed off on the 9th district. Quincy now shares a congressional seat with Provincetown but not Braintree. Doesn't make sense, does it?

Obviously, Beacon Hill solons apparently didn't care about anything but the map being completed before Federal Judge Ted Harrington stepped in to settle the issue. Now, Massachusetts is going to have U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds named House chairman of the Fishing and Maritime Committee but New Bedford and half of Fall River will be represented in Congress by U.S. Rep. Barney Frank, D-Newton and the other half of Fall River by U.S. Rep. Joe Early, D-Worcester. Once again, this makes a lot of sense, right?

The only folks happy with this plan should be the Merrimack Valley and the Republicans. Everyone else comes up shortchanged in my estimation.

The Democrats have apparently adopted a D-Papa Gino's attitude: Get it cooked and serve it up fast. Southeastern Massachusetts is now portioned off like Sunday dinner into four, count 'em, four separate congressional entrees. It will be like a tower of babble for residents of the Cape, South Shore and southeastern Massachusetts. In the end, who benefits besides the lucky politicians? We are truly better when the State Legislature has adjourned, aren't we? I won't be losing any sleep over this issue, but it's irritating nevertheless.

Worrying Time In The 10th

You could say it's worrying time in the rambling new 10th Congressional District.

Gerry Studds has Quincy Democrats Paul Harold and William Delahunt to worry about as he tries to change seats. Both Delahunt and Harold are considered serious upset threats.

STUDDS

HAROLD

Delahunt and Harold, of course, have Studds to worry about instead of an open seat to shoot for. And they have one another to worry about.

And all three should do some worrying about Hingham Republican Dan Daly and Jon Bryan, the Cape Cod independent who gave Studds a good run two years ago, getting 47 percent of the vote.

DALY

The new moderate-conservative district fits both Daly and Bryan like a glove.

Studds lost his New Bedford power base in the redistricting shuffle and inherited Quincy. Quincy is a Democratic stronghold but not Studds country.

Quincy is the dominant community in the new district with Weymouth — which also has little in common with Studds — right behind.

If Harold or Delahunt could come out of these two communities with a big vote, Studds could be another missing face in the House of Representatives in January.

But they could knock each other out of contention by splitting the huge Quincy vote that is expected to turn out this year.

There are 15 Quincy candidates in six contests in the September Democratic primary which is expected to generate one of the heaviest votes here in many years.

The 15:

Steve McGrath, Michael Morrissey, Dorothy Shea, for state senate.

Mike Bellotti, Larry Chretien, Steve Colman, Susan Lydon Walsh, state representative First Norfolk District.

Ron Mariano and George Miller, state representative Third Norfolk District.

John Gillis and William Jensen, Norfolk County Commission.

Clifford Marshall, sheriff.

Ron Iacobucci, John Kerrigan, Daniel Flynn, Governor's Council, 4th District.

This would be a big boost to a lone Quincy Congressional candidate. But a 50-50 or 60-40 vote split wouldn't propel Harold or Delahunt very much.

Will one drop out and back the other to help bring a Congressional seat to Quincy where there hasn't been since the days of John Quincy Adams?

Harold definitely is in the race to stay. There is no turning back for him. He gave up his state senate seat and risks his political future to run for Congress in the then 11th Congressional district represented by Brian Donnelly who decided not to seek re-election. It's do or die for Harold.

Delahunt has nothing to lose. If he wins, he is the new Congressman. If he loses, he is still district attorney.

Right now, it looks like both are in it all the way. But, of course, things can change. Word off the political grapevine is that a few Quincy Democrats would like to get Harold and Delahunt together at a summit meeting in hopes of getting one to drop out and give the other clear sailing in Quincy.

Harold has conducted an active campaign and has been the most visible so far. And he has already covered a good part of the new Congressional map.

The day after the new districts were approved Harold was campaigning at the commuter boat landing in Hingham which is now with Quincy in the new district. On the same day, 14 of his supporters — including Councillor Peter Kolson — were at the Sagamore Bridge rotary in Bourne with campaign signs.

Harold has readied two television commercials he plans to use on a Boston station during the National Democratic Convention coverage and later on cable TV.

Studds looks more vulnerable this year since he went to Congress over 20 years ago. Harold or Delahunt could pull the rug from under him in the Democratic primary.

But don't overlook Daly in the November finale if he wins the Republican nomination or Bryan.

Daly isn't one to waste time. As soon as the new Congressional District was approved, putting Quincy and Hingham together, Daly was campaigning along Hancock St. in Quincy Center — right by the Harold and Delahunt campaign headquarters.

A conservative, he says he likes having Quincy in the new district and feels it will improve his chances.

"Quincy is moderate," he notes, "and that's not going to help a liberal like Studds."

Daly says he feels quite comfortable campaigning in Quincy. His wife, Dorothy Quincy, is a descendant of Col. John Quincy, grandfather of President John Quincy Adams, and for whom Quincy was named.

PAUL HAROLD got an unexpected boost in his Congressional bid from — of all people — Gov. William Weld, who actually backs Daly.

Weld spotted Harold at the reception for the Tall Ships captains at the State House Sunday, tapped him on the lapel and said: "You can win that thing. You can do it."

WELD

YOU MIGHT SAY one of Gerry Studds' ancestors has come back to haunt him. Sean Barry informs us that Studds is a descendant of Elbridge Gerry, a Marblehead native who was Massachusetts governor (1810-1812) and vice president under James Madison (1813-1814). Gerry was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence but is also known in history as the father of gerrymandering.

That was the term given to his attempt to redistrict Massachusetts in favor of his party (Democratic Republican) while he was governor.

Some 180 years later his descendant — who apparently was named after him — got a taste of gerrymandering — as New Bedford was redistricted away from him.

TWO POLITICAL FUNDRAISERS coming up, both billed as summer celebrations: Tonight (Thursday) for Mike Bellotti, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, East Squantum St. Music by disc jockey Mark McGillicuddy. Tickets $10.

And one for Steve McGrath, candidate for state senator, is set for Wednesday, July 22, 7:30 p.m. at the DAV Hall, 788 Liberty St., Braintree.

Tickets $10 per person and $15 per couple.

New Book On Quincy Past-Present Makes Debut

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A new book focusing on both the past and present of the City of Quincy is now available in bookstores, restaurants and other places throughout the city.

"The City of Presidents: A Quincy Guidebook" takes a look not only at Quincy's founding as a town in 1792 and its historical importance, but also at the restaurants, places of worship, recreation, night life and, of course, the historical sites that make Quincy today such an important and vibrant community.

Stan Nikkel, the book's author and owner of Sea Gull Publishing at 165 Washington St., said he initially decided to write the book when his natural interest in history made him aware of Quincy's great historical significance.

"American history is a hobby of mine, and I was impressed by the richness of Quincy's history," said Nikkel, who presented a copy of the book to Mayor James Sheets last Thursday at City Hall. "There is an abundance of (Quincy) events in the last 300 years that I found have not been very well documented for either the local people or the casual listener."

"When you put them all together, I think Quincy stands head and shoulders over every place else (in Massachusetts history) except Boston."

Nikkel said he used a number of sources while writing the book, which took about a year to complete. Among the more prominent, he said, were "Quincy: A Pictorial History," by Paul R. Lyons; "Three Hundred Years of Quincy: 1625-1925," by Daniel M. Wilson; "Quincy History," by H. Hobart Holly; and "The Quincy Sun's 'Historic Quincy: A Tourist Guide.'"

In addition, there were numerous other books, newspaper articles, conversations with residents and other sources that aided Nikkel in his completion of the work. Nikkel said he hoped the book would be interesting to both residents and tourists alike.

"I've tried to write an entertaining, easily-read book that shows not only the history but also the human side of Quincy," he said. "I hope it will appeal to both the tourist, the traveler, who can find out what went on here and also the enjoyment here, where to find a good meal, and so on, and also to the local resident who has lived here and enjoys reading about history."

Asked if he planned for the book's availability to the public to coincide with the arrival of the Tall Ships, the city's Bicentennial celebration and other recent events, Nikkel said he wanted all along to get the book out by early summer.

"The fact that it came out around the same time as those events is just an added benefit," he said. "I hope people can get it in their hands and find it useful."

The book costs $8.95 and can be found at various spots throughout the city, including Infinity Books, Handshakes Cafe, the Quincy Tourism Association, the Quincy College Bookstore and others. It will also be used as a fundraiser for both the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association and the Beechwood Community Life Center.

Norfolk County Sheriff's Office Secures Adult Education Grant

Sheriff Clifford Marshall announces the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office has secured an Adult Basic Education Grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education through 1995.

The first $21,500 installment of the Adult Basic Education Grant allows for the expansion of the current education program in place at the Norfolk County Correctional Center. The initial installment will pay for assessment testing of inmate residents to determine education and reading levels.

Additional grant monies will be acquired by the Sheriff's Office on a quarterly basis throughout the calendar year. The second installment of approximately $26,000 will be used to hire two part-time General Equivalency Diploma (G.E.D.) instructors. The education program currently consists of one full-time coordinator, one instructor and many volunteers teaching the G.E.D. math and English segments.

A typical G.E.D. instruction cycle lasts approximately three months. Recently, 17 inmate residents completed the test to achieve their G.E.D. administered at the correctional center. Inmates received two and a half days per month credit for participating in educational programs at the correctional center.

Program Services Chief Jim Kilcoyne said, "This grant will allow us to provide additional opportunities for inmates to acquire basic education skills."

Marshall said he is pleased the Norfolk

County Sheriff's Office can continue to provide basic education for inmates who may use the opportunity to learn a skill and potentially redirect their lives in a positive way."

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, in addition to the adult basic education program, offers an automotive and small engine repair program, special education instruction and a comprehensive substance abuse treatment program for inmate residents.

Beechwood Elder Action Receives $15,000 Grant

The Beechwood Community Life Center was granted $15,000 in UDAG funds for its Elder Action Program and Elderly Services by the City Council Monday.

Sharon Beals, executive director of Beechwood, told the Council that the Elder Action Program is not self-supporting and has been supplemented by funds from other Beechwood programs.

Elder Action activities and programs include a walking club, bowling, art classes, line dancing, exercise class, volleyball, cards and table games, Current Events Breakfast program, Alzheimer's Support Group, Multiple Sclerosis Support, home repairs, and a Community Garden.

Beals noted that almost 25 percent of Quincy's population can be considered "elder."

Council, Mayor At Odds Over Planning Director

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced he will seek a full-time college-trained professional planner to succeed Regis J. Harrington as City Planning Director.

Harrington resigned from the post, which pays $7,750 a year plus a $540 automobile allowance, for a better paying job in Medford.

July 16-22
33 Years Ago

The City Council was divided on the future of the head of the Planning Department with Councillors Joseph E. Brett and James R. McIntyre in favor of combining the job with that of City Engineer.

McIntyre called the full-time planner "a luxury we can't afford."

"The whole concept of employing out of town experts has its roots in the Plan E philosophy that Quincy people are inherently incapable of running their own government," he said.

City Councillors David S. McIntosh, Edna B. Austin and Charles L. Shea were opposed to the abolition of the post of Planning Director.

WEST-OF-TRACKS DEVELOPMENT

Mayor Della Chiesa said he will present the $700,000 so-called West-of-the-Tracks development to the City Council in November "and let the Council kick it around for a while."

The plans call for widening Granite St. underpass and extending Whitwell St. across Granite and into the Ross Parking area by way of an underpass under the Old Colony railroad tracks.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

NQ Alumni Theatre To Present 'Rumors'

The North Quincy Alumni Theatre (NQAT) will present the regional premiere of Neil Simon's farce "Rumors" for three consecutive weekends, July 17 and 18, July 23-25 and July 30-Aug. 1.

The show will be performed at 8 p.m. in the Black Box Theatre at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St. Tickets are $6 for general admission and $5 for students and senior citizens.

"Rumors" takes place at the townhouse of the deputy mayor of New York City, where he and his wife have invited four couples to celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary. The party never begins because it is revealed that the host has shot himself and his wife is missing.

One of the guest, his lawyer, decides on a cover-up, which becomes progressively more difficult to sustain as the other guests arrive, and nobody can remember who has been told what about whom.

The cast includes Kathryn Gralton as Chris Gorman, Jim Phelan as Ken Gorman, Jill Preston as Claire Ganz, Ashot Gheridian as Lenny Ganz, Larry Giannetti as Ernie Cusack, Jodie Ruffy as Cookie Cusack, Bob Heim as Glenn Cooper, Christine Carroll as Cassie Cooper, and Judy Austin as Officer Welch.

No Problems, No Arrests Reported

1000 View Tall Ships From Long Island

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

They would not be denied.

Approximately 1000 Quincy residents, familiar with the great vantage point of Boston Harbor from Long Island, risked police arrest to get to their favorite viewing area for Saturday's Tall Ships Parade of Sail.

The defiant, yet well-behaved contingent of spectators, passed through a police and national guard barrier without incident after being allowed access to nearby Moon Island.

On Friday, Boston Mayor Ray Flynn and Quincy Mayor James Sheets agreed to allow a limited amount of Quincy residents onto Moon Island to view the ships from the Boston Fire Academy. Long Island, a much better vantage point to watch the parade of sails because of its closer proximity to Boston Harbor, remained off limits.

In hindsight, letting the people onto Moon Island turned out to be an open door to Long Island.

About an hour before the parade was set to sail, several hundred people showed up at the guard shack at the entrance to Moon Island. The city prepared for the spectators by bringing in security and medical personnel, fresh drinking water and portable toilets.

Quincy contacted the MBTA which shuttled buses from the guard shack to Moon Island. Thirty minutes later, as many as 700 to 1000 people had gathered at the Fire Academy.

As the spectators watched the U.S.S. Constitution move into the harbor to lead the parade, thick, dark clouds and fog moved into the harbor, reducing visibility from Moon Island. Sheets said the crowd, which could see the Long Island bridge, was not happy with their vantage point. There were also rumors of some people, other than media, on Long Island.

"It was clear people we're not going to be happy viewing the ships from Moon Island, particularly when you could see the Long Island bridge," Sheets said Monday.

About 75 to 100 people broke through one police blockade on Moon Island, marched half way across the bridge to Long Island where they were met by National Guardsmen.

Several residents crawled under a military Jeep that blocked the bridge. Young children and a woman with a baby carriage squeezed past guardsmen who, linked their arms to form a human barricade.

Anticipating a possible confrontation, the mayor notified Chief Francis Mullen who contacted the supervisor for the Boston Police Department.

"I made a decision then that I could not have 200 people blocking the Long Island bridge. These are my people and when I saw them on that bridge I made a decision that I wasn't going to leave their fate in anyone else's hands."

The mayor then reached the barricade. "I told the guard that I was the mayor of Quincy and that I want to go through." Soon after, he talked to the ranking Boston police officer at the scene and they decided to let the people through and to re-position the guard and police personnel to the sea wall area at Long Island.

As the spectators walked the 2.5 mile route, many toting coolers, cameras and lawn chairs, Tony Siciliano and other emergency management personnel transported water, portable toilets and other supplies from Moon Island to the viewing area on Long Island.

The dark clouds turned out to be sort of an omen; as the first spectators arrived at their new viewing spot, the clouds lifted and the sun came out.

Police and the National Guard prevented spectators from climbing the hill near the Light House, which is the most dangerous part of the island because of sinkholes.

The crowd was well-behaved. There were no arrests, no problems and no injuries, Sheets said.

To transport the people back to Squantum, national guard vehicles from Boston and Quincy shuttled people from Long Island to the end of the bridge. From there, they boarded MBTA buses which brought them to the guard shack.

By 4 p.m., most the crowd had left the island. By the time Sheets returned at 7:15 p.m., the site was free from spectators and litter.

Reflecting on what turned out to be a long, arduous day, Sheets said he was happy with the way things turned out.

"I think everything worked out well. I'm glad the story ended happily. It's an occasion no one will ever forget."

Long Island day trippers were grateful that the city supplied food, water and other supplies. "Mayor Sheets and the city couldn't have done a better job of providing services for the people out on Long Island," said Fran Sheehan of North Quincy.

Although there were no incidents, some residents who did not make the trek to Long Island criticized the mayor's handling of the Long Island situation Saturday. Calling into WJLA's "Party Line" program Monday, some said he should not have allowed the people access to Long Island. Others said he was looking for positive press or had "cut a deal" with Flynn.

Sheets denied those charges. He said his actions before and during the Tall Ships parade were aimed at diffusing a potential confrontation and keeping spectators safe.

It was Sheets who asked Flynn to allow volunteers to clean the sea wall area for viewers but Flynn declined. Instead, Flynn suggested access to Moon Island, which turned out to be the foot in the door for Tall Ship watchers.

Asked whether the Moon Island accessibility was a mistake, Sheets said, "We probably would have had the same problem at the guard shack if we hadn't let the people get to Moon Island."

Sheets applauded the efforts of Police Chief Francis Mullen, Emergency Management Director Tony Siciliano, Boston police, guardsmen and MBTA General Manager John Haley.

"I think, all in all, given the circumstances, everything went well. Although I want to admit, I wouldn't want too many days like that."

Rep. Michael Morrissey, who also spent the day on Long Island, sent a letter to the MBTA, Boston Police, National Guard and Quincy's emergency management personnel commending their efforts.

"They all did an excellent job, especially the T which supplied shuttle buses from the island with little advanced notice," Morrissey said.

Morrissey Seeks Long Island Study Commission

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Rep. Michael Morrissey has filed legislation aimed at creating a commission which would study future uses of Long Island and open up communication among the two major players: the cities of Boston and Quincy.

Morrissey said he filed the bill Monday in an effort to "facilitate a lot of the questions which came up during the Tall Ships visit." In addition,

Morrissey said the commission would consider several important issues pertaining to the island, among them passive recreation, transportation, access, and preserving the island.

"The commission calls attention to the plight we (the city of Quincy) had with the city of Boston (during the Tall Ships visit). It's meant to open up some dialogue.

"I also think it (the commission) would go a long way toward helping in the planning and oversight of the future uses of the island. We want to be able to work in the future planning of the island," he said.

As originally proposed, the commission would comprise 11 members: three from the House, three from the Senate, three appointed by the governor as well as the mayor of Boston and mayor of Quincy or their designees.

Morrissey said the membership and makeup of the commission is not "hard and fast."

"I'm not adverse to expanding the commission to include residents. It's just a thought. It may be amended to expand the size of the commission. The membership and makeup of the commission is not hard and fast."

Morrissey said this bill calling for the commission will probably get a hearing when the Legislature reconvenes in September.

Besides examining future uses of Long Island, Morrissey said the commission would safeguard and preserve the historic sites on the island, some of which date back to the Civil War.

In addition, he envisions a public pier on Long Island similar to the pier constructed by the MDC and MWRA several years ago in Squantum near Marina Bay. With a public pier, Morrissey said Long Island could be connected to Marina Bay, the JFK Library and other Boston Harbor islands by water shuttle.

"Right now boats go from Rowe's Wharf (in Boston) to George's Island. There's no reason why they couldn't stop at Long Island if there were a pier there.

"Long Island is not part of the Boston Harbor park system. We could at least make it a part of the system.

I think it's something to consider," he added.

Chretien Urges Veto Override On State Education Spending

Larry Chretien, a Democratic candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, urges the legislature to override Governor Weld's expected veto of an additional $186 million for the state's public schools.

Weld has said that he will veto the funds because the legislature has not endorsed his plans for education reform.

"Bill Weld doesn't know a thing about public education and so he's holding the children of Massachusetts hostage to right-wing ideology," Chretien charged. "His plans for education are not what we need. What the schools need are the resources to provide our children with a proper learning environment."

Chretien, the councillor for Ward 3, added, "More than ever, education is the key to economic growth. For middle class children like we have here in Quincy, the public schools are essential to achieving the American Dream.

"Yet, of the 50 states, Massachusetts is near the bottom in the percentage of state dollars spent on education. We are going to have to change that, whether Weld likes it or not.

"Otherwise," he added,

"communities like Quincy are going to deteriorate year after year."

If elected, Chretien said his priorities would be helping to turn the economy around, making the state a partner in education reform, and protecting the environment.

The First Norfolk District comprises Montclair, most of Wollaston, North Quincy, Squantum and part of West Quincy.

Town Brook Flood Control Project Agreement Signed

The Local Cooperation Agreement, committing Massachusetts to the $10 million nonfederal share of the $40 million Town Brook Flood Control Project in Quincy and Braintree, was recently signed by Major General C.E. Edgar, III, chief of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and MDC

Commissioner M. Ilyas Bhatti.

Construction is slated to start later this year. The Army Engineers' New England Division will award the contract and provide onsite supervision to all construction activities.

Bhatti said the project will be beneficial, both in real dollars saved during storm events and protection of public safety.

"This project will virtually eliminate flooding in Braintree and Quincy, thereby relieving anxiety and hardships placed upon residents in these communities," he said.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said, "Smile at people. It takes 72 muscles to frown, and only 14 to smile!"

It has also been said that a smile costs nothing, but creates much. A smile enriches those who give. A smile can happen in a flash, but the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. None are so rich that they can get along without it, and none are so poor, but are richer for its benefit. A smile creates happiness in the home, and fosters good will in business. A smile cannot be bought, borrowed or stolen. A smile is something that is no earthly good to anybody until it is given away. If at some time you meet someone who fails to give you a smile, give one of your own. For nobody needs a SMILE as much as those who have none left to give ...

Morrisette Rebounds After Frustrating Loss

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team bounced back from its most frustrating loss of the year to win two in a row and an 8-3 win over Quincy Sunday improved its record to 14-3.

Morrisette is right behind Zone 6-leading Braintree.

Morrisette played Wollaston last night (Wednesday), will host Weymouth tonight (Thursday) at Adams Field at 8:30, will be home to Braintree Friday night at 8:30 and will host Canton Monday at 8:30 at Adams. All games are important as the top three teams will qualify for the state tournament and Braintree, Morrisette, Wollaston and Weymouth are only 2 1/2 games apart.

Matt O'Toole, making only his second start of the season after a variety of ailments, went five strong innings against Quincy to pick up his first win. He allowed only two hits, struck out seven and walked four. Only one run off him was earned.

Tom Malvesti pitched the last two innings, allowed two unearned runs and striking out four.

Morrisette scored four runs in the first inning, sending nine men to the plate.

Pat Shea reached on an error, Dave Reinhart singled but was thrown out trying to steal, and, with two outs, Chris MacDonald walked, Tom Balzano singled home Shea, Mark Kelleher reached on an error, Dan Duncan singled scoring MacDonald, Balzano scored on a delayed double steal and Kelleher scored on Adam Calvert's single.

Morrisette added a run in the third, two in the fourth and one in the fifth. It had 12 hits, including two doubles by Shea, two hits and an RBI for Balzano, a double and single by Kelleher, two hits and two RBIs for Duncan, two hits for Calvert and one each by Reinhart and O'Toole.

Terry Gaido was the starter and loser for Quincy. Garret Butkuss had a fine game both ways, having a double, single and a walk. John Gladu had a double and Gaido and Mark Carlson singles.

In its previous game Morrisette was fortunate to come up with a 2-0 victory over Randolph.

After stranding 14 runners in six innings, Morrisette loaded the bases with two outs. A pop fly was dropped when the third baseman and shortstop collided and the only runs of the game scored.

"That was a terrible play," said Randolph coach John Mariani, a former Quincy High player. "A Little League could have caught that one. It was the shortstop's ball. He had the best view coming in on the play."

"We got a lucky break," said Morrisette coach Dave Perdios. "Their pitcher (Mark Mischley) should have been out of the inning. But it was about time we caught a break."

Lefty Sean Donovan pitched six strong innings for Morrisette, allowing only two hits and walking three to pick up his fifth straight win without a loss. At one time he retired 14 straight batters.

He was lifted for a pinch hitter and, after two walks, Mike Patch came in and struck out the last two batters to preserve the win and get a save.

Morrisette had seven hits, three of them infield hits, and nine walks, four intentional. Its 16 runners left on base were a season's high. Morrisette played errorless ball and had two fine double plays.

MacDonald had two hits, Robbie Kane had a double, Shea two singles and Balzano, Reinhart and Noel DiBona infield hits.

Earlier Morrisette dropped a 5-4 decision to Weymouth in eight innings in a game it won't soon forget.

Pat Clifford made his second straight start and, as was the case in his first start, was hurt by poor defense. He trailed, 2-0, after three innings without giving up a hit.

Weymouth pitcher Kevin Shaw was blowing the ball past Morrisette batters, striking out eight of the first nine batters he faced. He had 13 strikeouts.

Morrisette had men in scoring position with less than two outs in the first three innings but left 10 runners stranded.

Morrisette tied the score in the fourth on a walk to Kelleher, a double by Reinhart, Clifford's sacrifice fly and an error.

Weymouth went ahead, 4-2, in the fifth off two more unearned runs.

With the score 4-3, Morrisette tied it in the seventh and had a golden opportunity to win it.

MacDonald singled, Balzano walked and Kelleher singled home MacDonald with the tying run. With the infield in, Clifford hit a one-hopper to the shortstop and Balzano was forced at the plate. With one out and the bases still loaded, Shea hit back to the pitcher, who surprisingly threw to first, taking off the force play, but Kelleher was still cut down at the plate.

Weymouth won it in the eighth on a single, stolen base and another single. Morrisette went down quietly in the bottom half.

Clifford pitched six-hit ball, struck out eight and walked only one. Only two runs were earned.

Kelleher went 3-for-3, including a triple and MacDonald, Serge Belcastro, Reinhart and Shaw each had a hit.

Morrisette lost one of its most faithful followers when Augie Bergonzi, uncle of Morrisette manager and former coach Ray Cattaneo, died. He followed the team for years and will be missed by the players, coaches and fans.

Kiwanis took an early 3-0 lead as Chris Curry scored on singles by Toland and Mark Kelly. Josh Echelle single home two in the third and Curry drove in another with his second hit.

Powers doubled Fitzpatrick and Regan home after they had reached on bunt singles, and Cable tied it as Welch singled, stole second and third and scored on an overthrow.

Kiwanis won it in the fifth as Jason Page walked and Echelle and Matt O'Mahoney singled. Toland hit a fly to left that was misplayed for a three-run error, allowing three runs to score.

Fitzpatrick had two hits for Cable, while Echelle had three hits and Curry and Kelly two each for Kiwanis.

Wollaston Takes 3 In Tourney Berth Quest

The Wollaston Legion baseball team won three of its last four games to improve to 13-5 and remain in the thick of the battle for a state tournament berth.

The top three teams in Zone 6 will qualify and Wollaston, in third place, is battling Braintree, Morrisette and Weymouth for a berth. Only 2 1/2 games separate the top four teams.

Wollaston faced Morrisette last night (Wednesday), will host Quincy Saturday at 8 at Adams Field, will play at Canton Sunday and will be home to Randolph next Tuesday night at 8:30 at Adams.

Wollaston defeated Milton Monday night, 7-4, with Steve Manning pitching the first 5 2/3 innings, giving up six hits and striking out three. He allowed four runs, but only two were earned. Steve Loud finished up and gave up one hit.

Terry Manning went 2-for-3 and Pat Gallagher, Chris Cunio and Bob Fitzpatrick had hits.

Last Saturday Wollaston played its worst game of the year as the defense fell apart and Weymouth romped, 14-4.

Cunio went 3-for-4 and Jeff Craig went 2-for-3 for Wollaston.

In its previous game Wollaston defeated Holbrook, 11-6, with Terry Manning going 4 1/3 innings and Steve Manning the final 2 2/3 innings.

Fitzpatrick went 3-for-4, Scott Kohler, Cunio and Loud had hits and Craig scored two runs.

Earlier Wollaston edged Milton, 6-5, with Loud's two-run single in the top of the sixth the deciding blow.

Duane Holmes also drove in two runs and Shaughnessy, who actually played his first game with the Oilers by throwing two touchdowns passes in a pre-season win over Ocean State, had a big night against the Cowboys.

Shaughnessy passed to Alan Monteiro for 32 yards and then scored the first touchdown from the one as Randolph came back from an early 6-0 deficit to take a 7-6 lead.

The former Quincy star had 75 yards rushing in the first half and early in the second half he hit Mark Harding with a 51-yard pass, setting up Mike Waithe's touchdown run. Shaughnessy also ran it in for a two-point conversion.

Shaughnessy's brother Chris is also a member of the Oilers, who defeated the Marlboro Shamrocks for the league title two years ago and lost to Marlboro in the championship game a year ago.

Randolph and Marlboro will meet Friday night at 7:30 at Randolph Memorial Field.

The Quincy Church Bowling League recently observed its 76th anniversary with its annual awards banquet.

Save Gas and Money

The league is probably the oldest running candlepin league in the state if not New England and possibly the country.

The league started 76 years ago at the old Quincy YMCA on Washington St. and run continuously ever since.

The league has been recognized by Don Gillis on Channel 5. It has bowled at the old Lincoln Alleys and also in Quincy Square in back of the old Foy's Market.

The present president and secretary is George Stephens of the First Presbyterian Church.

Four Residents To Participate In Dana-Farber Bike Ride

Four Quincy residents have registered to participate in the 13th annual Pan-Mass Challenge (PMC), the country's biggest bicycling fundraiser and the largest single fundraiser for Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The 192-mile, two-day ride from Sturbridge to Provincetown will take place Aug. 8-9. An 80-mile One Day Challenge, beginning in Sturbridge and finishing in Bridgewater, is offered for the fourth time this year.

Quincy residents scheduled to ride in the two-day challenge are Bill Cohen, Peter Kennedy, Mary Travers and Raymond Waldron.

Waldron, 21, has been riding in the PMC for years. Cohen, 34, has been riding in the PMC two years. For Travers, 27, this is her second PMC. Kennedy, 46, is making his PMC debut.

The PMC expects a 35 percent increase in riders over 1991, to more than 1500, which translates to hundreds of thousands of additional dollars, paving the way for a record-setting goal of $1.7 million.

Cronin Asks Gallagher To Debate The Issues

Republican candidate for state representative Michael J. Cronin has asked fellow GOP candidate Susan Gallagher to join him a debate of the issues.

Cronin has appealed to state GOP Chairman Leon Lombardi to devise a schedule and format for the forum which he believes should be held in the immediate future. Both Cronin and Gallagher are seeking the state representative seat in the First Norfolk District.

In a letter to Lombardi, Cronin said, "If we are to be victorious in November, we must at once allow the voters to begin the process of comparing and contrasting the Republican candidates."

Cronin said he believes the Democrats have handed the Republicans a number of new issues in recent weeks. He pointed out that only one Democratic state rep voted against the House version of the budget which some analysts believe is up to $750 million out of balance.

"It is amazing how quickly the Democrats have forgotten what happens when the state spends more money than it takes in. If the House budget were to become law, we would be forced to either raise taxes or as a result of borrowing, return to the devastating position of near junk bond status," Cronin said.

Cronin also expressed concern with the joint

House and Senate constitutional convention on term limitations which was cancelled due to a lack of a quorum. "Throughout my involvement in volunteer public service, whether as an associate School Committee member or as a Registrar of Voters, I have made it a point to attend all meetings, regardless of what issues were on the agenda."

"For paid elected officials to duck the issue of term limitations by refusing to show up at a scheduled session is disgraceful," said Cronin, a supporter of term limitations. He added he believes the legislature will continue to avoid discussing the issue as long as there is a Democratic majority.

Cronin, in his first bid for elected office, recently held a fundraiser at Amelia's at Marina Bay. The event was attended by more than 200 supporters.

Cronin was introduced by longtime friend State Sen. Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) who recalled that when he ran for the senate for the first time in 1990, he was told by a number of skeptics, "Good luck, you're a nice guy, but you're a Republican and you don't have a chance."

Hedlund eventually turned away Democratic Rep. Bob Ambler and won the seat. He urged the crowd to send Cronin to Beacon Hill also.

Driver Charged In Death Of Quincy Man Released On Bail

A Hanson man charged with drunk driving and killing a Quincy man who was changing a tire on Quincy Shore Drive Saturday was released from custody after family members posted $1000 cash bail after his arraignment Monday.

Michael F. Jones, 32, pleaded innocent in Quincy District Court to charges of motor vehicle homicide, operating under the influence of alcohol, speeding and driving to endanger in the death of 44-year-old U.T. Hoang.

Jones, who was charged with his third drunk driving offense, is free on bail until his next court appearance.

Jones is scheduled to return to Quincy District Court Nov. 17 for a pretrial conference. However, the police prosecutor said the district attorney's office will most likely present the case to a grand jury before Nov. 17.

Jones, a tug boat operator, was convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol and spent a week in jail in 1988, State Police Prosecutor David Chaisson told Quincy District Court Judge David E. Stevens.

Chaisson, reading from probation department records, said Jones received the jail time because he did not comply with terms of his Quincy District Court sentence. The prosecutor did not know what the terms were.

The 1988 conviction was Jones' second drunken-driving court case, Chaisson said.

Jones was acquitted in Barnstable County sometime before the 1988 conviction, the prosecutor said. Jones was acquitted of driving under the influence of alcohol after a jury trial, Chaisson said.

Jones was arrested by State Police Saturday afternoon after his car struck Hoang's disabled car in the right lane of Quincy Shore Drive. Hoang, who was changing a flat tire, was pinned to the curb. He died several hours later at Boston City Hospital.

Jones remained at the scene until police arrived.

Chaisson told The Quincy Sun Tuesday that Jones refused to take a breath test after Saturday's accident. He said the Registry of Motor Vehicles will notify Jones that the refusal results in an automatic 120-day driver's license suspension under state law.

Chaisson asked that Jones be held in lieu of $20,000 with surety or $2,000 cash bail, but Judge Stevens agreed to defense lawyer Joel Fanton's request for $1,000 cash bail.

Innocent pleas to all charges were entered on behalf of Jones.

No one from the victim's family was in court.

Hoang, formerly of Bronx, N.Y., had recently moved in with his brother on South St. in Quincy.

Jones, a native of Dorchester, has lived with his brother in Hanson for the past year, his lawyer said.

Jones served in the U.S. Coast for five years and was honorably discharged. He has worked for Boston Harbor Pilots as a tugboat operator four years, Fanton said.

Temporary Night Time Parking Ban Downtown Project In Smooth Start

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The second half of the Quincy Square traffic and sidewalk improvement project began Monday night with only one minor hitch: 15 cars illegally parked in the work zone had to be towed to a nearby parking lot.

DPW Operations Chief Lester Gerry, named project manager by DPW Commissioner David Colton, said some motorists ignored the nighttime parking ban in the work zone on Hancock St. from Granite St. to School St. However, the unforeseen hindrance was not expected to delay the project.

"For the most part, it all went very smoothly," Gerry said, commenting on the first day of construction. "Some people ignored the no parking signs but we managed to get them out of the way. We towed 15 cars between 7 to 11:30 p.m. to the Hancock parking lot at no expense to the owners."

"Other than that, everything went okay," he said.

The nighttime parking ban, which was posted with signs, was put into effect at 6 p.m. Monday, the first day of the $802,000 project. The restriction was put into place to allow workers from Derbes Bros. in Quincy to start cold planing Hancock St., the first phase of the downtown refurbishing project.

The cars were towed by two trucks from Petar's Automotive to allow a cold planer to scrap away excess layers of asphalt on Hancock St. Gerry said he expected the cold planning to be completed Tuesday evening.

Once the planing is completed, Gerry said the ban on parking from 6 p.m. to 7 a.m. on Hancock St. from School St. to Granite St. will be lifted.

The refurbishing project is essentially the continuation of the Quincy Center Traffic

Police Safety Seminar For Women

Nearly 100 people attended a safety seminar for women Monday night sponsored by the Quincy Police Department.

The seminar at St. Mary's Church, "Personal Safety for Women," was in response to neighborhood concerns regarding two recent attempted rapes on Willard Street in West Quincy.

"I think the seminar was well received--there was a lot of give and take," said Crime Prevention Officer Bob Hanna.

Hanna, Police Chief Francis Mullen, Lt. Terrance Kelly, officer Mary Main and Det. Kevin Murphy discussed how residents can make their homes safer.

"More than 50 percent of rapes occur in the victims' home," Hanna said.

Also discussed were myths and facts about rape and self defense.

"We want to help women use prevention to keep themselves from being a victim. By educating them on where rapes occur, how they occur and what they can do to avoid putting themselves in those situations," Hanna said.

Informational pamphlets on rape prevention, home security and sexual assault were also distributed. The pamphlets are available to residents at the police station.

Residents also discussed other neighborhood crime with police. Businessman Jack McDonald, owner of The Common Market restaurant offered the use of his business on Willard Street for a meeting to set up a Neighborhood Watch program with police.

Hanna said he stressed that people should always call police if they see something they think is suspicious.

"Often times people feel intimidated about calling police," he said.

Hanna said that for a city of Quincy's size the Pneumatic Scale Possibility? Stop & Shop Still Looking For 'Super Store' Site

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Stop & Shop will not be moving to the Boston Gear property in Norfolk Downs but the company still wants to build a "Super Store" in the area—possibly at the Pneumatic Scale site nearby on Newport Ave.

However, a Pneumatic Scale official called reports of a deal with Stop & Shop "speculation."

Meanwhile, Shaw's Supermarket's is reportedly considering purchasing the Boston Gear site.

"We will continue to look for a site with more parking to service the customers of our Newport Avenue store," said Stop & Shop spokesman Christine Filardo.

When asked whether Stop & Shop is negotiating to purchase the Pneumatic Scale Corp. property at 65 Newport Ave., Filardo would not deny it. "It is not our policy to discuss a potential site... We have no site at this time," she said.

City of Quincy Planning Director, Rich Meade said he was unaware of any negotiations between Stop & Shop and Pneumatic Scale.

Meade said he could understand Stop & Shop pursuing the Pneumatic Scale site but said he would be surprised if Pneumatic Scale were to move.

"Pneumatic Scale has made significant improvements to their physical plant and they also created a park on their property recently," Meade said.

"They have a nice healthy environment. I can't imagine they'd be interested (in selling)," he said.

Boston Gear had planned on moving its offices to Stop & Shop headquarters in Quincy Center while Stop & Shop would move its offices to the Boston Gear site along with a Super Stop & Shop store.

That deal is now off the table.

"We will stay here and continue to try and find a buyer," said Boston Gear vice president Thomas Galvin.

Galvin denied that Pneumatic Scale was now looking to move to the Boston Gear site.

"Pneumatic Scale is definitely not looking at our property, but I understand Stop & Shop is looking at Pneumatic Scale," Galvin said.

Jay Corbett, personnel director at Pneumatic Scale, said he was unaware of any negotiations between his company and Stop & Shop.

"We have no plans to move in the immediate future," Corbett said.

Stop & Shop wants to move its supermarket at 141 Newport Ave. to a bigger site with more parking.

"We assessed and evaluated the Boston Gear property but it just wasn't a feasible site for a Super Stop & Shop," said Filardo.

Mayor James Sheets said he has heard rumors about Stop & Shop negotiating for the Pneumatic Scale property.

"I don't think there is any question that Stop & Shop has a problem with parking. Certainly any site in that general area would be beneficial," he said.

"I would also have to see what effect that (move) to Pneumatic Scale would have on the community... I really don't know. The site hasn't been researched," Sheets said.

"I believe there were too many obstacles (at the Boston Gear site) for Stop & Shop," said Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers. The site is divided between Wards 5 and 6 and the current store is located in Ward 3.

"We still have to keep a sharp eye on what's going in there," said Ward 5 Councillor Chuck Phelan. "We're going to have to work with Boston Gear and the neighbors so that whatever does go in their works to the benefit of both parties."

"Residents in Ward 3 are concerned and have questions," said Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien.

"This raises the question of what is planned for the Boston Gear and Newport Ave. Stop & Shop sites? We have to be concerned if it is something that could create a negative impact on the area."

Filardo said that the current Stop & Shop would be remodeled for other retail use if the store moves to a new site.

Mark Wallace, a commercial realtor representing Shaw's, said that Shaw's is still interested in the site.

"I think it would be good for the community. Competition means lower prices for the people of North Quincy," Wallace said.

Concerns about traffic would have to be addressed, Wallace said. He also said that a supermarket would be more favorable to the neighborhood than some other possible uses of the site which could be detrimental to the area.

The site is also zoned industrial and would have to be changed to retail by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Ayers said he would like to see an industrial operation similar to Boston Gear at the site.

"Boston Gear has been a good neighbor to the city, a big tax payer and they have employed a lot of people," he said.

Ayers also said keeping the site industrial would have the least detrimental effect on the neighborhood.

He said Shaw's would have to come up with plans to alleviate traffic to prevent the area from being "strangled."

"Shaw's is going to have to resolve the same situation as Stop & Shop as far as I'm concerned," said Phelan.

"It's up to them to do something about traffic congestion. Shaw's will have to meet with the neighbors, etc.," Phelan said.

"The two major concerns I see are access to the site and traffic," he said. "That section of Hancock Street is overburdened right now."

"Access and egress... What are your access points?" said Meade. He noted that the only way in and out of the site at present are through two small streets.

"Boston Gear as we know it now does not generate that much traffic," Meade said. "But retail traffic flow is constant."

Neighbors will get a chance to voice their concerns and hear about the plans of Shaw's or any other retailer for the site. The change in zoning requires public hearings.

Real Brick To Accent New Downtown Sidewalks

The second half of the Quincy Center Downtown Traffic and Sidewalk Improvement Project is essentially the same as the first half completed two years ago with one exception.

Instead of accenting the new sidewalks on Hancock St. from Granite St. to School St. with stamped red concrete or bolminite, the curbs of the cement sidewalks will be lined with real brick. Red concrete was used for the first part of the project on Hancock St. from Granite St. to Dimmock St.

The faux brick did not win many fans, including Mayor James Sheets. He said the faux brick was used in the first phase because the budget could not afford real brick.

"I don't like the other stuff (bolminite) either. I never did. It was a question of working within the budget of my predecessor," Sheets said Tuesday.

With the bolminite fading to a pinkish hue in some areas, an effort may be made to replace the red concrete with real bricks.

Sheets said he may solicit private donations to replace the bolminite with real brick after work on the new Town Common project near McIntyre Mall is completed. Plans for the common are expected to be released in two weeks, the mayor said Tuesday.

Part of the town common project calls for the concrete walkway in front of new City Hall to be replaced with brick pavers donated by private citizens and business. The pavers will cost $40 to $50 and proceeds from the sale will help offset the cost of the project.

Sheets said he wants to see how successful the brick paver solicitation is before seeking donations for real brick accent along the sidewalks on Hancock St. from Granite St. to Dimmock St.

"I don't like artificial things, I think real things. If we can raise the money (to replace the faux brick with real brick) outside the city budget, we'll do that," he said.

The mayor said he would not use any of next year's Community Development Block Grant money to replace the faux brick. He has earmarked that grant for the Quincy 2000 downtown revitalization project.

The downtown street and sidewalk refurbishing project is funded by state road monies and the CDBG federal grant.

Lester Gery, operations manager for the downtown improvement project, said he did not know how much money is being spent on the real bricks. However, he did say real bricks cost a "couple of bucks more" a square foot than the bolminite.

Mariano Bill Would Create State Workfare System

Rep. Ron Mariano (D-Quincy) has filed legislation that would establish a workfare system in Massachusetts.

The bill would require those individuals who receive public assistance to perform 24 hours of public service weekly to the city or town they reside in or to a non-profit organization in need of volunteer services.

"The bill is different than other proposals in particular because of the different options and choices it offers to those individuals who would be required to work under it," Mariano said.

If enacted, the legislation would exempt single parent households with pre-school age children.

Harold Position Stronger

Most political observers agree that Bill Delahunt made the right decision when he dropped out of the 10th Congressional District race.

And, some add, it was the decent thing to do.

Although both Delahunt and Paul Harold were considered strong threats to Gerry Studds with Quincy in the new district most seemed to lean toward Harold as having the better shot at unseating Studds.

HAROLD

Harold had conducted the more active and more visible campaign covering more ground than Delahunt in the old 11th district and then in the new 10th.

As state senator Harold has had to hit the campaign trail every two years while Delahunt, as district attorney, only had to campaign every six years when he first took office and now every four years. He has had opposition only once since 1976.

And in between campaigns, Harold has paid close attention to his constituents spending considerable time in his state senatorial district (Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon) tending to their needs.

A district attorney doesn't get that close to his constituents, has lower mileage traveling in political circles and isn't thought of too often by voters unless a murder case or some other major crime breaks in the country.

Because of his close relationship with his constituents, Harold was better organized with instant supporters who were off and running with him as soon as he threw his hat into the Congressional ring.

He got a head start on Delahunt and maintained it even though the latter was effectively raising money for an advertising blitz and could have caught up.

There were two other good reasons for Delahunt to bow out.

One, of course, is the fact that both he and Harold were running out of Quincy which meant the pair would be splitting the crucial big Quincy vote.

The two probably would have done each other in making it most difficult — if not impossible — for one of them to wrest the Democratic nomination away from Studds.

The other reason is that when Delahunt and Harold began their campaign, Quincy was in Brian Donnelly's 11th Congressional district and the seat was wide open with Donnelly not seeking re-election.

At the time, no one was sure if the 11th district would remain intact or be re-shaped into other districts.

When Quincy wound up in the new 10th district along with Studds, it changed things more for Delahunt than for Harold.

"The rationale for my candidacy has been eviscerated" (by the redistricting) Delahunt was quoted.

A run against Studds in the new 10th district would be counterproductive he noted, because he has "no major disagreements" with Studds on important issues.

"He and I share similar positions on where we ought to be going as a state and a nation," he was quoted.

Delahunt also acknowledged that the vote splitting in Quincy "was a political factor" in his decision to withdraw from the race.

Delahunt got out after Harold threatened a suit to keep the ballots from being printed with Delahunt's name on them after he missed filing deadline to declare which district he was running in.

There are those who think Delahunt hoped to keep his name on the ballot not as an active candidate but as a spoiler to take votes away from Harold.

The pair were once pretty close, but not so close now although they are friendly.

There's no doubt Delahunt's name on the ballot — even if he didn't campaign — would hurt Harold. But in the long-run, it wouldn't help Delahunt either and may be that was another good reason to bow out.

He still has re-election as district attorney to think about 1994. A weak showing in the Congressional race whether as a name-only or active candidate — might encourage prospective challengers two years from now.

In stepping aside, Delahunt leaves Harold in a much stronger position and as a bigger threat to Studds.

The new district stretches from Quincy to Provincetown and for the most part is moderate-conservative.

It fits Harold better than a liberal like Studds. But Studds has the better name recognition and much more money.

With Delahunt out of the race, Harold should find it easier to raise the money he needs to wage a strong campaign through the district. Some of the money that might have gone to Delahunt might come Harold's way now.

Quincy hasn't had a resident Congressman since the days of John Quincy Adams. Harold, many think, could be the next one.

And maybe Delahunt might be credited with an assist.

DID YOU GET a good view of the Tall Ships? Well, Howard and Janet Crowley really had front row seats. Howard, a member of the Park-Recreation Board and Janet, who works in the city auditor's office, were guests aboard the Boston tow boat "Harold Reinauer."

The Reinauer was selected to tow the USS Constitution (Old Ironsides) as it led the parade of Tall Ships into Boston Harbor.

It was strictly a case of who-you-know, the Crowleys frankly admit. Howard's brother, Paul, works for the towboat company.

Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

WHIPLASH

The term "Whiplash" is most often used to describe a type of neck injury that occurs when a person is involved in a "rear-end" automobile accident. The sudden jolt from behind causes the unsuspecting driver's neck to snap backwards quickly, and then whip forward violently. This rapid bending backwards and forward, or hyperextension-hyperflexion, of the neck injures the neck muscles and ligaments which support the neck and oftentimes displace of the neck bones.

Some whiplash injuries cause immediate problems, but it is not unusual for hours, days or even weeks to pass before the neck, back, or head pain becomes evident. Every day people walk away from accidents believing that they are not seriously hurt because they did not lose any blood or because they were told at the emergency room that there were no broken bones. The misalignment of the neck bones caused by the whiplash injury may lead to neck pain or stiffness, headaches, dizziness, blurred vision, nausea and swelling, tingling or numbness in the shoulders, arms, hands and fingers.

After any incident in which your neck may have been injured, even if the symptoms are not immediately apparent, it is essential that you have an examination by someone who is trained to examine the spine and related structures. Chiropractors understand the dynamics of the whiplash injury and are especially skilled in treating such conditions.

Downtown Project Begins

Improvement Project completed on Hancock St. from Granite St. to Dimmock St. two years ago.

The second half of the project calls for the repaving of Hancock St. and new concrete sidewalks from Granite St. to School St., and Granite St. to the Parkingway. Thirty-four black antique street lights, similar to those installed two years ago, will be erected in the same area.

New sidewalks will also be poured on Revere Rd. and Cottage Ave and portions of Chestnut St., Cliveden St. and Maple St.

However, the second phase of the project includes one slight variation from the first phase: real brick accent on the sidewalks instead of the red stamped concrete, also known as bolomite.

In addition, cast iron tree grates measuring three feet by six feet will be placed along the new sidewalks. The grates will be spaced roughly 30 to 50 feet apart, Gerry said, depending on underground utilities.

Underground utilities may also decrease the number of trees planted. At the moment, Gerry said plans call for 90 to 100 trees to be planted on both sides of Hancock St.

Specific tree types have not been selected yet. However, Gerry said taller, slimmer trees will be planted on the west side of Hancock St. while broader, blossoming trees will be planted on the east side of the street.

The entire project is expected to be completed by early November, before the holiday shopping season and the city's Christmas parade, Gerry said.

Work on the new sidewalks was scheduled to start Wednesday or Thursday on the western side of Hancock St. in front of Stephen Leigh Jewelers. The work will proceed southbound on Hancock St. in 500 foot increments, Gerry said.

Once the sidewalk work reaches School St., it will loop around and continue along the eastern side of the street, finishing where it began at the Granite St.-Hancock St. intersection.

Sidewalk work will be done in three phases: remove old sidewalks, fix the curbs and compact the sub base, and the pour the new concrete.

The sidewalk work will coincide with the removal of parking meters. As old sidewalks are ripped up, meters will be uprooted, Gerry said.

Free on-street parking for up to two hours will be permitted during construction as conditions permit.

Additional downtown parking will be permitted on secondary streets including Cottage Ave. and Hancock Court.

Gerry said the sidewalk portion should be completed in six weeks. During that time, he said the city will do all to ensure minimal disruption to local businesses.

He noted ramps with hand railings for handicapped and elderly access will be placed in front of stores impacted by sidewalk work.

Also, the city's field office at 1452 Hancock St. will be staffed daily by Robert Hoyt, a city engineer, and Rodney Spear, a college intern. They will keep local merchants and press posted.

The office can be reached by calling 770-2493 or 376-1902.

"We understand the inconvenience for the business owners," Gerry said. "We're trying to help them through this. We'll do everything we can to ease any inconvenience."

Sheets added, "We're really trying not to disrupt the retail flow. We'll closely monitor things. We're very sensitive to the business community."

After the sidewalks are in, the trees will be planted, probably in September. Gerry said it will take about two weeks for all of the trees to be planted.

The last phase of the project will be the installation of the matching antique street lamps. The mayor said half of the 34 lights have been sponsored by private citizens and groups at $2,500 each.

The lights will likely be installed in October. "Our ultimate goal is to have the project completed before Thanksgiving," Gerry said.

Council Indicates Support For Project West Of RR Tracks

Six members of the City Council indicated they would support a proposal to create a new commercial and retail development across the railroad tracks from the Ross parking area.

Councillors Edna B. Austin, Thomas S. Burgin, David S. McIntosh and John J. Quinn voted for it at an informal conference while Carl W. Anderson and William C. Ellis were not present but recorded in favor.

Absent without commitment were James R. McIntyre and Charles L. Shea while Joseph E. Brett said he was reserving his decision.

On the strength of it, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa prepared to ask permission from the State Emergency Finance Board to borrow $800,000 for the project plus off-street parking in Norfolk Downs.

LARGEST FIELD

Frank J. D'Agostino of Dedham withdrew as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 13th District but the remaining field — three Republicans and nine Democrats — was the largest in years.

Seeking the Republican nomination to succeed Richard B. Wigglesworth of Milton, who was retiring after 30 years, were William W. Jenness of Quincy, Hjalmar Peterson of Brockton and Harold Putnam of Needham.

The Democrats were Francis H. Roy and David J. Crowley of Quincy, Edward J. Dwyer and Michael DeSimone of Boston, Richard E. McCormack of Braintree, William A. Connell Jr. of Weymouth and Hollis M. Mosher, James A. Burke and Peter G. Fallon of Milton.

CITATION TO GEORGE

Mayor Della Chiesa nominated Louis C. George, Lebanese-born former city councillor, for the good citizenship citation awarded annually by Freedom, Inc., to a Quincy citizen of foreign birth.

Long Island A Hidden Jewel Sinking Into Neglect

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Former U.S. House Speaker Tip O'Neill once said, "All politics is local" and thanks to the Sail Boston '92 celebration honoring the visiting Tall Ships, the issue of public access to Long Island is once again on the front burner of local politics.

Long Island remains a hidden jewel in Boston Harbor sinking into the quicksand of neglect over the past 15 years. Isn't it time to go beyond the hollering and bickering of recent between Boston and Quincy officials? Isn't it time to end past neglect focusing on the future use and full potential of this patch of land? Past relationships between Boston and Quincy have not been the greatest and at times the Neponset Bridge takes on the qualities of the now-departed Berlin Wall—a physical and psychological barrier to communication between peoples. But as James Turner once said, "Let us not look back in anger nor forward in fear but around in awareness."

As a child, I often visited Long Island with my family to see my father's stepfather at the Long Island Hospital. It was safe to travel there back then. If Boston cannot afford to make the island open and safe again, perhaps it is time for both the Boston and Quincy communities to work jointly on the island's future.

A first step was taken just before the Tall Ships arrived when Boston Mayor Ray Flynn and Quincy Mayor Jim Sheets toured the island together looking for some common ground to stand on.

Now the issue is out in the open. Rancor must be replaced by cooperation. Perhaps, the two cities should consider mutual responsibility for the site despite municipal and county borders. Long Island, after all, is a unique situation. Part of the City of Boston and the South Shore at the same time.

The best solution appears to be ceding the island to the state for restoration and upkeep. Today, Long Island is like a forest without trees. A mirage and not the oasis it ought to be.

Nancy's Eggplant Mold

Our daughter Nancy found a great recipe for eggplant for all of us who love the vegetable and like to cook it a different way. It's made as a mold with pasta and when turned upside down after being baked, comes out like a cake.

NANCY'S EGGPLANT MOLD

1 eggplant
1 lb ziti or rigatoni
1 lb ricotta cheese
10 oz. shredded mozzarella or a favorite grated Romano or Parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper to taste
Enough tomato sauce for a pound of pasta (about a quart)
First slice the eggplant in round slices about a quarter inch thick. Place on a slightly greased cookie sheet and broil in the oven until slightly done and lightly browned. Set aside.

Prepare the pasta and then add the sauce, and all the cheeses. Set aside.

In a slightly greased casserole dish, place the eggplant slices on the bottom and sides of the dish, add all of the pasta and spread evenly. On top of that, place all the other slices of the eggplant.

Bake in a 305 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes. Let cool for at least 15 to 20 minutes before turning it over. Then turn it onto a serving dish. It cuts beautifully. And if there are leftovers, the next day it cuts even better.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

UNVEILING THE PLAQUES for the seven recently inducted members of the South Shore YMCA Hall of Fame are Mayor James Sheets, left, and YMCA President George Atkinson. The members were inducted at a recent Hall of Fame dedication ceremony. (Quincy Sun photos by Tom Gorman)

Seven Inducted Into South Shore YMCA Hall Of Fame

Seven long-time members and contributors to the South Shore YMCA were recently inducted into the Y's newly established Hall of Fame.

The late A. Wendell Clark, the late Floyd Folmsbee, Paul Hurley Sr., the late Arthur Pinel, Karl Briggs, the late Gilbert Crofts and Eleanor Dacey were inducted into the Hall of Fame which recognizes individuals who have made, through their extensive involvement with the South Shore YMCA, a significant impact on the overall development of the association.

President Woodrow Wilson once said, "You can test the modern community by the degree of interest in its YMCA." The seven inductees made the Quincy community strong by their investment in and commitment to the South Shore YMCA.

Instilled with a desire to improve the community, the Hall of Fame inductees chose to help others through their involvement with the South Shore YMCA. The board, staff and members of the South Shore YMCA is grateful for their efforts.

The inductees combined service to the South Shore YMCA totals more than 285 years.

The late Floyd Folmsbee, whose YMCA career spanned 40 years from 1916 to 1956, had a great impact on thousands of young people and adults alike. Under his leadership and exemplary record of service as Boys Work director, director of Camp Burgess and general secretary of the YMCA, the YMCA developed an outstanding reputation in the community.

The late A. Wendell Clark was a member of the YMCA Board of Directors for 55 years, from 1919 through 1974. His father was one of the founding members of the South Shore YMCA, and two generations have since followed in his footsteps in leadership positions on the board. Among his many accomplishments... was the completion of the Y's building on Coddington St. in Quincy, during his term as board president.

A great friend of camping, the late Arthur Pinel worked tirelessly as a volunteer on many construction and maintenance projects for five decades. He was particularly instrumental in the building of Camp Hayward. A board member for 35 years, beginning in 1956, and a camper at YMCA "Camp Kwincoy," as a young boy in the 1920s, Mr. Pinel's love of the Y was a significant part of his life.

Paul Hurley, a well known leader in the community and the YMCA, was served on the board of directors for 35 years, from 1956 to 1991. During his term as board president, the Women's Health Fitness Center was added to the Coddington Street facility. Instrumental in the development of camp, Hurley chaired its Long Range Planning Committee and led the Y to the acquisition of a 92-acre addition to the camp property.

The late Gilbert Crofts dedicated his 39-year YMCA career to the youth of Quincy. Joining the staff in 1930, Mr. Crofts' affiliation with the YMCA began even earlier, while a student at Quincy High School, as a member of the Hi-Y Club. He was general secretary when the Y opened its Coddington St. facility in 1956, and membership increased 500 percent. Teacher, coach, leader and friend, "Crum" Crofts touched the lives of thousands.

A simple and noble desire to help others explains why Eleanor Dacey's involvement in the YMCA spans more than three decades. Because of her affection for her "Camp Burgess Boys," she has generously supported scholarships for families in need. Thanks to her involvement, many children have had the opportunity to experience YMCA summer camp.

Karl Briggs joined the YMCA Board in 1959, and served as its president in 1970. His association with the Y began much earlier, as a camper at Burgess in the 1930s. A strong voice for the Y in the business community, Briggs has helped move the association forward in many key areas. He has passed along spirit of service to his sons, Steve and Don, who have joined him on the board.

Central Middle State's Top Energy School

Central Middle School has been selected by the National Energy Education Development (NEED) Project as the Number One Energy School in Massachusetts.

To earn the award, 28 eighth graders took over the curriculum and taught the entire eighth grade for a day and a half about conservation and the sources and forms of energy.

The idea for the project began in October when four Central students and one teacher attended an energy conference sponsored by NEED in conjunction with Massachusetts Electric. Maryann Ashworth, Kristin Fluhr, Thomas Gildea, Michael O'Brien and their teacher, Ken Panaro spent three days and two nights learning the ins and outs concerning energy and the importance of conservation and environmental protection.

The group then brought the information back to Central and taught an additional 24 students who would ultimately be the student teachers for the "energy symposium." For a day and a half the student teachers presented the information on conservation and energy in many different ways.

The novel way of presentation included plays where the student teachers acted out famous findings in energy or the best method of conservation for a particular fuel. Other teaching techniques used were games such as Energy Pursuit, Energy Jeopardy, Energy Match Game and others. The student teachers also taught different energy songs. In each of these techniques, each and every eighth grader was an actual participant.

The student teachers also showed how one energy form could be converted to another form by performing scientific experiments and demonstrations. Massachusetts Electric, which has formed a partnership with Central Middle School, provided two representatives, Jerry Hanna and Harry Jones, who showed how the new fluorescent bulbs can conserve energy as well as money.

The Youth Awards National Recognition Ceremonies were recently held in Washington, D.C. Two students and one teacher from Central will attend the ceremonies and receive the award. They will be sponsored by Massachusetts Electric.

Jeff Bovarnick Receives Juris Doctor Degree

Jeff Bovarnick of Quincy recently received a Juris Doctor degree from New England School of Law, Boston.

Beginning in January, Bovarnick will be a prosecutor in the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's Corps. While at law school, he was a member of the New England Law Review. He is a graduate of Boston College High School and the University of

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

It has been said that the way to be happy and at peace in our human relations is to give other persons the same freedom of expression that we want for ourselves.

It is then that we find that most persons are interesting and enjoyable as they are. It is then that we appreciate the distinctive traits of character that different persons possess. It is then that we are free from the tension that would come if we tried to make others conform to our ideals.

When we expect other persons to follow our ideas of how they should live their lives, we are more often than not going to be disappointed ... Each person lives life according to his or her own inner light. Yes, if we are to understand other persons and have happy relationships with them, we must accept them as they are, ...

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Runs Win Streak To 5

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, following wins over two of its closest competitors for a state tourney berth, Weymouth and Zone 6-leading Braintree, walloped Canton, 11-1, Monday for its fifth win in a row and improved its record to 17-3.

Braintree has also lost three times and holds a half-game lead over Morrisette, while Wollaston and Weymouth are battling for the third and last state tourney berth. If Morrisette and Braintree finish in a top tie Morrisette would finish first because it won two of its three games with Braintree.

Morrisette faced Holbrook last night (Wednesday), will meet Wollaston in a makeup game tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 at Adams Field, will play at Milton Friday at 6 and will complete the regular season Saturday at 8 at Adams against Randolph.

Morrisette had no trouble Monday against Canton, but suffered a blow when starting pitcher Pat Clifford had to leave the game when his arm stiffened up in the first inning. His status was unknown at press time.

Matt O'Toole relieved and pitched four strong innings to pick up the win. Mike Malvesti pitched the final two innings of scoreless ball.

Canton made seven errors and walked eight Morrisette batters to make things easy.

Mark Kelliher drove in three runs with a single and a bases-loaded walk. Tom Balzano drove in a pair with an infield hit and sacrifice fly, Robbie Kane drove in a run with a triple, Serge Belcastro drove in a run with a double and Chris MacDonald and Mike Malvesti had singles.

Last Friday Morrisette came up with its biggest win of the year, a 7-4 decision over Braintree.

Sean Donovan pitched his sixth win without a loss as he went 6 2/3 innings, allowing seven hits, walking three and striking out two.

Clifford came on and faced one batter in the seventh to get his second save.

The story of the game was Kelliher, who has been on a tear in the last six games. He drove in six runs. He hit a 370-foot home run over the left field fence in the third to drive in MacDonald and Balzano ahead of him. In the fifth he drove in two more with an even longer blast, a 390-footer which stayed in the park for a triple scoring Kane and Balzano.

Braintree had taken an early 2-0 lead in the first on a double and two errors. Morrisette scored a run in the bottom half on walks to MacDonald and Pat Shea and a double by Balzano.

Braintree made it 3-1 in the second on a double and two more Morrisette errors, but Kelliher's three-run homer put Morrisette ahead to stay in the bottom half.

Dave Reinhart had two hits and an RBI and Danny Duncan had a single.

Earlier in the week Morrisette squeezed by Weymouth, 1-0, as Mike Patch pitched his third shutout and Kelliher drove in the game's only run, doubling home MacDonald in the first.

Patch won his fifth game with no losses as he out-pitched Kevin Shaw, who had defeated Morrisette an earlier game.

It was Patch's second win over Weymouth, as he won, 9-2, in the season's opener. He gave Weymouth only two hits, struck out seven and walked only two. He lowered his ERA to 1.60.

Kelliher also had a single, Reinhart two hits and Shea one.

are eagerly looking toward next season when things should turn around for us."

Last Saturday was another frustrating game as Quincy lost to Wollaston, 5-3.

Quincy took a 3-1 lead in the second inning with Butkuss and Carlson driving in runs.

Wollaston tied it in the third on three walks, a wild pitch and sacrifice flies by Jeff Craig and Pat Gallagher.

Wollaston won it with two runs in the sixth on a walk to Gallagher, an infield error, a single by Bob Fitzpatrick and a wild pitch.

Quincy had a chance in the seventh but a 5-4-3 double play wiped out the threat.

Pat Bryan pitched four innings of 3-hit ball for Quincy and Eric Kruger finished up. Terry Manning and Steve Manning pitched for Wollaston, which improved to 14-5.

MATT BESTON

"Matt plays point guard and is capable of making the good pass to the open man. He is also able to hit the outside shot. Against Alabama he hit a big three-point shot which kept us in the game. Matt is a Quincy eighth grader with a bright future."

winning pitcher.

Greg Peck had two hits and John Paul Ulrichak had a key double to drive in two runs. Kristen Bowes had a clutch single to drive in the winning run.

for the Yankees.

Frustration Follows Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

The young Quincy Legion baseball team, stocked with 16-year-olds, suffered two more frustrating losses to Zone 6-leading Braintree and third place Wollaston.

Quincy, building for next year, will host Holbrook Friday night at 8:30 at Adams Field in the last regularly scheduled game.

Quincy just missed pulling the upset of the year Monday night when it came back twice to tie and go ahead of Braintree, only to lose, 7-6, in the final inning.

Trailing, 3-0, Quincy tied it at 3-3 in the sixth inning on hits by Mark Carlson and Garrett Butkuss and a walk to Rob O'Connor.

Braintree came back with two runs in the bottom of the sixth to take a 5-3 lead but Quincy scored three runs in the top of the seventh to go ahead, 6-5. A double by Butkuss, singles by John Gladu and Carlson and a walk to Steve Miller accounted for the runs.

Quincy starter Terry Gaide, who had pitched excellent ball, tired and was unable to come out for the bottom of the seventh. Tim Byrne, a 16-year-old, came on and immediately was put in a hole when the batter went all the way to third on an infield error.

With the scored tied, 6-6, Braintree had the bases loaded with two outs. After a force play at the plate, Byrne walked in the winning run on a 3-2 pitch.

"It is tough putting a 16-year-old in against a team like Braintree," said Quincy coach Ed Spring. "If Gaide hadn't pitched himself out, I honestly think we could have won."

"These youngsters have played well all season. Not one kid has quit the squad despite our record and we Beacon Sports defeated the Elks, 3-1, to capture its second straight Junior Baseball League championship.

Behind the outstanding pitching of Brian Ross and the fine play of shortstop Brian Doyle, Beacon capped off an excellent season. The title game was highlighted by a delayed double steal of second and home executed perfectly by 10-year-olds Mike Gavin and Brent Austin. Excellent defensive plays were turned in by Brad Smith and Matt McLaughlin of the Elks.

McLaughlin pitched well in defeat and Joe and T.J. Miller had four hits between them.

Tim McGillicuddy, Brendon Donahue and Steven Ryan made superb defensive plays to protect the lead.

Beacon started the playoffs by eliminating American League champion Continental Cable, 5-3. Ross struck out 11 in going the distance.

The clutch hitting of Doyle, Billy Walker, Tim Kenerson, Jimmy Keyes and Ryan highlighted the win.

For Cable Chris Bregoli allowed six hits and struck out seven. Kevin Regan, Kevin Walsh, and Ron Gamel stood out for Cable, which finished the season at 19-4-3.

Beacon then edged the Elks, 3-2, behind the complete game pitching of Bob McDonough. He struck out nine and gave up six hits.

Brian Radell drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly. Jimmy Fitzgerald and Brent Dennis made excellent catches to preserve the win. Tim McGillicuddy and Ross had key hits.

Scott Cooper had three hits and Dave Armstrong two for the Elks.

The Beacon roster included Ross, Kenerson, McDonough, Keyes, Joe Walsh, Doyle, Walker, Ryan, Dennis, Radell, Austin, Gavin, McGillicuddy, Fitzgerald and Donahue.

Bob Croke, Bill Walker and Bob Austin were the coaches.

The team thanks its sponsor, Beacon Sports, all of the umpires and especially the parents for their outstanding support.

The media will be out to even the series which stands at 8-7 in favor of the officials.

Of course, the real winner every year is the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Last year's doubleheader raised $1700 for the fight against MDA.

Tickets for the twin-bill are $2 each and include admission to both games and entry into a prize drawing. Prizes, valued at $400, include a pair of Red Sox tickets, a baseball glove donated by Colman's Sporting Goods of Quincy, gift certificates to area restaurants, movie passes, tee shirts and many other items.

All proceeds will benefit the MDA.

Tickets are on sale at the Mayor's Office at City Hall; WJDA, 29 Brackett St.; Quincy Community Television, 81 School St.; The Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Dr.; and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Tickets will also be available at the Adams Field gate before the doubleheader.

Quincy Community Television Channel 3 will again provide coverage of both games.

Representatives from the fire and police will do the play-by-play for the first game. Recreation Director Barry Welch and former Executive Secretary Peter Kenney will be back to call the News Media-City Officials contest.

The game will be aired on Channel 3 Friday, Aug. 10. Time to be announced. Rain date is Friday, Aug. 7.

This is the doubleheader's 16th year. Five years ago, the game was renamed and dedicated to the memory of the late Richard Koch Sr. who organized the popular benefit game. Since its inception in 1977, the doubleheader has raised $21,700 for MDA.

Mr. Koch served with Henry Bosworth as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Labor Day Telethon. To date, the committee has raised more than $1 million for MDA.

Co-chairmen of the event are Tom Koch, executive secretary for Mayor James Sheets; and Robert Bosworth, editor of The Quincy Sun.

Middle Schools

Central Girls, Sterling Boys Win City Track Titles

The Central girls and Sterling boys won the recent fourth annual Quincy Middle School track and field championships.

The Central girls scored a mild upset by defeating favored Sterling, 62-49.

Much improved Atlantic placed third with 31 points and Broad Meadows was fourth with seven points.

Central runners turned in some outstanding performances with Kelly Howard winning the 100 meters over previously undefeated Kasey McNaught of Sterling.

Seventh grader Diane McGunagle pushed league leader Suzie Civitarese right to the wire with Civitarese of Sterling pulling out a close decision.

Jesse Ceurvels of Central won the 400 meters, sixth grader Erin Barry edged Sterling's talented Katie Gallagher in the 800 and Kelly Duggan put on a desperate last minute sprint down the home stretch to pass Atlantic's Erica Doherty just before the finish line.

Central won both relays. McNaught came back to win the long jump and teammate Angela Martinson won the high jump and Kerry Connolly took the shot put.

The Sterling boys proved that the sport is track "and" field by jumping and throwing their way to victory with 62 points, far ahead of Broad Meadows' 37. Atlantic scored 31 and Central 18.

Atlantic had a chance for a second place but dropped the baton in the final event, the 4x100 relay, and disqualification cost it the runnerup spot.

The meet's stars were Sterling's Ray Shluochki and Atlantic's Steve Cannon. Shluochki won the 400, long jump and Cannon the high jump and mile. They hooked up in a fine duel on the 4x100 relay anchor leg. Cannon took the baton 10 yards behind Shluochki and caught the Sterling speedster with 50 yards to go in an exciting race to victory.

Terry Roche of Central won the 800, Peter Kolson of BM the 200, Mike Luciano of Sterling the 100 and Sterling's Jerry Keenan the shot put.

Thirty of Sterling's 62 points were scored in the field events, more than twice as many as all the other teams combined. Sterling also won the 4x100 relay.

Sheets Backs Harold For Congress

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The congressional campaign of State Senator Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) got a major boost Tuesday when Mayor James Sheets announced he is supporting Harold's bid in the 10th congressional district race.

Sheets said he is publicly endorsing Harold for essentially two reasons. First, the mayor said he wanted to be loyal to one Quincy candidate. That became possible after Norfolk County District Attorney Bill Delahunt, another Quincy resident, dropped out of the race earlier this month.

Secondly, and more importantly, Sheets said he wholeheartedly supports one of the major planks in Harold's platform: the need to create more jobs, especially in the industrial sector.

"One of Paul's thrusts in this campaign is his call for jobs. I feel the major issue is jobs and I would hope that he would support a national industrial policy designed to restore the United States as a world industrial power," Sheets said.

The mayor said he believes restoring the industrial base by creating good, stable jobs in such industries as steel and textiles would help solve some of the country's major problems, especially the recession and high unemployment.

"We cannot remain a world economic power unless we are an industrial power. We need jobs to sustain families and to keep us together. I think all the other issues pale in comparison to that issue," Sheets said.

Quincy 2000 Plan Signed Into Law

Sheets: New Redevelopment Era

With the Quincy 2000 revitalization plan official and $110,000 in contributions, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he believes the right mechanism is in place to rejuvenate the city's business districts throughout the 1990s and into the 21st century.

A home rule petition creating the plan was signed into law Monday by Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci at a State House ceremony inside the Governor's Council Chamber. With the stroke of Cellucci's pen, Sheets said a new era in redevelopment in Quincy is dawning.

"This is the first organization of its kind that is totally labor and business driven. It's a new era. This is not the same as the Lowell plan. We have taken what we consider to be the best of the Lowell plan and tailored it more for expanding business.

"We're not looking to put up mega projects. We're not going to compete with the South Shore Plaza. But we can promote the downtown, Wollaston and North Quincy.

"That means more jobs, higher retail sales, and a better mix of retail establishments," Sheets said.

Modeled in part after the redevelopment efforts in Lowell and Quincy, the Quincy 2000 plan enlists the business community to work with city planners on marketing retail and commercial space, buying and selling land, promoting Quincy as a business anchor, and marketing loans for development and business improvements.

To become part of the plan and members of its corporation, companies and organizations pay a fee ranging from $250 to $5,000.

Sheets said approximately 40 businesses have joined, and he expects enrollment to climb to 50. "I'm still meeting with people," he said.

To date, $110,000 has been collected in membership fees. The mayor said he expects that figure to reach $150,000 in the near future.

In addition, the city will contribute about $300,000 it receives annually in federal Community Block Grants.

Among the companies and groups which have committed $5,000 to the plan are Fleet Bank, State Street Bank and Trust, Boston Five, Stop and Shop, Quincy Savings Bank, Arbella Insurance, Browning-Ferris Industries, South Shore Building Trades Council, Home Depot, Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance, Quincy College, Jay Cashman, a local marine contractor; South Shore Bank, Procter and Gamble, and Quincy Hospital.

Dorsey, Gene Krupa, Guy Lombardo and Bob Crosby. His theme song at the Totem Pole was "Dancing With The Stars."

Hugo and the band played all throughout New England and were heavily in demand.

"We never became a big touring band. We had all the work we could handle right around here," Hugo said.

Although the Big Band Era retired, Hugo didn't.

He continued to lead smaller musical combos and was a familiar figure at the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageants and The Quincy Sun-Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Pledge Center for 10 years. Hugo also volunteered for many years at Milton Hospital.

He spent much of his time doing charity work.

In 1989, he established a relief fund for the Studds Urges GE To Award $20 Million Contract To Fore River Shipyard

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds (D-MA) is urging high-ranking officials of the General Electric Corporation to award a pending $20 million contract to the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

The shipyard is one of two manufacturing facilities in the running for the three-year contract, which involves the fabrication and machining of casings and hoods for low pressure turbines used in power plants and other operations.

In a letter to GE's vice president for power generation production, Studds wrote:

"The history of the yard is one of high quality steel fabrication for vessel construction and other purposes. The yard itself is well-equipped and the work force is able, talented, experienced and ready to produce high quality products at competitive prices.

"As the vice chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee and a member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, I know full well the importance of supporting our shipyards and a broadly diversified industrial manufacturing base. The Fore River shipyard has my strong support, and I encourage you to give it your every consideration when awarding the pending contract."

In addition, Studds called GE's top Washington government relations official to voice his support for the contract award.

General Electric is expected to make its decision shortly.

In a related matter, Studds last week participated in a Merchant Marine Committee hearing to review the Administration's maritime reform proposal. Studds, considered to be next in line to become chairman of the committee, has personally emphasized to Secretary of Transportation Andy Card the need to improve the proposal by including additional programs to help shipbuilders like the Quincy Shipyard.

Many executives from the aforementioned companies attended Monday's ceremony. Also in attendance were Peter O'Connell, president of O'Connell Management and Development Companies; Paul Picariello of the North Quincy Merchants Association, Michael McFarland and Edward Keohane of the Quincy Partnership, State Reps. Michael Morrissey, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin, Council President Chuck Phelan and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

More than 30 business leaders and city officials attended the ceremony which the mayor called a "very proud moment."

"A lot of the heavy hitters in business and labor were there. Together, along with this government, this plan can really set the economic course for the remainder of this decade and into the next century."

"Everybody's excited by it. There was economic power in that room (Monday). It's important to bring these people together to accomplish great things for the city," Sheets said.

With the plan officially law, Sheets said the corporation will probably meet near the end of August to set up by-laws and elect an executive board.

Next, the corporation will advertise for two full-time positions, a planner and a marketer. The mayor said he hopes the planner and marketer will be hired in September.

Once the planner and marketer are on board, the mayor said the membership will set up "broad based goals and devise a master plan to rejuvenate Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy."

The plan will include supplying local businesses with low interest loans to improve storefront facades; as well as surveying and marketing all vacant retail space.

The corporation's plans will be submitted to the City Council for their input. Although the plans will not need council approval, Sheets added, "that's how you build consensus."

City-Wide Hydrant Testing Starts Today

The Quincy Fire Department will start its annual hydrant testing under the direction of the training division today (Thursday), announces Fire Chief Thomas F. Gorman Jr.

Testing will occur between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. and between 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Hydrant testing will take place in all sections of the city at the same time, Gorman said.

During the hydrant testing, residents may experience some discoloration in their water. This is not harmful to drink or use, but should be checked before using the washing machine.

Persons experiencing discoloration of their water should flush their water systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes and then wait approximately one hour. If the water does not clear up, repeat the flushing procedure.

The hydrant testing is expected to continue for approximately four weeks, Gorman said.

Assessors Issue Bulletin To Help Ease Tax Tensions

By ROBERT
BOSWORTH

With the FY93 state mandated property valuation update nearing completion, Quincy assessors are warning taxpayers to be cautious of people who use scare tactics to get them to sign contracts which may end up costing them money.

Because taxes can be a delicate, sensitive and emotional issue, some taxpayers may feel inclined to resort to professional help if they deem their taxes are too high.

"In today's climate, there are people who will use these feelings to better their own interests by targeting unsuspecting citizens," said Marion Fantucchio, chairman of Quincy Board of Assessors.

"This serious development prompted us (Quincy assessors) to issue this advisory bulletin informing you that there may be some unscrupulous tax consultants scurrying around the city putting fear into our fine business community.

"Of greater importance is that these fast talkers tend to create the impression that we are the 'bad guys' and they are the 'good guys.' Then they coerce, by fear, that if you sign a contract with them, you will reap great things.

"The best way to handle these matters, in our opinion, is to contact this office first to find out where and if any problems exist," Fantucchio said.

Taxpayers seeking more information on their tax bills can contact Quincy's three assessors 24 hours a day, seven days a week directly or leave a message and they will return the call. Information numbers are 376-1171 (Marion Fantucchio), 376-1172 (James Papile) and 376-1173 (Henry J. Bertolon).

Fantucchio said residents who believe their tax bills are too high do not need to hire a consultant, attorney or tax appraiser to file an abatement with the city. In fact, she encourages taxpayers to personally file their own abatements.

"We don't feel that they have to hire a consultant. Initially, people should come to us first to see if they have a problem with their values.

"We've had occasions when people go through tax consultants, and then their abatement was almost nil after paying out the consultant. We feel that the taxpayer can do just as well, if not better, because they are the ones supplying the information directly.

"They don't have to go through any unnecessary expenses without coming to us first," she said.

Taxpayers can file an abatement in Quincy at no cost. Fantucchio said abatements should be filed within 30 days after the tax bills are issued. After the abatement is filed, assessors either grant or deny the abatement, or they may request more information.

Taxpayers can also request a hearing regarding their abatement and tax bill. "We have met with thousands of people," Fantucchio said. "We try to resolve whatever the problem is locally."

Assessors are working on the FY93 values which should be released in mid-fall, Fantucchio said. Printouts of the new valuations will be available to property owners before the tax rate is set in December, she said.

Fantucchio said there will be very few house checks. Instead, values will be figured using different factors, including housing permits, recent sales, market review and spot checking.

Once the bills are mailed out and in the hands of residents, Fantucchio hopes taxpayers with any questions call the assessors.

"Don't be misled by fast talkers and idle promises. Get information from the source," she said.

Dance To Benefit McDonald Family

Councillor Michael T. Cheney has presented a commendation to Duayne Ziegner for heroic efforts during a fire which occurred at 14 Sea Ave. in the early morning on June 12.

Cheney commended Ziegner for his bravery and unselfish response in the face of danger. Ziegner entered the burning structure, rescued Brian McDonald and assisted other family members to safety.

"Clear thinking, quick, decisive action and sheer courage resulted in the life of Brian McDonald being saved while sleeping in the basement of a burning house. Without regard to his own life, Mr. Ziegner entered the home barefoot and crawled on his stomach to assist the McDonald family to safety," Cheney said.

Cheney said a benefit dance to aid the McDonald family will be held Saturday, Aug. 1 from 7 p.m. to midnight at Montello's, 53 Massachusetts Ave., Quincy Point.

Brian McDonald was severely burned and remains in Massachusetts General Hospital.

Tickets are $15 each, $25 per couple and may be purchased at the door. Food will be served and music will be provided.

Donations to the McDonald family may also be sent to South Shore Bank, c/o McDonald Family, 1400 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Keep Those Trolleys

Trying something new isn't always easy or an instant hit with the public.

But if it's a good idea it is worth the effort to stay with it and make it a success.

The trolleys that carried tourists — and residents — to and from Quincy's historic sites during the Boston visit of the Tall Ships was a good idea for then. And for the future.

We hope the trolleys will soon become a familiar part of Quincy's tourism promotion campaign that Mayor James Sheets and the Quincy Tourism Association are trying to get into high gear.

Quincy can match any community — and surpass most — when it comes to history and historic attractions.

There are communities that get a lot of tourism mileage over something like "George Washington Slept Here," "Benjamin Franklin Flew A Kite Here," or "This Bank Was Once Robbed By Jesse James."

The Adams Mansion alone is worth a tourist's stop-over in Quincy.

The Summer White House of two Presidents — John and John Quincy Adams. Where guests included the likes of President James Monroe, General Lafayette, Benjamin Franklin, Daniel Webster. And 200 West Point cadets who marched all the way from New York to Boston to Quincy to honor John Adams in 1824. And, the Old House as it is called, was home to four generations of the illustrious Adams family who helped shape this nation's destiny.

And Quincy has so much more to offer.

The birthplaces of the second and sixth presidents — the only father and son Presidents in the country's history. The First Parish Church where the two presidents and their wives, Abigail (the only woman ever to be the wife of one president and the mother of another) — and Louisa Catherine are entombed.

There's the site of John Hancock's birthplace. The Adams Academy stands over the cellar of Hancock's birthplace which was destroyed by fire in 1759.

And there's the Dorothy Quincy Homestead where Hancock wooed one of the beauties of Colonial days and where he hid from the British when they came looking for him.

There are other historic sites too. Like: The Josiah Quincy Homestead which was used to spy on British ships in Boston Harbor. The sites of the First Railway and first productive Iron Works.

Tourists could spend a whole day — or more — here visiting these sites.

Those trolleys would not only make it easier for them but are something they would expect to find in a city with so many historic sites to get to.

Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site hopes the trolleys become a permanent part of Quincy's tourism campaign.

She sees the trolleys as an asset in promoting the historic sites and "an enhancement to serving the visitor."

She says the trolleys help improve "the quality of a visitor's experience" since those unfamiliar with the city often have a difficult time locating some of the historic sites.

We hope that Marilyn Strauss, Quincy Tourism Transportation Director, who organized the trolleys during Sail Boston will push to make them a permanent part of our tourism scene.

Even if it's only one or two until they fill up and more are needed.

The trolleys deliver an instant message to visitors: Quincy is a real, first class tourism town.

He was here walking Hancock St. during the Sidewalk Sale and has had two meetings with Mayor James Sheets — the second one Tuesday.

GIVE BRUCE AYERS an "A" in public relations. When he was campaigning for the Ward 6 City Council seat he promised, if elected, that he would keep in close touch with his constituents. He's keeping that promise.

Ayers is distributing a four-page newsletter to residents in the ward with information on 15 different subjects and a listing of city department telephone numbers.

Among the items is his intention to hold a community meeting during the summer to discuss future use of the former Best Buy site. Ayers reports that the building's former owner "hopes to rent the former Best Buy space to a Walgreen's drug store and enhance the area."

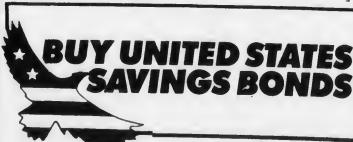

In a front page letter to constituents, he notes:

"Over the past several months I have found that there is no shortage of advice available to elected officials. Good advice, though, is still hard to find. It mostly comes from people like you. From the telephone calls, letters, and community meetings. I have learned a lot from the people of Ward Six — not just about your problems, but about solutions, too."

"It is my hope that this newsletter will serve as an effective means for keeping you informed. As always, please do not hesitate to contact me if I can assist you in any way."

Sheets Endorses Harold

As for his loyalty to Quincy candidate like Harold, the mayor said, "He's local and I just feel that we have to be loyal to our city's candidate, just as I expect there will be loyalty to Congressman Studds in his district."

Sheets and Harold served four years together on the Quincy City Council, from 1976 through 1979. Since that time, they have been political allies, working on issues that have been important and beneficial to the residents of Quincy.

Harold said he valued the Sheets' endorsement. "This is the most significant endorsement of the campaign and it highlights my involvement with the issues that are important to the people of this district: jobs, water and sewer rates, transportation, crime, housing and health care," Harold said.

"As the largest community in the district, Quincy will help focus on the priorities that should be worked on in the next Congress. I value the endorsement of Mayor Sheets to continue our good working relationship as mayor and senator and I want to continue that as mayor and congressman."

The endorsement will be announced at a press conference Friday. Other Quincy officials, including some city councilors and school committee members, were also expected to announce their support for Harold.

The mayor informed Harold that he was backing his candidacy while meeting with him Tuesday morning.

Sheets said he does not believe his endorsement is a political risk if Harold is not elected. Besides Harold, six other candidates are campaigning for the newly drawn 10th congressional district, including an incumbent congressman, U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds.

"I felt when we had two candidates from Quincy that I shouldn't get involved," Sheets said. "With only one Quincy candidate now, I think there is a level of loyalty that one has to show to one of our own."

"It's the kind of thing that keeps us together. I think it was expected that I would support a local candidate and a Democratic candidate. I'm comfortable with my decision."

Over the last week to 10 days, Sheets met with three other candidates in the 10th congressional district race.

Last week, he met with Jon Bryan, a Republican who switch to unrolled status after narrowly losing to Studds two years ago. On Monday, the mayor met with Studds, a Democrat seeking an 11th congressional term. Early Tuesday morning, he met with Republican Dan Daly.

Sheets called all three "good candidates" but saved his highest praise for Harold.

"I think they're all good candidates. I was impressed with Bryan and with Studds and with Daly but Harold is my man. He understands the city and he'll give it 100 percent."

There are three other candidates in the race: political newcomer William Zissulis, a Democrat from Barnstable; Michael Crossen, a Republican from Mashpee; and Robert King, a Plymouth Republican.

Sheets said he informed only Studds of his endorsement because he is a Democrat and the incumbent. Sheets said Studds harbors no bad feelings toward the mayor in light of his endorsement for Harold, who is considered a formidable opponent.

"His (Studds') response was very gracious. He said he understood and he said if he wins the nomination in September and the election in November it would have no impact on him dealing with the city of Quincy."

Sheets said he has not discussed with Harold if he will actively and openly campaign for him. But, he added, "I'll do what I can to help Paul (win)."

Another endorsement was announced this week. Visiting Quincy Monday, Sen. Ted Kennedy said he is endorsing Studds' reelection bid.

Responding to the Kennedy endorsement, Harold said, "With all due respect, a Kennedy endorsement generates a headline but an endorsement by the mayor of Quincy is much more than news."

"It's an endorsement of hard work and commitment to the people of this city."

Quincy's Yesterdays

He'd Ban Women Drivers

Benjamin F. Earl, 755 Washington St., Quincy Point, who claimed to have driven over a million miles since 1898, told interviewers the road would be a lot safer if women drivers were banned.

July 30-Aug 5
56 Years Ago

Women, he said, take advantage of their sex and expect men to be chivalrous and give them the right way at all times on the road.

"There isn't one good woman driver in a thousand," he said. "The only thing a woman knows how to do is steer a car between two curbs."

SHOPLIFTERS AT WORK

Quincy police issued a warning to downtown merchants that a band of organized shoplifters were operating in the city, rapping off shopkeepers in downtown Quincy.

Louis Messick Dry Goods, 1476 Hancock St., lost 18 dresses; Kardon Brothers, 1446 Hancock St., a man's suit; and Kane's Furniture, Hancock St., a radio, all the past few days.

SUNDAY AUTO SALES

John P. Flavin, attorney for the Quincy auto dealers, appealed to the state to enforce a law in Weymouth, Braintree, Milton and Hingham that bans the sale of automobiles on Sunday.

Police Chief John J. Avery had ordered all Quincy auto salesrooms closed on Sunday and Flavin told Public Safety Commissioner Paul Kirk that Quincy dealers were losing sales.

Democrats' 'Time To Change' A Hackneyed Catchword

Editor, The Quincy Sun: There is no firmer supporter of freedom of the press than the undersigned. But the media's interminable bashing of Vice President Dan Quayle transcends freedom and becomes non-acceptable editorializing in its "alleged" news columns. While inaccuracies by the media are understood and usually forgiven, there can be no acceptance of the insidious and rancorous repetition of snide sarcasm bordering on the libelous. Even the press cannot find any factual marital impropriety involving the Vice President while continually ignoring the flawed personal and military background of the Democratic Presidential nominee.

The most important qualification to be president of the United States is the ability to conduct successfully foreign policy. George Bush stands tall in this area, and his loyal acceptance of Dan Quayle should be accepted as considered judgement of an appropriate running mate. The blame (or credit) for our economic situation should not be assigned to the President alone—but to the Congress where the fault really lies.

The Democratic Party's hackneyed catchword, "It's time for a change," is a cliché used by every aspiring political newcomer. But the newcomers in the current campaign have yet to define or propose what the "change" should be or what it would accomplish.

This is no time to turn from an experienced and capable administration to an inexperienced slate of individuals who have failed in Arkansas and who propose excessive and dubious schemes for solving our ecological problems.

Party affiliation at this point is irrelevant. Mr. Bush and Mr. Quayle should have the opportunity to finish the job they have competently begun.

Diane's Crab Delight

Each time our group meets for club, there is always a different appetizer along with the "staples." Over at Amy and Gerry's last week, it was no exception. Their daughter Diane had called her mother and told her about this new appetizer made with crab meat flakes, and said she knew we would all love it and we sure did! There wasn't a speak of it left!

DIANE'S CRAB DELIGHT
1 package crab flakes
 (about 10 ounces)
1 8 oz package cream cheese
2 Tbsps chopped onion

1/2 cup bottled horseradish
1/2 cup sliced almonds spring of paprika

Soften the cream cheese. Add all other ingredients and place in a 9 inch pie plate. Bake uncovered in a 375 degree oven for about 20 minutes. Add the paprika when cooked. It is delicious served with a piece of pita bread or any favorite cracker or chip.

Note: In last week's recipe for eggplant mold, the slices should be brushed with oil and seasoned with garlic powder before broiling for a better consistency.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Lafayette's Descendent Visits Adams Mansion

General Lafayette's descendent visited the Adams mansion in Quincy recently to commemorate the visit of his ancestor to the home of President John Adams.

The visit of the Compte (Count) Gilbert de Pussy Lafayette came 168 years after General Lafayette's visit in 1824.

The fifth generation Lafayette descendent was greeted at the mansion by the fifth generation Adams' descendent Charles Francis Adams. It was noted that Adams and Lafayette worked closely together during the Revolutionary War and remained in close contact up until the death of President John Adams on July 4, 1826.

The Compte Lafayette was accompanied by his mother, the Countess de Lafayette. Both live in Paris. Charles Francis Adams presented the Compte with a flag that flew over the Adams Mansion to replace the American flag which flies over the grave of General Lafayette in France.

The Compte's visit was arranged by Senator Paul Harold as part of the state's celebration of Lafayette Day. Harold sponsored a luncheon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club for the Compte and Countess following the Mansion reception. The Luncheon was attended by the Lafayette's, Charles Francis Adams, Joanne Sheets (wife of Mayor James Sheets), Adams National Park Supt. Maryanne Peak, Quincy Historical Society President Joyce Baker and Quincy Partnership members Michael McFarland, Edward Keohane, Thomas Galvin and Paul and Agnes Hogan.

At the Mansion reception flowers were presented to the Countess and Mrs. Sheets on behalf of the children of Quincy by Kelly and Erin Linnane, daughters of Michael and Maureen Linnane of Anderson Rd. in Quincy.

The party featured the music of the Red Branch Knights, the highly acclaimed band featured on television's "Chronicle" and "Good Day" and heard on WUMB-FM and WROL-AM. The group has appeared at the Hatch Shell on the Esplanade.

McGrath is a candidate for State Senate representing Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon.

Veterans License Plates Now Available Notes Morrissey

Special license plates for veterans are now available to all Massachusetts veterans through the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

"This is only a minor recognition of their service, but an appropriate one," said State Rep. Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy). "You can't do enough to pay back their commitment."

Morrissey filed the original bill for production of the plates in 1988. Half of the $80 biannual registration fee will benefit the Chelsea and Holyoke Soldiers Homes, with the remaining money going to the Registry for production costs, he said.

Three types of plates will be available with each having "veteran" printed in blue across the bottom. All of the 650,000 veterans in Massachusetts are eligible for the plate with the American flag on the left hand side.

Those 346 known veterans in the state who survived the attack on Pearl Harbor are eligible for the plate which is adorned with an emblem of an eagle with a bomb in its talons.

Veterans who received the Purple Heart after being wounded in defense of their country will have available to them plates with an emblem of the Purple Heart medal.

Morrissey encourages all veterans who would like to acquire these plates to call their local registries or call his office at 722-2263.

Merrymount School PTO Wins 1st Place In DPW Improvement Contest

The Merrymount School PTO has won first place in the City of Quincy DPW's First Annual Community Awards Program.

The awards were for non-profit community groups which completed public improvement projects.

DPW Commissioner David Colton presented Elaine Dwyer of the PTO with the Browning-Ferris Industries Award and a check for $500 during a recent awards ceremony.

The Wollaston Elementary School PTO won the Mayor's Award for second place and received $250. Beechwood Community Life garnered the third place Commissioner's Award and $250 and the Quincy Rotary Club received an Honorable Mention award.

In a letter to Dwyer, Colton said, "Your entry was chosen first place winner because it has made a substantial permanent improvement to the appearance of not only the Merrymount School but to the entire Agawam Road neighborhood. This improvement was accomplished in an economical way which employed the use of many volunteers from the neighborhood exhibiting a great deal of community spirit.

"By choosing to incorporate the sailboat, symbol of the larger Merrymount community, you have created a positive visual link between the school community and the civic community. You should be proud of the work you have accomplished and of the people who participated."

Corinne Mitchell of the Wollaston School PTO received a letter from Colton which said, "Your group was chosen because of the wonderful, positive impact that the newly painted swing sets and play yard will have on the quality of the school children's experiences.

"The Committee also recognized that your project utilized many volunteers from the school community and that they worked very hard in not only painting the play yard but in planting the new shrubberies near the kindergarten entrance. You should be very proud of your project and of the people who made it happen."

In a letter to Sharon Beals, Director of Beechwood Community Life Center, Colton said, "Your entry was selected because of the substantial improvement it makes -- not only to the Community Life Center but to the surrounding neighborhood. The landscaping work at the entryway certainly enhances the aesthetics and gives more prominence to the flagpole area. In addition, by painting the playground equipment you have not only prolonged their life so many children will be able to enjoy them, you have also created a more pleasant atmosphere in which the children can play."

Thomas Smith of the Rotary Club received a letter from Colton which said, "Your entry was certainly an important effort to enhance a prominent Quincy address, i.e., The Adams Academy. The landscaping improvements add character to the front lawn which would not have been accomplished otherwise. You should be very proud of your project and of the efforts that went into its accomplishment. We at the Department of Public Works are very proud of our part in the project."

Chretien Calls For MWRA Rate Reform

Larry Chretien, candidate for state representative in the 1st Norfolk District, recently called upon the legislature to mandate a rate structure for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority that would be based more upon usage than the current structure.

Chretien, Quincy's Ward 3 City Councillor, made the request in response to a recent MWRA report showing that many local communities, including Quincy, are paying more than their fair share of the Boston Harbor cleanup project.

The reason for the extra high rates is that the MWRA charges communities based on population and not usage. If the MWRA charges were based upon usage, Quincy ratepayers would be paying $1.9 million less per year. Cities such as Boston, Newton and Cambridge are benefitting from the current system.

"The MWRA tried to explain that there are complicating factors which make a 100 percent usage-based structure unworkable," Chretien said. "To me, they are taking the subject far too lightly. While they fiddle with a new rate structure, the residents and businesses of Quincy are getting ripped off."

"A federal judge has mandated that we clean up Boston Harbor on a tight schedule. To a certain extent, that has tied the hands of the legislature. But the judge did not mandate the current MWRA rate structure. Therefore, the legislature should write into the MWRA's enabling legislation a new rate structure."

"A new rate structure would save Quincy residents and businesses anywhere up to $1.9 million. If I am elected state representative, I will sponsor this kind of legislation to protect the interests of Quincy ratepayers."

Mariano Criticizes Weld Educational Aid Veto

Rep. Ron Mariano recently criticized Governor William Weld's veto of additional educational aid provided by the legislature to the Commonwealth's public school systems.

Mariano called Weld's decision "a politically short-sighted move that will severely hinder the education of children across the Commonwealth."

Weld's action will cost the Quincy and Weymouth school systems over $3 million in additional aid for the coming school year.

"It is crucial that we in the legislature immediately override the veto action by Governor Weld," said Mariano. "Our schools and communities desperately need this increased local educational aid, and cannot afford to be short-changed for another school year."

"Education in Weymouth and Quincy has been severely impacted by budget cuts for the past three years. It is unconscionable that the governor would hold hostage the schoolchildren of the Commonwealth for his version of education reform."

"Those of us that are close to the public school system see the need for adequate funding. It's about time the governor's rhetoric on educational funding match his actions. Otherwise, our children will continue to fall further behind in this changing world economy."

Tobin Member Of House Judiciary Committee

Rep. A. Stephen Tobin (D-Quincy) has been appointed to the House Committee on the Judiciary by House Speaker Charles F. Flaherty.

The committee considers all matters pertaining to the judiciary, including the recall and salaries of judges and other court employees. Chaired by Rep. Salvatore DiMasi (D-Boston) and Sen. Michael LoPresti (D-East Boston) the committee is currently considering some major court reform proposals.

Tobin, who represents the Second Norfolk District, is also a member of the Committees on Criminal Justice and Counties.

JOHN DUFFY, an eighth grade student at Central Middle School, won third place and a $50 savings bond in the Boston Harbor Essay Contest sponsored by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority. With him are Elisa Speranza, associate director, MWRA; and Marcia Filurin, a teacher at Central Middle School.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Passing the buck" is something that is common to all of us when we don't want to be held responsible for certain actions.

It is something we do when we don't want to admit that maybe we were at fault ... maybe part of the blame should be on us ... maybe the other person or persons involved weren't totally at fault. After all, do we really want to admit that we were "WRONG"? CAN we admit that we were "WRONG"?

Isn't it a lot easier to blame someone else than to take the responsibility ourselves? Isn't it a lot easier to say "It's his fault," than to say, "Maybe I'm partly to blame for what happened"? Also, isn't it easier to ask someone else to do something we should have done ourselves?

If we're honest with ourselves we'll recall at least one and most probably several times when we've been guilty of "passing the buck" ... when we've shirked our responsibility for something that went wrong or for something that wasn't done.

The late President Truman put a sign on his desk; "The Buck Stops Here!" Not a bad idea ... What do you think?

Baron Hugo, Big Band Era Legend

victims of Hurricane Hugo in Charleston, S.C. He played his drum outside City Hall for a week and sold some paintings which he did himself.

"I don't know how much I can raise," he said. "But every little bit will help. I just want to help."

He donated a gazebo to the Town of Milton and just last week oversaw the completion of a handicap ramp for it.

Most recently he appeared at Lombardo's in Randolph last month with his 16-piece Totem Pole Orchestra to raise money for the Professional Musicians Club Scholarship Fund.

He also played at weddings and high school class reunions and appeared at the Quincy Summerfest at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre. He was so popular he had to be booked at least a year in advance. The Town of Milton honored him with a "Baron Hugo Day" to celebrate his 80th birthday, Sept. 11, 1983. He was also named an honorary member of the Quincy High School Class of 1942.

Hugo was born in Finland and settled in West Quincy where he grew up.

In 1924 he held a job at Olson's Hardware Store in Quincy Center where he made $9 a week.

His friend, Harry Carlson, who sometimes sang with the band, said Hugo got his start in music when he bought a pair of drumsticks and practiced for three days before joining a band in Quincy. Hugo earned $8 in one night and said, "Hey, this is it from now on."

A Big Band Testimonial will be held in his honor at the gazebo in September. Also, another testimonial honoring Hugo will be held at Milton High School in October featuring a 70-piece band. Proceeds will benefit the Jimmy Fund. Many groups and individuals have already begun planning the events including Ken Lodge, a trumpet player with Baron Hugo's original Totem Pole Band.

Funeral arrangements will be by the Chapman, Cole & Gleason Funeral Home in Milton. Arrangements were incomplete as The Quincy Sun went to press.

Miller Outraged By MWRA Overcharging

George Miller of Quincy, a candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, has expressed his anger over recent reports that the MWRA overcharged Quincy an estimated $1.8 million while have no immediate plans to change the way that they bill communities for sewer service. I feel that the MWRA officials' attitude towards the Boston Harbor cleanup has been outrageous since the beginning of the cleanup."

If elected, Miller said he would work to pass legislation that "will not only increase local control over the MWRA, but insure that every dollar spent by the MWRA is directly related to the Boston Harbor cleanup."

"This overcharging is occurring at a time when residents of Quincy can barely afford to make ends meet and while they are facing constant increases in their sewer bills. The MWRA is getting away with this by charging based on population rather than actual sewage flow.

"To add insult to injury," Miller said, "MWRA officials have defiantly stated that they legislatively created agency that has a total disregard for the people it is supposed to serve. It sponsors such events such as a sunset cruise for the politicians to see the Tall Ships, supposedly paid for by the contractors hired to cleanup the harbor.

Miller also took issue over the MWRA's hiring of a public relations consultant at the cost of $11,000 a month to improve the authority's image. He noted the MWRA also has three full-time public relations staff and a government lobbyist.

"The MWRA is spending our money on image consultants to convince us that they are not taking us for a ride. As state representative, I will work to put an end to this," Miller said.

"We are dealing with a

Cruising Class Ocean Racing Added

New Attraction As 55th QBRW Underway

By TOM SULLIVAN

There is a new wrinkle this year as the 55th edition of Quincy Bay Race Week got under way yesterday (Wednesday).

QBRWA President Dan Falvey announced that a new addition to the program will be ocean racing in Cruising Class competition on Saturday.

"These races are for those who are unable to compete against the bigger more expensive boats which are featured in the ocean racing," said Falvey. "This is an innovation and the first time it has been held in the area. I feel that those in charge of regattas from Marblehead to Cape Cod will be looking at the results and how much interest there is."

"We feel racing is for everyone, not only those with the big, expensive boats. We have sent invitations to 400 marinas, yacht clubs and individual sailors to compete. There will be four divisions, A, B, C and D with trophies going to winners in all four."

Another new highlight of Race Week will be a two-hour clinic for juniors conducted by Jack Willy on Thursday at Wessagussett Yacht Club.

"Jack and his family have dominated junior racing and we feel this clinic will further enhance junior racing," Falvey said.

Last year the Willy family again dominated the Laser class. Jack won three straight races before being defeated by Joe Hanrahan but bounced back to win Sunday for his second title in three years.

Jack's son, Jack, Jr., finished third behind Hanrahan and Jack's daughter, Janese, was fourth.

This year there will be two Trophy Days. In the past, Trophy Day was held in October. But this year one will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday night at Town River for the new Cruising Class and another for all other classes will be held an hour after the final race on Sunday at Squantum Yacht Club.

Two years ago the appearance of a shark opposite Quincy Yacht Club added excitement to Race Week.

Last year on opening day two "unscheduled" barges raised havoc with the Turnabout races.

Nearly 80 boats that made up the inside line were nearly run over by the barges and the races were canceled and the results thrown out.

The Quincy Bay Race Week Association was formed in 1937 with the Quincy, Wollaston and Squantum yacht clubs the original members.

The first Race Week was held in 1938 with 20 classes of boats competing in the racing program.

The regatta was so successful that plans were immediately made for a bigger Race Week the following year.

Later, the Town River, Wessagussett, Braintree, South Shore and Metropolitan clubs joined and those eight clubs currently make up the QBRWA.

The regatta is open to all clubs and many other clubs around the state annually send boats to compete.

Marblehead Race

Week had been the main attraction in interclub sailboat racing for years but Quincy Bay Race Week has grown steadily, until now it is challenging Marblehead as the most popular race week in the area.

Juniors are the backbone of Race Week. There were no junior sailing programs in the early years of Race Week. Now all clubs have outstanding junior programs.

All clubs in the association donate and participate in the racing. Any money raised during the year is spent in one year, mainly on trophies.

To keep Race Week in the forefront every year, the association enters a float in the annual Christmas Parade and six years ago the association won the Mayor's Trophy.

Sailors Of All Ages Compete For Trophies

Hundreds of sailors--men, women, boys and girls--began competing for several handsome trophies when the 55th edition of Quincy Bay Race Week got under way yesterday (Wednesday).

These trophies include: Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy: Presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Albert W. Finlay, his father, for competition during Race Week. Presented in loving memory of a son who, during his lifetime, did much to advance the sport of yachting on Massachusetts Bay. The trophy is presented annually to the yachtsmen considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some single act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy: a perpetual trophy presented annually since 1946 by the Patriot Ledger in memory of the man who served the newspaper for more than three decades as yachting writer and editor.

A deep-water sailor and a racing enthusiast, Hunt played a major role in the success and growth of Quincy Bay Race Week and the sport itself.

The trophy is awarded annually to a person who has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship and a willingness to help others in the advancement of the yacht racing sport and who has contributed to the success of Race Week. The trophy is held until the succeeding Race Week by the home club of the winner, who is awarded a keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

President's Trophy: Presented by the Pepsi Cola Company to stimulate interest in overall competition.

1300 Trophy:

Presented each year since 1960 to the QBRWA by radio station WJDA to demonstrate its interest in Race Week and to aid in the stimulation of racing interest among the junior class.

This trophy is awarded annually to the winning skipper in the Turnabout Class and becomes his permanent possession.

Commodore Isadore Bromfield Trophy: Presented in 1976 to the QBRWA by the Metropolitan Yacht Club. The trophy is awarded annually to the Race Week winner according to the deed of gift. The winner is presented an engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Commodore Charles Wing Memorial Trophy: presented to the QBRWA in 1981 by his friends and family as a perpetual trophy to be awarded annually to the winner of the Red Fleet on Town River Yacht Club's day of Race Week.

City of Boston Bermuda Cup: This beautiful and historic punch bowl has been in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club for over 50 years. It was presented by the City of Boston around 1905 for a race from Boston to Bermuda.

This race was never held and in 1911 the city again put the cup up for an ocean race to be held Labor Day of 1911 to become the permanent possession of the winner. The race was won by Hollis Burgess, Quincy Y.C. member, in his sloop "Marie L."

Burgess generously made the Q.Y.C. trustee of the cup which was to be placed in annual competition as a perpetual trophy. In 1968 the Q.Y.C. presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition. This valuable trophy is to be presented to the annual winner and to be held until the succeeding Race Week.

The winner is presented a suitably engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Harry Warner Memorial Trophy: presented to the QBRWA in 1968 by the Warner family and the Town River Yacht Club as a perpetual trophy to be raced for by the Ocean Race cruising fleet.

A suitably engraved keeper trophy is to be presented the winner for his permanent possession.

Reynolds Memorial Trophy: a perpetual trophy presented to the QBRWA in 1966 by the family of John Reynolds, an ardent supporter and skipper in the Day Sailor

Class until his untimely death in 1965.

This beautiful trophy is awarded to the Race Week winner in the Hustler Class.

White Trophy: John J. White, QBRWA Past President 1983, continues to be one of the mainstays of QBRWA. Giving untold hours of support in every aspect of the Association's activities, Jack White truly exemplifies the spirit of QBRWA. Given in honor of Past President Jack White, the trophy was presented in 1990 by Jack and his family. It was not awarded in 1990 due to the cancellation of the Ocean Races where it will become one of the perpetual trophies awarded.

Frank Hendry Trophy: Fifty years separates Frank Hendry, QBRWA Past President

1940, and his son Richard Hendry, QBRWA Past President 1990. Many changes occurred within that time span, however, their mutual love for the sport of sailing never did.

Both father and son felt that yacht racing was the greatest pastime one could become involved with. Going beyond participation in competition, they both have given unselfishly of their time and effort to promote sailing and the QBRWA. The Hendry Trophy, given in honor of two generations of QBRWA Presidents, was presented in 1990 by State Senator Paul D. Harold, Quincy. It was not awarded in 1990 due to the cancellation of the Ocean Races where it will become one of the perpetual trophies awarded.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Zone 6 Champs On 8-Game Win Streak

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, winning its last eight games of the year, including three last week, is once again the Zone 6 champion, finishing at 20-3 and leading Braintree by a half game. Weymouth finished in the third and final state tournament spot.

Morrisette opened South Sectional tournament play Tuesday night against Walpole, hosting the first game at Adams Field. The second game was scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) at Walpole and a third game, if necessary, will be played today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Walpole.

The other South Sectional pairings are Braintree vs. Norwell, Weymouth vs. New Bedford, Brockton vs. Fall River, Westwood vs.

Sandwich and Needham vs. Wareham.

Morrisette finished up with a 9-4 victory over Wollaston last Saturday, knocking Wollaston out of a tournament berth. Wollaston, at 17-7, finished just behind Weymouth (17-6-1).

Morrisette sent 12 batters to the plate and scored seven runs in the second inning.

Matt O'Toole pitched six innings, giving up eight hits, striking out five, walking one and allowing one earned run, for his third win.

Mark Kelleher continued his torrid hitting as he went 4-for-4 including a double and drove in three runs. Dave Reinhart had a triple and single and two RBI, Serge Belcastro, Robbie Kane and Pat Shea singled in runs, Chris MacDonald had two hits and Tom Balzano one.

The previous night Morrisette defeated Milton, 7-1, as Sean Donovan pitched all the way to improve to 7-0. He gave up four hits and no earned runs, walked two and struck out seven.

MacDonald hit a three-run homer, Kane drove in two with a double, Belcastro singled home two, Donovan had a double and single and Shea had two hits.

Morrisette earlier had rolled over Holbrook, 17-4, with Tom Malvesti recording his third win. He went five innings, allowed three hits, struck out eight and walked four. Dan Duncan pitched the last two innings of scoreless ball.

Again Morrisette scored seven runs in the second inning. Duncan had a big night with a double and single and five RBI. Kelleher had two hits and three RBI, Malvesti had a double and a single and two RBI, Shea had two RBI and Reinhart one.

Dave Perdios, in his sixth year as Morrisette coach, has his team in the state playoffs for the third time.

"I feel things are going fairly well and I hope the momentum the team has will carry over into the playoffs," he said. "The loss of Pat Clifford (tired arm) is giving me some concern. He may be out for the season, although there is an outside chance he could be ready for the Northeast Regionals. I hope one or two of our younger pitchers can do the job as Clifford's replacement."

ED FLAVIN

Ed Flavin Earns Bentley Coaches' Award

Ed Flavin of Quincy, a senior on the Bentley College baseball team, was presented the Coach's Award recently by coach Bob DeFelice.

Flavin, a four-year starter in the Bentley outfield, hit .282 during his final collegiate season, with 33 hits, including five doubles, three triples and two home runs.

This season he had a 15-game hitting streak. He ranked among Bentley's all-time leaders in games played (133, 2nd); hits (141, 2nd); at bats (446, 1st); runs (95, 3rd); doubles (27, 4th) and total bases (200, 3rd).

A graduate of Quincy High School, Flavin received a bachelor of science degree in management during Bentley's May commencement exercises.

Wollaston Misses Tourney Berth

The Wollaston Legion baseball team, despite its best season in some time, missed making the state tournament when it lost its final two games to Weymouth and Morrisette.

Wollaston finished with a 17-7 Zone 6 record, but was edged by Weymouth for the third and final tourney berth, which finished 17-6-1.

Wollaston coach Mike Gormley suffered the loss of his two top pitchers with arm trouble, which made things tough for the team down the stretch.

In the season's final last Saturday, a "must" game for Wollaston, the team bowed to Zone 6 champion Morrisette, 9-4, ending any hopes it had to make the tournament.

A seven-run second inning clinched the victory for Morrisette, which finished at 20-3.

In its previous game everything went wrong for Wollaston as it was bombed by Weymouth, 17-3.

Weymouth exploded for 13 runs in the first two innings and it was no contest after that.

Jeff Craig led

Wollaston at the plate with three hits and Pat Gallagher and Dewey Holmes had two hits each.

Gormley was able to work three of his pitchers into the game. Steve Loud started and gave way to Steve Manning who, in turn, was relieved by Tom Brenner.

"Weymouth just came ready to play and we came out flat," said Gormley.

Quincy Legion Ends Season By Beating Holbrook, 7-1

The Quincy Legion baseball team ended a frustrating 3-21 season last week on a high note as it defeated Holbrook, 7-1, after losing to Canton, 9-6.

In the season's finale, Terry Gaide, who pitched well all season but suffered from a lack of runs, pitched five innings of one-run, three-hit ball and added a two-run triple and scored a run himself.

Playing in their final Legion game, Dan Kearns,

Rob O'Connor, Jim Gately and Garrett Butkuss had two hits each and defensively Mike Caporale, Chris McCulley, Brian Oliver and Mark Karlson sparkled and kept Holbrook from mounting any kind of offense.

Tom Nutley made another outstanding catch in centerfield to rob Brian Johnson of extra bases.

Pat Bryan pitched the final two innings, giving up one hit and no runs.

Gaide, who will be one of several players returning next season, finished with a 3.30 ERA in 51 innings.

"He pitched against all the tough teams but we didn't give him any runs to work with except for the final game," said coach Ed Spring.

"He is an outstanding young pitcher and it's nice to know he has another season with us."

In the Canton game, Tim Byrne was the starting pitcher and kept Quincy close until the sixth inning when Rich Leverault of Canton hit a three-run homer.

Eric Kreuz finished the game, holding Canton hitless. Defensively, George Wirtz, Steve Miller and John Gladu played outstanding ball.

Offensively, Butkuss had two hits and Miller scored twice. Dan Burke had two stolen bases.

Cubs Look For Strong Second Half

The Quincy Cubs improved to 6-7 in the Boston Men's Senior Baseball League with a 7-6 victory over the Hyde Park Dodgers at Kincaide Field last week.

The Cubs are in a three-way tie for the third of four playoff spots in their division at the season's halfway point.

The Cubs have gotten good pitching and solid hitting but have been plagued by poor defense.

"We are trying to hit our stride and play more consistently," said coach Paul Rooney of Quincy.

The ace of the pitching staff is former North Quincy High School standout Kurt O'Sullivan of Norton who is 2-3 with a 2.17 ERA and 24 strikeouts in 29 innings.

Larry Skinner of Randolph (1-3) has pitched well but has not gotten a lot of support. Chris Wallace of Braintree is 2-0 and Frank Evans of Milton is 1-1 with two saves. Wallace has pitched a one-hitter and is batting .423.

Offensively the team has been led by league All-Stars Bob Walker of Weymouth and Len Picot of Quincy. Walker is hitting .600 with 18 RBI and 12 stolen bases. Picot, who starred at Quincy High School, is batting .656 with 10 RBI and 10 stolen bases.

Also contributing on offense have been Rooney (.417), Mike Adams (.387) and Mark Walker (.355).

"We're hitting the ball well," Rooney said. "But occasionally we kill our own rallies with mental mistakes. We can't seem to put the pitching together with the hitting on a consistent basis."

The teams upcoming home games at Kincaide Field include Sunday, Aug. 2 against the Boston Yankees at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Aug. 16 against the Stoughton Blue Jays at 5 p.m.

22 Former Morrisette Players In Reunion Game

The Morrisette Legion Baseball Alumni Association recently held its third annual baseball game and golf tournament.

Proceeds will be used to help defray the cost of the Northeast Regionals to be hosted by Morrisette Aug. 19 to 23.

Twenty-two former Morrisette players got together for a baseball game. Playing in the game were at least one member of every team from every decade through the 1980s. The White team defeated the Blue team, 10-9, scoring four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Sixty-four players teed off at the Presidents Golf Club and played Florida-style best ball.

The winners were the foursome of Cliff and Mike

Marshall, John Chason and Bobby Paige.

The longest drive, made by Dave Brolin and Vin Moscardelli, was closest to the pin.

Prizes were awarded to the winners. A putting contest was held and a buffet luncheon was served.

In the N-10 Silver Class, Dave Nickerson and Geoff Stasiak of South Shore Y.C. finished first with Meredith Rugg and Donald Kavanagh of Squantum second and Tom Violette and Stephanie Antoine third.

"The regatta keeps growing every year, and registration seems to go further and further away. Preparation has become almost a year-round activity. The Thomas J. Lipton Company has been very supportive and is our biggest sponsor," said chairman Don McGilvary.

The Lipton Company has sponsored the regatta each year since its revival in 1986.

Soccer

Bay Bad Girls Edged In Finals On Penalty Shots

The Quincy Bay Bad Girls, Quincy's girls under 12 Division 1 soccer team sponsored by the Boston Advisory Group, went to the finals of the Memorial Day tournament in Billerica before losing to Dover-Sherborn on penalty shots after two overtime periods.

In their opener the Quincy girls edged Merrimack, N.H., 2-1. Merrimack took a 1-0 lead at halftime but outstanding goalkeeping by Leela Shanker held Merrimack at bay and Sarah Satkevich tied the score with a goal midway in the second half. Christine Gott scored the game-winner.

Jessica DiBona was outstanding at outside halfback and Erin Flaherty provided the quarterbacking that Quincy needed to organize its attack.

In game two Quinch faced Townsend and again Shanker was spectacular in goal. Melissa Keefe scored the only goal of the game. Dominique Good and Kara McSweeney played strong defense and Betsy Stone had a fine game.

Quincy met Holden, last year's semifinalist, in the third game and the teams tied, 1-1, qualifying Quincy for the semifinals.

Shanker had another fine game and Danielle Duncan scored the Quincy goal which deflected off a Holden defender. MaryBeth Feeney and Kathleen Burke played well on offense.

Shanker saw minimal action in the semifinals as Quincy defeated Concord, 5-0. Keefe, Stone, DiBona (2), and Siobhan O'Connor had the goals and Nancy Halloran, Satkevich, Feeney, Joselyn West and Flaherty had assists. Barbara Ryan provided Quincy with great scoring bids and Halloran easily beat the Concord defense with her speed.

Shanker came to the forefront again in the final against Dover-Sherborn. Quincy made repeated drives to the net but couldn't score. Halloran's long stride beat her defender but her shot was knocked out of bounds.

Stone's quick left-footed volley nearly ended the game but the D-S goalie came out of nowhere for a spectacular save. Meanwhile, Quincy's defensive trio of Good-Duncan-McSweeney held the D-S attack off-balance.

The game went into overtime. After two overtime periods the game remained scoreless but D-S won it on penalty shots.

In the South Shore League the Quincy team is in second place with a 5-2-1 record. The team will take part in upcoming tournaments in Bridgewater and Easton.

Man Charged With Kidnapping

A man who allegedly kidnapped his girlfriend and their four children Sunday night at gun point from a Germantown apartment was charged with kidnapping, armed assault, and custodial interference in Quincy District Court Monday.

In addition, Juan Valentine of Puerto Rico, was charged Monday with violation of a restraining order in Brookline District Court. Brookline authorities then released him to Quincy Police. A plea of not guilty was entered to each of the charges.

Valentine was arrested Sunday in Brookline at his sister's apartment. When Brookline Police arrested Valentine he was not in possession of a gun.

Anna Santiago, Valentine's girlfriend, left Puerto Rico because he was abusive towards her, she said. She had moved in with her sister on Taft Road last week.

Santiago and her children were not injured during the kidnapping.

Bail was set in Quincy District Court at $50,000 surety or $5,000 cash. A court spokesman said as of Tuesday Valentine had not made bail. He is scheduled to return to court Thursday, Aug. 6.

Quincy Emergency Management To Participate In Flag Raising

Quincy Emergency Management Agency will assist at the raising of the giant and well-travelled North Pole Expeditionary Flag which will be unfurled at the Scituate Lighthouse Cedar Point Friday, July 31 at 7:30 p.m.

The 300-pound flag, measuring 45 by 90 feet, was America's official flag as part of the International Arctic Ocean expedition, raveling on the country's newest and mightiest ice breaker, the U.S.C.G. cutter Polar The ship ventured farther north than any other surface vessel in history, carrying the flag far above the 83 degree parallel.

It was carried over the top of the world and through the Bering Strait.

A Coast Guard C-130 enroute from Kodiak, Alaska carried the flag to McClellan A.F.B. in Sacramento. Under escort, it was carried to U.S.C.G. headquarters at Coast Guard Island in Alameda, Calif., for official welcome-home ceremonies.

It was then placed with other national flags and carried to the Hawaiian Islands for the 50th Pearl Harbor Commemorative ceremonies.

The North Pole Expedition flag will arrive in Scituate Friday aboard a U.S. Coast Guard cutter. The flag, in its magnificent cherry chest, will be dramatically lifted from the ship and carried through the streets to Scituate's historic lighthouse. There, in formal ceremonies, the flag will be raised for the first time.

Quincy's Emergency Management Agency will utilize the agency's lighting and power unit for the unfurling.

Police Credit Residents In Five Weekend Arrests

Five arrests were made over the weekend as a direct result of a Crime Watch program recently held at St. Mary's Church in West Quincy, Police Chief Francis Mullen announces.

At the meeting, Crime Prevention Officer Bob Hanna stressed the importance of citizens working together with police in sharing information about what is happening in their neighborhoods.

One week after the meeting, several residents called Quincy police to report a prostitute working in the area. Other calls reported drug activity in the area.

As a direct result of this information, five individuals were arrested on various charges Sunday.

A 32-year-old Weymouth woman was arrested on Willard St. and charged with prostitution. A second group of individuals was arrested on various drug charges.

Donna Spender, 45, of Quincy, was charged with manufacturing and distributing a Class "B" drug and conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substance Law.

Denise McCrory, 26, of Quincy, was charged with conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substance Law.

Miguelito Ramirez, 33, and Angel Conlon, 25, both of Dorchester, were both charged with manufacturing and distributing a Class "B" drug and conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substance Law.

Mullen credited the arrests to the residents in the area and emphasized the importance of the Crime Watch program whereby citizens and police work together. He also asked anyone with any additional information on illegal drug activity to call the Quincy Police Drug Hot Line at 328-4527.

Other suspected criminal activity can be reported to the Quincy Police Detective Bureau at 479-1212 ext. 312.

Funding Proposal Seen 'Step In Right Direction' Studs Water Project Plan Backed Here

By JANE ARENA and ROBERT BOSWORTH
A plan unveiled by Cong. Gerry Studs Monday to establish a National Clean Water Investment Corporation designed to help fund large scale water projects including the Boston Harbor cleanup was received warmly by some city officials.

Studs met with area officials from Quincy to Plymouth in Hingham Monday to discuss his proposal to establish the corporation, whereby projects such as the Boston Harbor cleanup would be largely financed by big business and industry under a "polluter pays" principle.

Those in attendance, including Quincy Public Works Commissioner David Colton, briefly addressed their own needs in terms of funding for clean water projects, including treatment plants and sewer projects, and voiced their discontent over soaring MWRA rates in their communities.

Studs acknowledged their grievances and said this major proposal attempts to address those concerns on a national level.

Under the proposal, which was scheduled to be discussed in Washington yesterday (Wednesday), up to $25 billion would be put into state revolving funds to help finance state and local clean water projects across the country.

Mayor James Sheets and Colton said they agree the proposal is a step in the right direction in stabilizing water and sewer rates.

"I think this (Studs') proposal is a good one. It's only the beginning but it's an attempt to create a more stable fund for clean water programs for projects like the Boston Harbor cleanup," Colton said.

Sheets will testify in support of the plan before a House Subcommittee on Fisheries and the Environment next Wednesday. While in Washington, the mayor will also recommend that the funding formula for the Clean Water Act return to 80% federal, 15% state and 5% city.

The federal government's share shrank during the Reagan Administration. Congress is expected to authorize a new funding formula in 1993.

A larger funding share by the federal government would bring some relief to ratepayers burdened by the $6 billion Boston Harbor cleanup, Sheets said Tuesday.

"If this passes, there will be some relief for rate payers and in my opinion, it's the only way we are going to get relief."

"Certainly, there are inequities in what communities pay (the MWRA) to clean Boston Harbor) but when you look

Residents Invited To Attend Beaches Commission Meeting

The public is invited to attend a meeting of the Boston Harbor Beaches Commission Monday, Aug. 10 at 6:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room of Quincy City Hall.

The joint committee was appointed by Gov. William Weld and Boston Mayor Ray Flynn to study the restoration of the Boston Harbor beaches including Wollaston Beach in Quincy.

Mayor James Sheets urges all Quincy residents interested in not only Wollaston Beach but all of Quincy's beaches to attend and voice their concerns and recommendations for better access and use of the city's 26-mile waterfront.

"The commission is particularly interested in Wollaston Beach and Nickerson Beach but we feel this is good opportunity to discuss all of the city's beaches," said Executive Secretary Tom Koch.

The commission, chaired by John Drew, president of the John Drew Company and vice-chaired by Boston Parks Commissioner Laurence Dwyer, will produce recommendations by this December. The final report and post-brochure will serve to educate interested citizens about the recreational and natural resource value of the area's beaches, as well as provide shared vision to guide public sector action along the shoreline.

The report and brochure will also be used as a marketing tool to solicit public and funding support.

Paul Kennedy of Squantum, a member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, is Quincy's representative on the commission. With the cleaning of Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay, Kennedy noted the commission believes the beaches of the metropolitan area, particularly Quincy, should be fully realized as a recreational and cultural resource and enjoyed to their fullest by the community.

Other commission members include MDC Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti, Boston Water and Sewer Executive Director Robert Ciolek, Boston

Environment Department Director Lorraine Downey, Rep. Paul Gannon, MWRA Director Doug MacDonald, Ted Park from the Office of the Senate President, Boston

Greenspace Alliance Director Mark Primack, state Environmental Affairs Secretary Susan Tiemey and Department of Environmental Management Commissioner Peter Webber.

Houghs Neck Veterans Memorial Lighting Ceremony Saturday

A lighting ceremony for the Houghs Neck Veterans Memorial at the corner of Manet Ave. and Sea St. will be held Saturday, Aug. 8 at 8 p.m., announces Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

The memorial commemorates the lives of servicemen in U.S. conflicts.

The event will coincide with the installation of new officers at the American Legion Post #380.

The lighting was made possible through Kolson who purchased a special flood light. "The light is on a timer and the keys will be turned over to the post for safekeeping," Kolson said.

Saturday will mark the first time the monument has ever been lit. The 15-foot high rectangular memorial is made out of black granite. It is engraved with approximately 40 names of Houghs Neck war veterans who died in the line of action.

The granite monument also has an eagle etched at the top of it.

The first Houghs Neck war memorial was made out of wood. It was replaced by the granite monument in the 1950s.

Kolson said he is very proud of the post and is happy to honor the request of Commander Russell Barnatelli to keep the memorial light in the evenings.

Ward 4 Neighborhood Assn. To Honor Granite Workers With 12-Foot Sculpture

The Ward 4 Neighborhood Association is planning to erect a monument in honor of the granite workers of West and South Quincy.

A preliminary sketch of the monument, which was designed by Linda Montilio of Monti Granite Co., shows a stonemason wearing a cap and apron holding a stone hammer and a point used for sculpting stone. The monument will be 12 feet high with the base and top made of blue-gray Quincy granite. The middle, which has the stonemason engraving, will be made of pink granite from Westerly, R.I.

Montilio said the pink granite is easier to sculpt and will show the details better than the Quincy granite.

The association will soon decide on a West or South Quincy location for the monument. Donations from business and community members are being accepted.

For more information or to pass along names of former Quincy granite workers or stonemasons, call Steve Cantelli at 479-1019 or Ernest Aristide at 472-6312.

Studds Unveils Plan To Fund Water Projects

at the cost of the cleanup, you're going to have to get some big dollars out of the federal government."

Studds secured the help of the Congressional Research Service (CRS) to issue a report on his proposal.

William Stelle Jr., general counsel for the Subcommittee on Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation and the Environment of the U.S. House of Representatives, joined Studds Monday to discuss the plan.

Studds said he hopes the plan can "hit the ground running" next January, but is now only in the preliminary discussion stages.

In introducing his proposal, Studds acknowledged skyrocketing sewer and water bills and the high cost of municipal sewage treatment plants are of national concern, not just a regional issue, and must be addressed on the federal level.

Rising rates, he said, are not due to a lack of local leadership, but by the lack of state and federal government expenditures.

He said the nation's post-Cold War spending priorities must shift to put more money into domestic projects such as providing affordable clean water.

"Billions that had been directed against the Soviets may now be channelled into domestic programs that mean something to the American taxpayer," he said, "like clean water."

But, because the federal deficit imposes limits on new funding, and because any federal funds would be more likely to go to "the big fish like the MWRA," Studds said alternative sources of funding must be identified, and the Clean Water Investment Corporation, he explains, is one such proposal.

The proposed corporation would issue federally backed "Clean Water Bonds" which would be secured by three sources of annual revenues derived from industry fees and federal appropriations, amounting to $5 billion annually.

Fees on the industrial discharge of toxic pollution into the nation's water supply would raise as much as $2 billion per year, according to the proposal.

A fee on the manufacturing of active ingredients in pesticides and fertilizers would contribute another $1 billion per year.

Anticipated annual federal appropriations would bring the total annual revenues to about $5 billion, he said.

However, the proposed fee system would contain exemptions for small businesses whose pollution contribution may be marginal.

The money from the bonds, perhaps as much as $25 billion, would then be put into state revolving funds for use in financing not only major sewer projects, but a "broad array of clean water activities," he explained.

The corporation would be responsible for disbursing the money from the revolving funds, Studds explained, in an effort to simplify the process and minimize costs.

Stelle explained the disbursement may consist of grants as well as loans for specific projects.

"You could take perhaps 25 percent of the capital and channel it into a grants program for communities," he said.

The proposal states that the disbursements of the money ought to maximize state and local flexibility to address their specific needs. Mandatory federal requirements on how money should be spent should be minimized under the proposal, Studds explained.

The allocation formula under the current Clean Water Act would be revised to more accurately reflect the funding needs of cities and towns, including funding to address sewer overflows and controlling stormwater runoff.

By Henry Bosworth

We'll Miss You, Baron

Baron Hugo.

A name with just nine letters.

But, oh, how much more than that.

Whenever you heard the name it immediately took you on a sentimental journey back to the Totem Pole and the big band era.

And, for many in more recent years, trips aboard the Boston Belle from Boston to Provincetown, the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant, Summerfest at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre, high school class reunions and wedding receptions.

And to some future social event you were looking forward to largely because he was going to be there.

The big band era faded, but Baron never did. His band was smaller, but he was going strong with bookings a good year ahead, right up to last week when suddenly he was gone at age 88. He would have been 89 Sept. 11 and was looking forward to a big 90th birthday party in 1993.

Baron Hugo, The bow tie, the plaid, sometimes a bit wild, jacket. That infectious smile. And that Harvard drum.

He had a heart bigger than that drum, giving generously of his time—and money—to worthy causes and charity.

As for his musical career, he said in an interview a few years ago:

"I've always wanted to please people. As long as I can remember I have been trying to do that—to entertain. 'That's what music is for. That's what dancing and entertainment are all about.'"

And for well over 60 years—six decades—he did that. And much more.

"He made so many people so happy down through the years and he was so happy doing it," notes Bill Fitzgerald of Photo Quick of Quincy, one of his ardent fans. "Wouldn't we all like to be like that?"

"It's the end of a long, beautiful era," says another admirer and fellow musician, Paul Ricca of Quincy.

Russ Johnson, one of his biggest fans and long-time friend fondly remembers Baron at the Totem Pole in Norumbega Park, Auburndale, where he led the 35-piece house band ("biggest band in the nation!") and shared the stage and spotlight with the likes of Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Harry James, Guy Lombardo, Bob Crosby, Gene Krupa, etc.

"Taking a date to the Totem Pole was the closest thing to heaven—something you cherished and never forgot," says Johnson.

Baron Hugo Tribute Aug. 11

"A Tribute To Baron Hugo" will be held Tuesday, Aug. 11 at 6:30 p.m. at the Gazebo at Milton Town Hall, 525 Canton Ave.

Music will be by Baron Hugo's Band. A concert with Baron Hugo had been planned on that date to celebrate the completion of the Gazebo which recently had a handicapped ramp installed.

However, Baron Hugo died last week. He donated the Gazebo to the town. Rain date is Aug. 12.

Johnson also fondly remembers Baron singing in the choir of the Parkway Methodist Church in Milton which Baron attended and where a memorial service was held Sunday.

"He was always there with the choir," says Johnson, who also attends that church. "He was there until the beginning of July when the choir took a summer break. He would have been back in the fall."

Baron did volunteer work and entertained at Milton Hospital as well as at nursing homes and senior citizen clubs.

He donated a handsome gazebo to the town of Milton and just a week or so ago was there for the completion of a handicap ramp for it.

Although he lived his later years in Milton, he was a Quincy boy and never lost his love for Quincy. He was born in Finland and grew up in West Quincy.

Long-time friend Harry Carlson of Milton, who sometimes sang with Baron's band, recalls Baron getting his musical start in Quincy when he bought a pair of drumsticks and practiced for three days before joining a band here.

It was 1924 and Baron was working at Olsen's Hardware store in Quincy, earning $9 a week. When he joined the band, he made $8 in one night.

A little arithmetic and he quickly decided musical notes had more to offer than nuts and bolts in a hardware store.

Baron never finished high school but was made an honorary member of the Quincy High School class of 1942 while he was playing at one of their reunions. He was proud of that.

His real name was Hugo Engelbert Lira and he took Baron Hugo as a stage name, borrowing Baron from the radio storyteller-comedian Baron Munchausen and using his own first name as his new last.

He was proud of the name Hugo and was more than a little upset in 1989 when Hurricane Hugo slammed into Charleston, S.C., wreaking devastation and grief.

He felt the hurricane tarnished his good name. And he wanted to make up for it and do something for the victims.

So, for a whole week in October of that year, Baron did a one-man show with his drums in front of Quincy City Hall. And donated a few of his paintings (he painted landscapes and seascapes) to the cause.

Many of us will always remember Baron at The Quincy Sun Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon Pledge Center.

Every Labor Day for 10 years, Baron would entertain with band members like Ken Lodge, Al Perry and George DeMattia, outside The Sun, to help attract donors to the fishbowl.

Lodge, who played trumpet with Baron's first Totem Pole band mused: "He used to work us harder for charities than he did for paying jobs. But I wouldn't have changed him for anything."

Each year as we went over the top at the Pledge Center, he would lead the victory march through The Sun office with a rousing "Happy Days Are Here Again."

The hundreds of volunteers who helped man the telephone, mail out the pledge cards and count fishbowl receipts, all of which added up to over $1 million to fight Muscular Dystrophy, looked forward to Baron's victory march. It was the grand finale to a long, working weekend for a good cause.

Baron was one of those rare individuals who don't come along very often in your lifetime.

I'm glad he was there in mine. And I'm sure there are thousands of others whose lives he touched and who will miss him, like I will.

So long, Baron.

BARON HUGO

Vote In The Sept. 15 Primary

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
In a few weeks, folks living in Quincy's First Norfolk District will have to make a choice between several qualified candidates running for state representative.

This House seat is presently occupied by State Rep. Mike Morrissey, who is running for the state senate, and before him, Joe Brett. The issues affecting our various neighborhoods may have changed over the years but a state representative still remains a voice and vote for his constituency up on Beacon Hill.

I know that North

Quincy needs a full-time state representative with a full-time commitment to working with area residents in making state government work for working people.

Over the last two months, I have watched and listened to the various candidates. I won't name names here but I will say is that I'm voting Democratic for the first time in a long while. What is important is that all the candidates in this House race tell the voters their hopes for the future of North Quincy and Wollaston in this last decade of the 20th century.

Someone once said that politics was an art and not a science and that principles mean something. If the voters of my district have a litmus test for candidates, it might be to enter the Massachusetts House of Representatives with an open mind and to hold no inflexible ideological intolerances.

The President of the United States may be the highest office in the land but when it comes to direct impact on our lives, it is our state representative who actually makes a bigger difference.

As a student of state and local government, I am fully aware that for me as a North Quincy resident, the two most important voices belong to my ward councillor at City Hall and my state representative at the State House.

Please vote for the candidate of your choice in the Sept. 15 primary. You owe it to yourself, your family and your neighborhood to do so.

Thanks For The Memory, Baron

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
We have lost one more exponent of grace and gentility. Baron Hugo is now a member of a bigger band. I am sure that he will be welcomed by the greats who preceded him - and he'll be invited to lead a group of good musicians whose standards set the Nation to dancing with pleasure and panache.

He survived the dissonance and decibels of rock & roll and punk and pandemonium.

The couples, young and old, who danced with deep delight to his rippling rhythm and stardust sweetness will miss him but remember him.

His talent epitomized good taste. His contributions are characterized by competence and charisma. And maybe on some New Year's Eve we'll glimpse his smile when we kiss our own true love. And the music goes down and around!

His epitaph should be: "Thanks For The Memory."

Evelyn's Bread Pudding

Here is a different way to make bread pudding given to me by my friend Evelyn. It's much lighter and fluffier and prepared with powdered milk.

EVELYN'S BREAD PUDDING

4 cups powdered non-fat milk (mixed)
4 eggs
3/4 cups sugar
1 tsp butter or margarine pinch of salt
4 cups bread (cut in pieces)

1 1/2 tps vanilla
1/2 tsp nutmeg
1/2 cup raisins

Scald the milk. Add the bread and let set for five minutes. Add the sugar and butter. Then add the beaten eggs, salt and vanilla and fold. Add the nutmeg and raisins. The raisins will naturally sink. Place the baking dish in oven (set it in a dish of hot water) and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Serve with freshly whipped cream if desired.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

'Senior Beat' Wins National Cable Award

Council on Aging Chairman John Noonan and Continental Cablevision's Darlene Mendoza, co-producers of Quincy cable TV's "Senior Beat," have taken first-place honors in the national Hometown USA Video Festival for the best local TV series for senior citizens.

"Senior Beat" was among more than 2,000 entries in some 30 categories from more than 400 communities in the competition, which is sponsored by the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers.

The series, which premiered on Continental Cablevision's Ch. 3 in Quincy in February 1990, is a monthly 30-minute TV magazine which includes interviews, activities and coverage of senior citizen issues ranging from entertainment to health care, fitness, crime prevention and home safety.

The show is hosted by Noonan and most of the video footage is shot in the field. Mendoza edits the program.

"When I retired 10 years ago, I had absolutely no experience in television and thought it would be interesting to take Continental's video production training workshop," said Noonan. "I've been at it ever since and, when Continental suggested three years ago that we do a show for senior citizens that would be largely shot out of the studio, on location, I thought that would be a great way to provide a more informative, entertaining program for the city's senior citizens.

"I'm very proud that 'Senior Beat' has been recognized by fellow local cable programmers nationwide, and a large part of the credit must go to Continental's Darlene Mendoza, whose production expertise and editing make the show an artistic success."

"A first-place award in the Hometown USA Video Festival says that your peers in local cable programming think your show is the best of its kind done anywhere in the country," Mendoza said. "I'm proud to be a part of 'Senior Beat' and very pleased for John Noonan, who really throws himself into every month's production."

Noonan and Mendoza received their award at the recent annual conference of the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers in Minneapolis, Minn. Their trip was sponsored by Quincy Community Television. "Senior Beat" airs Tuesdays at 7 p.m. on Ch. 3.

City Councillors, School Committee Endorse Harold

City Council and School Committee members joined Mayor James Sheets in endorsing State Sen. Paul Harold's candidacy for U.S. representative in the 10th Congressional District.

The endorsement ceremony was held last week on the steps of United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

City Council President Charles Phelan said "Paul is a man of honesty and integrity. He has also showed great courtesy and attention to both elected officials of the city as well as his constituents. I am pleased to support one of our own in his bid for Congress."

Joining Phelan in his support were Councillors Peter Kolson, Ted DeCristofaro, Tom Fabrizio, Bruce Ayers, Patricia Toland and Michael Cheney.

Quincy School

Committee members Vice Chairman Steve Durkin, Frank Santoro, Ron Mariano, Dan Raymond, Peggy King and Linda Stice all stated their support of Harold's candidacy.

In his remarks, Santoro said "I would like to thank Paul Harold for making the children of this city a priority. I know that he will do the same as our Congressman in Washington. I am pleased to give Paul the unanimous support of the School Committee members."

If elected, Harold would be the first Congressman from Quincy since John Quincy Adams.

Harold thanked all of his supporters and stated, "The endorsement of Mayor Sheets is the single most important endorsement of my campaign."

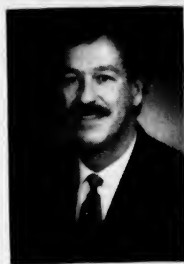

Mariano Re-election Candidate For State Rep

Ron Mariano, state representative from the Third Norfolk District (Quincy-Weymouth) announces he is a candidate for re-election to the seat he won in a special election held eight months ago.

"Assuming office in the middle of a term is very difficult, especially at the end of the legislative year," Mariano said. "However, in my short time in office, I have become familiar with the legislative process and have initiated legislation that I feel is important to the residents of our district."

Mariano stressed his commitment to solving the problems of the Fore River basin and the many other problems that affect the commonwealth. "I have always assumed a leadership role, as president of the Ward 2 Civic Association, chairman of the Ward 2 Democratic Committee, director of the Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution and Quincy School Committee member."

"I have worked hard to have an impact on the problems that face my community. My first speech on the floor of the House of Representatives was against a bill that removed Clean Harbors from the control of the Braintree Board of Health. This bill was important to the leadership of the House but I stood up for the best interests of my constituents."

RON MARIANO

Mariano said he will continue to focus on the MWRA and its impact on the residents of the Third Norfolk District. "I will continue to lead the fight to protect the interests of the residents of Quincy and Weymouth," he said.

Over the past eight months while in office, Mariano has sponsored many pieces of legislation. Among them three bills to help defray the cost of the MWRA to local residents, as well as a resolution asking the Massachusetts federal delegation for a billion dollars in additional funding for the harbor cleanup.

Mariano has also initiated a number of studies that will require the MWRA to begin to develop the property at the Fore River Shipyard. The first study will be to come up with uses for the administrative office buildings.

"It is time these buildings begin to produce revenue to help reduce the cost to ratepayers, rather than just sitting there rotting away," Mariano said.

The second study will determine the feasibility of building floating prisons at the shipyard and locating them offshore to help alleviate overcrowding.

Another Mariano bill would create a Quincy Naval Shipbuilding Museum at the shipyard.

"The museum will be the first of its kind in the country and I intend to help make it happen. The creation of the museum will be the catalyst in the development of the shipyard."

Other issues that Mariano has filed bills on include health care, crime and education.

Mariano emphasized his experience and knowledge of government at all different levels. He has served on the Norfolk County Advisory Board and Quincy School Committee.

"As a member of the school committee I have seen first hand the effect of cutbacks in local aid to city services. The cuts I witnessed motivated me to fight for the inclusion of $186 million."

"I was also a strong proponent of tightening the language in Chapter 90. These changes would force the governor to return revenues collected from the gas tax back to road repair and construction projects rather than to the general fund."

"We must start putting people back to work," he added.

A lifelong Quincy resident and an active member of the community, Mariano said he is seeking re-election so that he can continue to serve the people of the Third Norfolk District.

"I strongly believe that the commitment to public service does not begin with putting your name on the ballot. It is a long term investment in your community, your friends, and your neighbors," he said.

Jon Bryan "...is clearly capable of handling the demands on a Congressman. What's more, he comes to the voter with a fresh new approach to a lot of the old problems that incumbents in Congress, including our own, have failed to solve or even address. Tobin Endorses Regional Radiation Therapy Service

Rep. Steve Tobin has urged public health officials to approve an application made by Quincy and South Shore Hospitals to locate a radiation therapy service on the South Shore.

Currently, those citizens who live south of Boston are the only ones without this service in the greater Boston area.

"There is a growing need for radiation therapy to treat a wide variety of cancers due to the fact that there are over 1,300 new cases of cancer on the South Shore diagnosed every year, with a large proportion of those being elderly Quincy residents," Tobin said.

Cancer patients from Quincy must drive up to an hour each way to be treated in Boston for radiation therapy.

"Locating a treatment center on the South Shore would greatly reduce the expense and discomfort patients must now endure in order to undergo therapy in Boston," Tobin said.

In addition to providing the service, the cost of the expensive equipment needed will be shared by both Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. If approved, the program will begin perhaps as early as next year.

Rev. Dr. Cecil R. Paul, 57

President Eastern Nazarene College

A funeral service for the Rev. Dr. Cecil Rowland Paul, 57, of Quincy, president of Eastern Nazarene College, was conducted yesterday (Wednesday) at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene by the pastor, the Rev. Russell Metcalf.

Dr. Paul died Aug. 1 at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage at home.

The 10th president of Eastern Nazarene College and an ordained Nazarene minister, he came to the college in 1963 to teach psychology. He developed and led the psychology department and, as director of graduate studies in 1979, helped establish master of arts programs in family counseling and pastoral counseling and several graduate education programs for public school teachers and others.

Dr. Paul made hiring of women and minorities a priority and developed support programs for needy students. His evening program, Leadership Education for Adults, allowed mature students to complete a business degree in a non-traditional format.

The author of four books, he contributed to several other academic and denominational publications and in 1985 he produced a five-part video series based on his book, "Choices: In Pursuit of Wholeness," with Dr. Janet S. Lanham, now college vice president of student development.

Dr. Paul and Mayor James Sheets, who met more than 20 years ago, became very close friends. Their friendship began while Sheets was an instructor at Quincy Junior College and Dr. Paul was a professor at Eastern Nazarene College in the early 1970s. They also were members of the same church, the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

In 1981, they began taking camping trips which solidified their friendship. On their first trip to the Alagash Wilderness in Maine, the two friends camped and hiked nearly 100 miles up to the Canadian border.

Rev. Dr. CECIL R. PAUL

"Cecil was a very, very close friend and he was kind of a man for all seasons," Sheets said. "We spent many hours together camping and white-water canoeing and in those situations you get to know someone very well."

On their camping trips, Dr. Paul took two of his three boys along, as did Sheets, when they could. "He was a great family man," the mayor said.

Sheets said he cherished his friendship with Dr. Paul because his friend was always there to discuss any problem. "Over the years, we were able to talk about any subject and enjoy life together. He helped me when I struggled on an issue and I helped him."

"It was just one of those friendships that happen once in a lifetime," he added.

After Sheets was elected mayor in 1989, that friendship continued. The mayor asked Dr. Paul to give the invocation during his Mid-Term Address in January, 1991.

In 1971, Dr. Paul founded the Wollaston Counseling Associates. That, as Beechwood Counseling Services, became part of Beechwood Community Life Center, which he founded and directed until 1984.

Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Community Life Center, praised Dr. Paul's effort in establishing the center.

"His unique philosophy for partnership and community education was the foundation on which Beechwood was founded (Cont'd on Page 13)

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Enthusiasm ... What a beautiful word. It is one of the things that make "our old world" go round. Where would we be without it?

D. Scott Deware

Our capacity for enthusiasm is one of our greatest assets. Sadly, many people lose their enthusiasm and become old before their time. Without realizing it many people allow the buffeting and herd knock of life to dampen their enthusiasm, and kill their zeal for life.

It has been said, often and truthfully: "A man without judgment is like a car without breaks; but a man without enthusiasm is like a car without a motor."

Without enthusiasm and its driving power, nothing worth doing could be done and ever has been done ... Love, religion, friendship, devotion to career or hobby ... all these and most of the other good things in life are just really forms of enthusiasm.

Yes, enthusiasm is a beautiful word!

and continues to grow. His commitment to lifelong learning and growth within an intergenerational framework is the legacy he leaves with Beechwood."

Beals added that she and the rest of the staff at Beechwood were shocked when they first heard the sad news.

"We were all devastated, just stunned," she said. "I just couldn't believe that this healthy man was gone. He will be sorely missed."

Dr. Lanham, who knew Dr. Paul for 24 years as both a student and colleague, also expressed great sadness at the loss of her longtime friend.

"It was just an unbelievable shock for both the family and everyone on campus," said Dr. Lanham, who had just seen Dr. Paul the day before he died. "Aneurysms are something that just happen; there's no warning."

"Dr. Paul was an enormous supporter, encourager and inspirer. He was a very singular personality, a unique balance of creativity, intelligence and compassion that I haven't seen in too many people."

"He had the rare abilities to take problems and to make something of those problems, and to see in people gifts that they had and to try and develop those gifts.

"It's hard to put into words how much of a loss this is. I wish more people had the chance to really know him. But he's left a tremendous legacy to follow, and that's going to be the task."

Historical Society To Publish Book On Squantum

The Quincy Historical Society announces that a book on the history of Squantum will be published this fall.

The late Gordon F. Nelson had researched Squantum's past, extending from Indian lore to the age of aviation, and began collecting photographs and other materials. He pursued this work for many years and in great depth.

In the case of the famous Squantum Air Meet of 1910, he contacted families of the celebrities who participated or were observers.

Unfortunately, Nelson died before he could complete his research or put his material in book form. Following his death in 1982, his material was turned over to the Historical Society which continued his research.

The long effort has now come to fruition and the material is with a publisher. The book will be called "Squantum—in the State of Massachusetts."

It is a combination history text and picture book for enjoyable reading.

The book is dedicated to Nelson. The hard cover text will include about 50 pictures.

Squantum is a distinctive community with a history of more than just local interest. The book will have special interest for people with connections to Squantum and Marina Bay.

The book will contain eight chapters by local authors with special knowledge of their subjects. The editor is H. Hobart Holly, Historian of the Quincy Historical Society.

The titles of the chapters give an idea of the book's scope: From the Beginning; Land and Farms; Squantum Develops; Squantum, the Popular Resort; New Squantum - From Ludlow's Neck to Marina Bay; The Squantum Air Meets; Squantum Institutions and Features; Lore and People.

Distribution is planned for late fall. The Society is soliciting people who wish to subscribe in advance and have their names listed in the book as sponsors.

Atty. John McGlone III Named Youville Overseer

Quincy Atty. John J. McGlone III of the law firm of Cooley, Manion, Moore and Jones, P.C., in Boston, was appointed an overseer of the St. Marguerite d'Youville Foundation of Youville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center in Cambridge.

A graduate of the University of Massachusetts and Suffolk University Law School, McGlone is a member of Massachusetts, American and Boston Bar Associations and the Trial Attorneys Academy. His uncle served as a pastor at Youville Hospital.

House Overrides Weld Veto On Education Funding

Quincy's three state representatives helped the House override a veto by Gov. Weld, leading to an increase in funding for public education.

Led by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) approval was given to a provision to establish a per pupil funding schedule. As a result, cities and towns will receive $100 per pupil in additional education funding assistance.

Weld had vetoed the educational funding measure, wanting to wait until an educational reform package for students in grades K-12 was adopted before giving school districts extra aid.

Rep. Steve Tobin said delaying the funding until such a package could have been adopted would have left thousands without the resources from which to learn.

Mass Choice Endorses Koval For State Senate

Joanne Koval, a Holbrook selectman and Democratic candidate for the Norfolk district senate seat, was endorsed by Mass Choice, the state's leading pro-choice organization, at a recent rally held at McIntyre Mall next to Quincy City Hall.

"Joanne Koval understands the importance of protecting the right of every woman in the state to choose a safe and legal abortion," said Joyce Cunha, associate director of Mass Choice PAC. "We applaud Joanne's strong commitment to this critical issue. We look forward to her leadership in the State Senate."

Reacting to the endorsement, Koval said "The freedom of choice is a basic right in America."

Smoke Fouls Residents

Smoke from a fire in Braintree caused sore throats and nausea for some residents of 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy Sunday night.

Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said that heavy black smoke from a fire at the former Weymouth Art Leather

Rep. Ron Mariano said "When you suffer a cut, you don't allow yourself to bleed until you get to a doctor. Instead, you take whatever steps you can to stop bleeding, and then look for professional help to do the rest."

"Similarly, while educational reform will be top priority of mine, I could not stand by idly and watch students suffer further from a lack of educational resources," Mariano added.

Buoyed by the overwhelming support the override received in both branches, and confident that the funding to be received locally will have a positive impact on the upcoming school year, Morrissey said his override vote was among the most pleasurable he has ever cast.

The issue is not just about abortion. This is about politicians in Washington and in the Massachusetts State Senate taking away our basic freedoms.

"And it is time that the people had control over the government for a change."

Mass Choice is a 14,000 member statewide organization that works to keep abortion safe, legal and accessible.

"The right to choose itself is at stake in this election," Cunha said. "Because we can no longer rely on the Supreme Court, we must look to our state legislators to protect this most basic and fundamental right."

"For this reason, we urge voters of the Norfolk district to vote for Joanne Koval for state senate."

factory in South Braintree drifted into Quincy.

The building manager at 1000 Southern Artery received 15 calls complaining about the foul smell. Some residents said they thought the odor was coming from the nearby MWRA sewage and sludge plant.

The state Fire Marshall's office is investigating the cause of the fire which Braintree fire officials said was suspicious.

Aug. 29 Deadline For Visa Applications

Cong. Gerry Studds reminds area residents of the approaching deadline for applications for immigration visas under a special program that affects many families in the Quincy area.

"This program has worked very well in the past and has been critical in reuniting many Irish and Polish immigrants with family and friends here in Massachusetts," Studds said, "but there have been some problems that I would hope we can avoid this year."

All applications for the 1993 immigrant visa lottery under the federal government's AA-1 must be submitted by Friday, Aug. 29. Successful applicants will be selected in random order from among all of those received.

Only one application per person may be submitted. If an applicant files multiple applications in the hopes of increasing his or her chances in the lottery, all future applications will be voided.

The visa lottery was established by Congress in 1986 to balance the adverse impact or prior immigration laws on certain foreign countries—mostly Western European nations such as Ireland, Poland and others. An extension of the law provides an additional 40,000 immigrant visas each year for 1992, 1993 and 1994. Of these, 40 percent are set aside for natives of Ireland, including Northern Ireland.

The special visas have been termed "Donnelly Visas" because of their initial sponsorship by Cong. Brian Donnelly. Studds was an original supporter of the program.

Visa applications should be mailed to AA-1 Program, P.O. Box 1993, Dulles, VA, 21301-1993, USA.

The government requires no fee at the time of submission of an AA-1 registration request and no special legal assistance is required. In the past, there have been some reports of counselors advertising "special assistance" with visa applications for high fees.

Winds Make Race Week Most Interesting In Years

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last week's 55th edition of Quincy Bay Race Week was one of the most interesting in years thanks to the winds.

"The winds were the most variable we have ever had during Race Week," said QBRWA President Dan Falvey. "We had southwest winds blowing hard, southwest winds blowing easy, southeast winds blowing hard and stiff westerly winds. They made for a most interesting week."

Falvey was delighted with the response to the first ocean races for the cruising class and the QBRWA plans to continue these races in the future.

"We had 30 boats register but due to the howling winds on Saturday, we had to cancel the races. Twenty boats went out on Sunday and the shippers were delighted with the winds," said Falvey. "The bigger boats were able to make it but the smaller boats couldn't. All the skippers expressed their pleasure and are looking forward to coming back next year."

Racing had to be canceled last Friday due to rain but double the races were held Sunday so nothing was lost.

Another new feature of Race Week which proved popular was the clinic held for juniors by Jack Willy, who has dominated junior racing. A large number attended his clinic last Thursday.

Sunday's annual Marine Parade featured 60 boats decorated with the theme, "Sailing: 1492 to 1992."

The Hustler Fleet racing had the usual dominant names with Harry Carleton defeated his perennial rival, Joe Carven Jr.

Willy earned his fifth Laser Fleet title, finishing ahead of his daughter, Janese, and Denis Bell.

Two Trophy Nights were held this year. Saturday night was the reception and awards for the cruising class at Town River and Sunday night following the racing, the awards were presented to all other classes plus the Marine Parade at Squantum.

The annual Gala Rendezvous Night was held last Saturday night at Town River following the presentations.

Roche Wins

2nd Straight

N-10 Blue Title

Squantum's Terrance Roche won the N-10 Blue Fleet for the second year in a row. Hilary Drohan took second and Scott Boussy edged Melissa Mendhenhall for third place.

Robert Blakey of Squantum placed 12th.

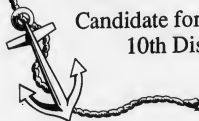

A BROKEN LEG didn't stop Wessagussett's Dorothy Chase from competing in Quincy Bay Race Week. Chase broke her leg a few days before the regatta but sailed in the Laser fleet.

"PORCUPINE," left, skippered by Terrance Roche of Squantum won the N-10 Blue title. Tom Violette of Wessagussett, right, is to windward of Roche.

Morrisette In State Finals After Defeating Brockton

By TOM SULLIVAN
The Morrisette Legion baseball team, after being eliminated in the South Sectional finals the past two years, will make its first appearance in the state finals since 1977 when it plays Saturday night at Chicopee.

Morrisette's first round opponent in the double elimination tournament was unknown at press time.

For the first time ever two teams from Zone 6 are in the state finals. In addition to zone champion Morrisette, runnerup Braintree is in the finals for the third time in four years.

Morrisette made the finals by defeating Brockton in two straight games after taking two out of three from Walpole.

Last year Brockton's other team, the Spartan A.C., eliminated Morrisette in the sectional finals and two years ago, in an outstanding three-game series, Morrisette fell to Fall River.

Tom Balzano stole the show offensively in the two victories over Brockton.

Sunday at Brockton Balzano hit two long home runs, one a grand slam, to spark a 12-5 victory.

Mike Patch, who had pitched Morrisette to a win in the opener against Walpole, returned to action and went the distance, despite not having his best stuff.

He allowed only one earned run, struck out 11 and walked two. Three of Brockton's five runs came in the fifth when his defense fell apart. After that Patch had little trouble as he improved his record to 7-0 with two saves.

Chris MacDonald, the hero of the Walpole series, had an RBI double and Mark Kelleher, who had a torrid bat down the stretch, had a two-run triple.

Coach Dave Perdios took a chance in Saturday night's Brockton opener (a 5-4 win in 10 innings) and gave 16-year-old Dan Duncan his first pitching start of the year. He had pitched only 4 1/3 innings of relief but pitched nine strong innings against a team which had scored 26 runs in a two-game sweep over Fall River. He allowed only six hits, struck out eight and walked seven.

In the 10th the first two Brockton batters reached on a walk and a safe bunt.

Fifteen-year-old Tommy Malvesti took over. The runners were bunted along and a sacrifice fly brought in a run to give Brockton a 4-3 lead. Malvesti struck out the final batter.

The Brockton pitcher walked three men with two outs in the bottom of the 10th and Balzano rified a shot up the middle to drive in the two winning runs. Malvesti earned his fourth run of the year.

Morrisette had only 11 hits in the Brockton series but took advantage of 18 walks. Balzano went 4-for-11 with his fourth and fifth home runs of the year and eight RBI. MacDonald was 2-for-7 with three RBI. Kane 2-for-7, Kelleher had a double and two RBI. Duncan a double and two RBI. Serge Belcastro an RBI single. Mark Cahill a hit and Pat Shea scored four runs in the series.

In the opener against Walpole Patch was the winning pitcher in a 6-5 victory. MacDonald drove in four runs including the game winner on two triples and a double.

Patch went the distance, giving up five hits and two earned runs, striking out 10 and walking two. He also picked up a save in the third and deciding game of the series.

Sean Donovan suffered his first loss after seven wins as Walpole came from behind for an 11-9 win in the second game, called in the eighth inning because of rain.

Donovan seemed in control with a 5-1 lead in the sixth, but Walpole exploded for six runs in the sixth on six hits and an error. It scored four more in the seventh.

MacDonald had a sensational day in the final 7-4 win over Walpole, going 5-for-5.

Matt O'Toole pitched well, picking up his fourth win, allowing only two hits but walked eight while striking out seven. Tom Malvesti had another fine game in relief, pitching scoreless ball for two innings, striking out three and walking two.

Morrisette scored in each of the first four innings. Leading, 3-0, in the fourth, Shea singled with one out, Kane reached on a bunt single and MacDonald hit a two-run triple and Morrisette led, 5-0.

Patch entered the game with runners on second and third and one out in the eighth.

He struck out the next two batters and pitched a flawless ninth to get the save.

Morrisette hit the ball hard in this series, pounding out 38 hits. Kane went 7-for-15 and Balzano 5-for-10 with four RBI. Dave Reinhart 5-for-11 and Shea 5-for-14 with three RBI.

"We played excellent ball in the sectionals, with a few defensive exceptions," said Perdios, a former Morrisette star who is in his fifth year as coach and in the state finals for the first time. MacDonald was on fire in the Walpole series and Balzano was red hot in the Brockton series.

"Balzano has been one of many who have hit consistently all season. We needed Tommy to have his day in the final game to put Brockton away."

"The team has never quit," said Morrisette manager and former longtime coach Ray Cattaneo. "They have come from behind so many times. They just keep coming back. We really have better hitting this year and MacDonald, Kelleher, and Balzano have been the leaders at the plate."

Softball

Luke's Wins; Fowler Moves Into First

Luke's Lounge continued its domination of the Quincy Men's Softball League A Division by defeating Sagamore Inn, 12-11, in the battle of the two top teams.

Steve Touma had a grand slam and two other hits. Tom Handrahan, Rock Neary, Bob Hedlund, Donny Cooper and Jack Cavanaugh all had key hits for Luke's. Mike Peterson was the winning pitcher.

Tom Dormady had a three-run homer and Doug Bates and Tom Spillane had hits for Sagamore.

Mr. C's moved closer to the fourth and final playoff berth with a 4-3 victory over Low Overhead Carpet. It was Mr. C's fourth win in a row.

Bill Hinton had a single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the seventh inning to win it. John Knight had a solo home run, his first since the all-star game, and Mike Corcoran had two homers. Pitcher Mark Tobin recorded the win.

In the B Division, Hyde Park Pub joined Liberty Lounge, 14-9, as Paul Cedrone continued his long ball hitting with another home run.

Buzzy McKenzie had a three-run homer for Liberty.

Liberty defeated Layden's Pub, 5-1, with Vaughn Driscoll having three solid hits, including a late, two-run triple to ice the win.

For Liberty, Clark Goebel was the winning pitcher. Mike Venna had two hits as did Randy Hoblitzelle and Mike Hugo had a fine game at third base.

Liberty topped Washington Tap, 14-8, as Cedrone went 3-for-4 with a two-run homer.

Hoblitzelle had a homer as did McKenzie and Bobby O'Brien had an inside-the-park homer. Driscoll, Hugo, Steve

Quincy Players Shine As Metro Wins Gold Medal

Five Quincy volleyball players led the Metro team to its second girls' volleyball gold medal at the recent Bay State Games.

Joanna Curreri, Maureen McCarthy, Regina Murphy and

Heather Rendle, all of North Quincy High School team, and Liz Noble of Quincy High School made up nearly half of the 12-girl Metro squad.

The Metro team lost only one game in the tournament and won the gold by defeating Northeast in the final, 15-8, 15-13.

"They were really good games," said Rendle, 16, a member of last year's gold medal squad. "It was sort of like high school because we played Dracut in the state championship game last year and there were a lot of Dracut girls on the Northeast team."

Curreri, McCarthy, Murphy and Rendle were named to several all-scholastic teams last season.

ENJOYING FREEDOM—Edward Tracy, right, a former hostage in Lebanon, recently spent a day in Quincy with Jim Will of the Boston Veterans Administration. Aug. 14 will mark one year that Tracy has been undergoing Post Traumatic Stress Disorder treatment in Boston.

Pesticide Spraying For Mosquitos Thursday

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control was scheduled to apply an early morning application of the pesticide resmethrin Tuesday and Thursday for the control of adult mosquitos.

Tuesday's selected areas were west of Hancock St. and west of Washington St, which may have included some of the following neighborhoods: Montclair, portions of Atlantic, West Quincy, inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy, and inland sections of Quincy Point.

Thursday's selected areas were east of Hancock St. and east of Washington, which may have included Squantum, eastern portions of Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Germantown and coastal Quincy Point.

Spraying occurs between 2 and 7 a.m. If inclement occurs (high winds, rain or low temperatures) or equipment fails, the application will be added to the next scheduled day, or rescheduled for the following day.

Resmethrin is used due to its compatibility with the environment, very low toxicity to mammals and low irritation levels. It does not harm other wildlife.

'Polluters Pay' Initiative Campaign Coming To Quincy

Over the next few weeks, representatives from the Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste will campaign in Quincy in support of the Polluter Pay Initiative, a binding question which will be on the November 1992 ballot.

If approved, the initiative would direct the state legislature to place a fifth of a penny ($0.002) per pound tax on the production and import of toxic chemicals and petroleum (gasoline and home heating are exempted). Revenues from the tax would go to the state's depleted Superfund program which is responsible for the cleanup of the more than 2400 toxic sites in the state.

"Toxic waste sites have put the health and drinking water supplies of the Commonwealth at risk. It is time to make the polluters pay to ensure the cleanups of these sites," said Matthew Wilson, director of the Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste, the sponsor of the initiative.

Quincy has 25 confirmed toxic sites of which the former General Dynamics and Merit Oil on 238 Hancock St. are listed as priority sites.

"Residents in towns with toxic waste sites are frustrated by the pace of cleanup of these sites by the polluters. We cannot afford to wait around any longer for action," Wilson said.

Statewide, only two sites were cleaned up last year.

Campaign workers will be canvassing neighborhoods between 4 and 9 p.m. educating residents on the initiative, raising money for the campaign and identifying campaign volunteers.

The Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste is a statewide environmental group which works with more than 60 neighborhood groups who are working to clean up toxic sites in their communities.

U.S. DISTRICT Court Judge A. David Mazzone, left, inspects one of the MWRA's million-gallon sludge storage tanks for odor inside the authority's $90 million sludge treatment facility in Quincy Point Monday. Mazzone permitted the authority to store liquid sludge from Nut Island and Deer Island after hearing testimony from the MWRA and touring the facility with officials from the authority and Quincy. Among those who attended the hearing and toured the facility were State Rep. Ron Mariano, center, and Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, right.

Multi -Million Dollar Complex Proposed On Grossman Site

A multi-million dollar office-retail complex and cultural center has been proposed at the site of Grossman's on Granite Street.

The project hinges upon whether the MBTA decides to locate an Old Colony commuter railroad station near the site by Burgin Parkway and a connector road to downtown is built.

Grossman's President Louis Grossman has met with Mayor James Sheets who supports the plan.

The three-building complex would include twin office towers, six to eight stories high, with underground parking for 1,200. The first floor of the main building would be designated for retail use. This building would be located in the area where Grossman's and Papa Gino's now stand.

The cultural center would front Granite Street and would include a theater and art galleries. The cultural center would become part of Quincy's proposed tourist trolley line.

A third building, a low-rise office and retail structure, would be situated at the corner of Granite St. and Burgin Parkway—the current site of Burger King.

The three buildings would total between 400,000 and 500,000 square feet.

The proposal calls for the commuter rail station to be located alongside the MBTA Red Line tracks near Paperama.

Estimated cost and a timetable for completion of the project were unavailable. However, groundbreaking on the Grossman's site cannot begin until January 1995.

Sheets Seeks Limited Moratorium On Fast Food Licenses

By MICHAEL WHALEN

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS has sent a letter to the Quincy License Board suggesting a limited moratorium on the licensing of any additional fast food chains or donut shops in the City of Quincy.

The letter, which was read by Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea at Tuesday's board meeting, states in part:

"I am convinced that we already have enough of these types of businesses and I continue to be concerned about the volume of litter which they create, the impersonal nature of the operations, and in some cases, the refusal to become involved in community programs such as Cleaner-Greener Quincy.

"This certainly is not true of all these establishments in our city, but I believe a substantial number do not contribute in a positive manner to the goals of my administration. In fact, I would seriously consider the imposition of a limited moratorium on these facilities or, at least a special permitting process which requires a very serious examination of any potential site to be used for the aforementioned purposes."

Sheets, who is out of town until next week, could not be reached for further comment.

The board agreed to take the mayor's suggestion into consideration.

Judge Mazzone To Decide Today Quincy Calls For Safeguards If MWRA Sludge Plant Reopens

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy and MWRA officials will be before U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone today (Thursday) at 11:30 a.m. to advocate their positions regarding the authority's motion to resume partial operations at the Fore River sludge treatment facility.

Officials on both sides of the issue locked horns over the operation of the $90 million plant after it was closed last week due to a fire in a massive dryer which helps convert dewatered sludge into fertilizer pellets.

On Monday, Judge Mazzone, who is overseeing the cleanup of Boston Harbor, granted a motion filed by the MWRA to store liquid sludge in storage tanks at the facility. The MWRA filed the motion because its capacity to store untreated sludge at the Nut Island and Deer Island treatment plants will expire Aug. 17.

Doug MacDonald, executive director of the MWRA, has pledged not to revert to dumping sludge into the harbor. The sludge dumping eventually led to Mazzone's court order to clean up the harbor.

Today (Thursday), Mazzone will decide whether to allow the authority to resume the dewatering process at the facility.

Under the dewatering process, liquid sludge, transported by barge from the Nut Island and Deer Island primary treatment plants, is flattened out into "sludge cakes" by huge compressors.

The MWRA is not asking Mazzone to allow the pelletization process to start up again. Under normal operations, "sludge cakes" are converted into fertilizer pellets by big, spinning dryers.

Quincy Fire Chief Tom Gorman ordered the entire plant closed after last Thursday's fire in one of the drums. That matter will be reviewed by a fire protection engineer.

Acting City Solicitor James Timmins, who will represent Quincy at today's hearing, said Mayor James Sheets has instructed him to "make certain whatever goes on in that facility does not impair the quality of life in the neighborhoods surrounding the facility."

"If there are any problems, we will oppose any activity at the sludge facility," Timmins said.

Mosquito Spraying Underway

The Quincy Health Department announces that spraying for mosquito control will occur today (Thursday) in selected areas of Quincy.

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project will spray the pesticide Resmethrin early in the morning.

Areas sprayed will be east of Hancock St. and east of Washington St. including Squantum, eastern portions of Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Germantown and coastal Quincy Point.

Spraying occurred Tuesday west of Hancock St. and west of Washington St., including Montclair, western portions of Atlantic, West Quincy, inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy and inland sections of Quincy Point.

Weather permitting, spraying will occur between 2 and 7 a.m.

Resmethrin is used due to its compatibility with the environment, low toxicity to mammals, low irritation levels, and the fact it does not harm other wildlife.

Notice of future spraying dates will be available from the Mosquito Control Project, 762-3681, each Friday afternoon during August and September.

$1.45 Million For Park Initiatives

Sheets Praises Passage Senate Bill Supporting City National Urban Park

Mayor James Sheets heralded the passage in the U.S. Senate last week of a U.S. Department of the Interior bill for FY93 which provides $1.45 million dollars of funding through the National Park Service for the city's initiatives to become a National Urban Heritage Park.

"This is one of the most important things that has happened during our administration," the mayor said.

Sheets said Congressional support for the items in the bill was a milestone in the city's efforts to bring both funds and recognition to its rich historical treasures. He credited Sen. Edward Kennedy for his very strong efforts in both supporting and shepherding the bill through to passage. "Senator Kennedy worked tirelessly in its behalf. This past year, both he and his chief aide, Mimi Brody, visited Quincy. That gave them a full appreciation of just what the city has to offer the rest of the country in terms of the significant role that Quincy has played in the nation's heritage.

"Congressman Brian Donnelly also was instrumental in obtaining the funding to complete the general management plan for Quincy's historic sites, which began last fiscal year," he said.

The bill provides funding for five key appropriations:

- $200,000 to complete the general management plan that will guide park improvements over the next several years.

- $75,000 to operate a trolley shuttle system that will link the historic sites and make it easier for visitors to get around the city (similar to the shuttle that ran during the Tall Ships/City Bicentennial celebration.)

- $100,000 increase in the annual operating budget to expand staffing to handle the increasing number of tourists coming to Quincy.

- $220,000 to open an interim visitor center downtown to help orient tourists, until a permanent site is selected.

- $550,000 for the first phase of rehabilitation of the historic Beale Estate adjoining the Adams "Old House."

Reacting to the Senate's affirmative vote, Kennedy said, "I'm very pleased that the Senate has approved these funds that will help attract more visitors to Quincy and showcase its wide variety of historic resources."

"There's an extraordinary competition for federal dollars this year, and it's a credit to the united efforts of Mayor Sheets, (Adams National Historic Site) Park Superintendent Marianne Peak and the entire community that we were able to secure these funds."

Sheets said the funding will help establish Quincy as a major tourist attraction.

"I believe now that people from all over the country and the world will begin to have an opportunity to learn about Quincy and to see what a special city we are. This bill begins to provide us with funds for the tools we need to make that happen," he said.

Wollaston Man Pleads Innocent In Rash Of N.Q. Housebreaks

A Wollaston man suspected in a rash of housebreaks in North Quincy pleaded innocent Monday in Quincy District Court and was being held on $200,000 surety or $20,000 cash bail at the Norfolk County Correctional Center.

Christopher Powell, 19, of 90 Safford St., was arrested by police last Friday after a witness saw him allegedly running from a two-family house at 92 Farrington St., shortly before 4 p.m.

Powell was arrested when police searched his home and found him hiding in a secret compartment inside a chest of drawers.

Police say Powell is a suspect in at least nine housebreaks in North Quincy. According to Det. Thomas Casey, there has been an average of 10 housebreaks a week in North Quincy during the last several weeks.

Casey said police found the suspect at his home along with two bags of jewelry, a television, compact disc player and VCR taken from two apartments in the Farrington St. building.

Powell probably made several trips to carry the items away, police said.

According to Casey, police have applied for complaints in Quincy District Court charging Powell with seven other break-ins in North Quincy.

Detectives in an unmarked car were keeping various North

Quincy streets under surveillance last week, hoping to catch someone in the act, Casey said.

Detectives William Lanegan and Charles Healy were nearby when a neighbor reported the Farrington Street break-in, but they did not see Powell.

Casey said the description of the suspect given by the witness matched Powell, who was known to the detectives.

Officers also had a warrant for Powell's arrest for a probation violation stemming from a previous arrest on housebreak charges.

Casey said detectives were checking Boston pawn shops for any items that may link Powell to other break-ins.

McGrath Blasts Officials Over Failure To Block $2 Million Sewer Bill

State Senate candidate Steve McGrath today blasted state officials after they failed to garner enough votes to block a $2 million bill to MWRA ratepayers.

State legislators who represent communities in the MWRA district couldn't organize enough votes to block a measure by the Town of Clinton to bill the MWRA for that town's $2 million sewer bill, McGrath said.

Under an agreement with the Commonwealth in 1898, Clinton ceded half of its land to make way for the Wachusett Reservoir. In exchange, the state agreed to pay Clinton's sewerage treatment bill forever. The MWRA has been billed for that amount.

"It is outrageous that the state is passing the responsibility to the overburdened ratepayers of the MWRA district," McGrath said. "The MWRA, founded in 1985 is being asked to foot the bill for a promise the state made nearly 100 years ago. The federal government has abandoned the Boston Harbor cleanup. The state has told the MWRA ratepayers to come up with $8 billion for that project. Now, the state says 'pay the $2 million dollar Clinton bill.' Where does this end?"

"Whether you love, hate or don't care about the MWRA, the lack of solidarity between the politicians on Beacon Hill means you pay more and they don't care."

"This is not an anti-MWRA issue. It is simply a matter of fiscal responsibility and fair representation. It is irresponsible for the state to hold the MWRA responsible for a promise made prior to the agency's inception. It is unforgivable that our representatives, who have been on Beacon Hill for more than 15 years, cannot fight for our interests."

The Clinton treatment plant is not part of the MWRA district, McGrath noted. Ratepayers throughout the MWRA district have seen their bills jump to an average of $550. That amount is expected to double, he said.

"Clearly, the rates are spinning out of control. The opportunity is there for the legislators to take the initiative. We need new, aggressive leaders at the State House. I would lead the effort to reduce the oppressive 'pass the buck' mentality on Beacon Hill," McGrath said.

"The MWRA just got around to urging that Clinton be assigned its own water district this year. It's unbelievable that the Town of Clinton has more clout at the State House than the entire MWRA district. That has to change or sky-high water bills will drive residents from communities they've lived in most of their lives," McGrath said.

Mariano Supports Mayor's Actions On Closing Sludge Plant

State Rep. Ron Mariano (Quincy-Weymouth) says he totally supports Mayor James Sheets in his decision to close the sludge treatment plant at the Fore River shipyard.

"The mayor has the ability to shut the plant down if he feels that it is a safety hazard to the residents of the area," Mariano said. "Yesterday was the third fire and there have been two other incidents of overheating in the silos since the plant went on line eight months ago. The Mayor and the Fire Chief decided that it was in the public interest to order the closing."

"I wholeheartedly agree with the actions taken by the Mayor. The events that have occurred at the sludge plant indicate that there are serious problems with the technologies that are being used. The primary concern for all the parties involved should be the health and safety of the employees of the plant and the neighbors that reside in the Fore River Basin."

The MWRA has issued statements that they too are concerned about the operational safety of the plant and that they intend to make the New England Fertilizer Company, the operator of the sludge plant, live up to all its contractual obligations.

"It has always been my feeling that the rush to put the pelletizing plant on line in order to meet the deadline imposed by the Federal judge was done at the expense of safety requirements. NEFCO has not responded in a manner that would inspire confidence in this whole process," Mariano said.

"It is now time to shut down the plant and demand of the people at the MWRA, NEFCO, and the Federal judge a safe and clean operation in the middle of our neighborhood. I am tired of hearing lame excuses about the debugging of this 'state of the art' technology as the reasons for all the problems. The residents at the Fore River Basin demand and deserve answers as to why these problems continue to reoccur."

"The history of the Harbor Cleanup project has been dominated by the demands and timetable of the Federal court system. The sludge treatment plant was finished and operating under the deadline that the judge imposed. I hope that Judge Mazzone will agree with Mayor Sheets and Director MacDonald and make the health and safety of the residents of the Fore River Basin a priority."

Cheney, Mullen At Odds Over Police Dept.

By STEVE KAVANAGH
City Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney called for a new management report of the Quincy Police Department Monday and criticized Chief Francis Mullen and former Chief Francis Finn for delays in the departments accreditation process.

"Chief Mullen is tough to knock because of his personality, but we can no longer stand by and let, what I feel is mismanagement, go by the boards," Cheney said during Monday's Special City Council Meeting.

Cheney pointed to the accreditation process as an example of mismanagement.

"We're spending $3/4-of-a-million on something that was supposed to cost $30,000," he said. He also said the accreditation process should have taken between a year and 18 months but has so far taken six years and is still incomplete.

Mullen differed with Cheney. He said many of the Mass. Municipal Association's recommendations in the 1986 report have been implemented. He said computerization in the department is a major example.

In 1986 the MMA conducted a management report of the Quincy Police Department and recommended 55 changes to improve the department.

However, the City Council voted against hiring the MMA to oversee changes in the department and instead allowed Chief Finn to let the department deal with the recommendations. Cheney wants to hire the MMA to make a report and oversee the implementation of recommendations.

Cheney said little has been done. He said there are still problems including favoritism within the department, police performing non-police functions, and morale problems.

Unmarked cars are assigned to administrators even though the cars are unrelated to their jobs, he said.

Cheney also criticized Mullen for assigning police to perform non-police functions "at a tremendous cost to the public."

He cited an example of an officer, with a master's degree and a $40,000 salary, pumping gas for police cruisers.

"A civilian can perform that job and free up the officer for patrol functions," Cheney said.

Cheney added that last year $385,000 was spent on police overtime.

Morale is a problem among many officers Cheney said. When it comes to assignments there is "the same cry in the department...It's who ya know," he said.

Mullen has denied there are morale problems in the department.

Mullen's moving of the Street Level Drug Unit from a secret location back to department headquarters was also questioned by Cheney.

"I believe Chief Mullen had good intentions. I understand there was resentment in the department by other officers. But since he moved the unit back into the department is has hindered their effectiveness," Cheney said.

"I'm here and I'm committed to the City of Quincy," Mullen said. "I think I'm as conscientious as you would want me to be."

Mullen said Tuesday he is preparing a statement refuting Cheney's claims.

"We want to go ahead...not backwards. And make the city a safer place," he said.

MORE THAN 14 people volunteered recently to help paint the home of Glenn and Sharon Healy of Quincy. Glenn Healy, 30, was critically injured in a boating accident on Wollaston Bay in June. He is a patient at Longwood Rehabilitation Center. Volunteers were assisted by a lift donated by Shaughnessy Crane and by paint donated by Grossman's through the help of Mayor James Sheets. Among those helping out are Quincy residents Jim Healy, Mark Veasey, Rick Penzo, Frank Penzo, Paul Reardon, Jack Dunn, Gary Earle, Mike McKenna and Pat McKenna; John Prescott of Duxbury and Dean Prescott of Norwell.

Garage License Suspended For Delinquent Taxes

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board Tuesday suspended the license of Coletta Bros., 270 Hancock St., because of approximately $20,000 in outstanding real estate taxes owed by the company.

Acting City Solicitor James Timmins said the outstanding taxes date back over two years.

"They have shown complete disregard of responsibility regarding real estate payments," said Timmins.

The company's owner, however, said he was eager to sit down with City Tax Collector Dana Childs to work something out.

"I want to arrange some sort of a payment plan with him," said Ed Coletta.

Childs, who also attended the meeting, said that this would be possible if that was what Coletta decided to do.

"As far as any payment plan is concerned, the law does allow for partial payments to be made," said Childs.

Coletta also received support from Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, who sent a letter to the board asking it to be lenient with Coletta because of the number of years his business has been in the area.

According to the law, Coletta must now pay 25% of what he owes in back taxes, or $4,602.27, as well as interest totalling $1,237.17 for a grand total of $5,839.44.

Because of Coletta's willingness to cooperate, the board decided to stay the actual execution of the suspension of the license for 10 days. Coletta now has that amount of time to pay back at least $4,602.27 of what he owes before his license is permanently revoked.

Voter Registration For State Primary Ends Aug. 18

By ROBERT
BOSWORTH

Quincy election workers say the city's special voter registration drive for the state primary, which has been healthy to this point, will continue through Tuesday, Aug. 18.

Unregistered residents who sign up to vote before 10 p.m. Aug. 18 will be eligible to vote in the state primary Tuesday, Sept. 15.
Assistant City Clerk
Joseph Shea said the city is registering approximately 150 people per week. "It's been a healthy registration.
We're registering between 30 to 40 people a day,"
Shea said.

The special registration
(Wednesday) between 7 and 9 p.m. at four locations: Montclair School, Atherton Hough
School, Fore River Clubhouse and the Lincoln-Hancock School.

Special voter registration hours are also scheduled at City hall

Saturday, Aug. 15 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., and Tuesday, Aug. 18 up until 10 p.m.

According to the most recent figures, Quincy has 45,459 registered voters.
Of that amount, 26,487 are Democrats; 6,608 are Republicans; 12,353 are unenrolled; and 11 are classified by another party.

City Clerk John Gillis said the total number of registered voters could climb to 47,000 or 48,000 before the Nov. 3rd final election. He said presidential elections usually add a few thousand people to the voter rolls.

The special voter registration drive will repeat after the Sept. 15th primary. The last day to register to vote in the Nov.
3rd election is Tuesday,
Oct. 6, Shea pointed out.

Shea also noted absentee ballots can be picked up at the special registration drive locations or City Hall. They can also be mailed by contacting the election office, 376-1145.

DETECTING PROSTATE CANCER

Improved diagnostic techniques are spreading hope that men may be gaining the advantage in the fight against prostate cancer. A blood test known as the PSA (prostate-specific antigen) test may enhance the chances of early detection. The PSA measures the prostate's protein levels, which become elevated when the prostate is diseased.
Another screening procedure is the TRUS, or transrectal ultrasound.
A small instrument which is inserted into the rectum uses sound waves to create a picture of the prostate gland, including any masses that may be present. Neither test is without faults. However, when paired with regular checkups, in which the doctor uses a finger to examine the rectum's walls, they may offer patients a head start on successful treatment.

P.S. Prostate cancer is the second leading cause of death by cancer in men, behind lung cancer.

Regular medical checkups can aid in the early detection of many potentially dangerous conditions. If you would

Quincy Holds Key In 10th

It's quite obvious that Quincy is a coveted political prize and will be a dominant factor in this year's 10th Congressional District race and for years to come.

"Quincy," said Gerry Studds in a visit to The Sun office the other day, "is to this district what New Bedford was to the old one."

It is the only city in the district — the only whole city. Half of Brockton is in the district. Half a loaf may be better than none in most instances but not when it comes to political clout.

STUDDS

Quincy, you'd have to say, fared pretty well in the redistricting. At one point there was fear that Quincy would be split into two districts but Brockton got sliced instead.

Studds, wearing a gold saxophone emblem on his lapel (a gift from Saxophonist Democratic Presidential candidate Bill Clinton) looked and sounded like he intended to give Quincy special attention in this year's race.

He has opened Quincy headquarters on Hancock St., Quincy Center, which was Dist. Atty. William Delahunt's headquarters until he withdrew from the Congressional race. Paul O'Sullivan of West Elm Ave., Wollaston, a Delahunt supporter is now Studds' Quincy campaign coordinator.

Studds has his work cut out for him as far as Quincy is concerned.

HAROLD

and Studds.

Harold has to come out of here with a strong vote.
Studds, if he can't take Quincy, has to keep the margin close here.

Quincy is Democratic stronghold with registered Democrats far outnumbering Republicans, unenrolled and all other parties combined.

Take a look at the last official count:"

Total voters: 45,459.

Democrats: 26,487.

Republicans: 6,608.

Unenrolled: 12,353.

Independents: 10.

Libertarian: 1.

Democrats outnumber Republicans by nearly 20,000 and unenrolled by over 14,000.

And for the record, women voters continue to outnumber men here by nearly 6,000.

Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea reports that registration of new voters has been "brisk" with 30 to 40 a day for the past couple of weeks.

He expects that to pick up with special nighttime registration (last night), all day registration Saturday (9 a.m. to 5 p.m.) and Tuesday, Aug. 18 from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Aug. 18 is the deadline to register to vote in the Sept.
15 primaries and Oct. 6 the last day to register for the November Presidential election.

Cleanup Effort Should Begin With Own Shoreline

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
[The following is an open letter to Governor William Weld].

Dear Governor Weld:
Some of my fondest recollections of my childhood were the summers I spent at the local beach digging for clams, swimming and making castles in the sand. I also enjoyed the smell of an ocean breeze and long, lazy walks along the shore.

My home is still near the ocean, not far from Wollaston Beach in Quincy. My young daughter, Meghan, loves the beach as much as I did when I was her age. She long to frolic along the sandy shore and to dig with her pail and shovel. She wonders why she can't "jump" the waves, or hunt for crabs and snails at low tide.

Can it be that she doesn't notice the trash strewn the entire length of the beach, or the condoms and glass that dot the sand?

With all of the attention given to the cleanup of the Boston Harbor, perhaps we need look no further than the shoreline to begin our efforts. Those who choose to litter should be subject to hefty fines earmarked to aid in the cleanup and improvement of our beach. Local residents should be hired to maintain the property. They have a vested interest in their own community, and heaven knows, many people need jobs right here in Quincy.

I hope that one day soon, Meghan and all the other children of Quincy will be able to enjoy the beach as much as I did when I was a child.

MMA Thanks Harold, Mariano, Morrissey

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
On behalf of local officials across the state, the Massachusetts Municipal Association wishes to express its appreciation for Senator Paul Harold's, Rep. Ron Mariano's, and Rep. Michael Morrissey's support in voting to override all three of the Governor's education aid and lottery aid vetoes.

As you know, local government is hurting. The Governor's action in vetoing $185 million in education funds and $23 million in lottery revenues for cities and towns neglected to recognize that pain. By voting to overturn these vetoes, Harold, Mariano and Morrissey took a strong stand in favor of providing immediate assistance to municipalities, and showed a deeper understanding of the crisis in municipal finance.

Release of the education and lottery funds to towns and cities will have a measurable benefit for all the citizens of Massachusetts, from school children to seniors, who rely on public schools, police and fire protection, driveable roads, and the whole range of local services.

Of course, towns and cities are still facing very serious fiscal problems. But in the short term, the budget that the legislature approved for FY 1993 begins to reinvest in our communities. The key to any long-range solution is adherence to the voter-backed premise of equitably sharing "state" tax revenues with cities and towns. We look forward to working with the Legislature and the Governor to achieve that type of stability in revenue sharing, a step that would re-form a lasting state-local partnership that benefits both levels of government.

In the meantime, our thanks to Harold, Mariano and Morrissey for supporting the veto overrides last week.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Brian Klier Awarded Caporale Scholarship

Brian Klier of Quincy has been awarded the John A. Caporale Sr. Memorial Scholarship, announced Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall.

The $500 awarded is presented annually in the name of John A. 'Cappy' Caporale Jr., the founder of the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association.

Klier, son of Deputy George and Dottie Klier, the bureau chief of Information Services at the Norfolk County Correctional Center, is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree. He will pursue a degree in communications with a major in journalism at Marist College in Poughkeepsie, New York, in the fall. He hopes to become a sports writer.

Klier was named to the 1991 Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Cross Country Team. He was a four-year varsity athlete in cross country, winter track and spring track.

As a captain and featured runner, Klier helped Archbishop Williams High School win four championships. He also kept pace with his studies in several accelerated courses.

"Brian is a gifted athlete and a fine student," Marshall said. "I'm pleased that we are able to offer him these scholarship funds through the Honorary Association to help him pursue his future goals."

The Caporale Scholarship was established in 1988. Since that time, there have been 18 recipients and $9,000 in scholarship awards.

To be eligible, candidates must be a high school senior, in pursuit of a post-high school education program and a child of one or more of the following: an employee of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office; an active deputy sheriff; and/or a member of the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association.

NORFOLK COUNTY SHERIFF Clifford Marshall, left, congratulates Archbishop Williams High School graduate Brian Klier of Quincy upon his receipt of the John A. Caporale Family Scholarship Award. Klier received $500 toward the pursuit of his college degree. On hand for the presentation were Klier's parents, Dottie and Captain George Klier III, bureau chief of Information Services for the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

The City Council voted to send the resolve to Acting City Solicitor James Timmins for drafting.

Cheney's resolve read in part, "That the City Solicitor draft an ordinance that establishes a process for employees to report mismanagement, misuse of funds or any wrong doing that falls within the jurisdiction of local government. The City Solicitor shall also provide for the protection of any employee who does report mismanagement, misuse of funds or any wrong doing from any retaliatory act."

"I think it's something that would put the public's confidence back in city government," said Ward 5 Councillor Chuck Phelan.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

D. Scott Deware

Counterfeit is mostly thought of in terms of money. But it is a fact of life that we willingly accept many things in life as counterfeit. And they are pleasantly welcomed.

The millions spent for cosmetics, for example, show a form of counterfeiting which most of us, for the most part, find pleasing. We accept a form of counterfeiting in jewelry, clothing and other items. When we know we have substitutes for the genuine, no harm is done.

It is tragic, however, when love is counterfeited. Many persons, by the very nature of things, have mistakenly picked a "lemon" in a counterfeit garden of love. That, too, is a fact of life. Even emotion can be counterfeited. It is difficult to detect because only the person who displays the emotion knows for sure whether the emotion is genuine or counterfeit. A conscience is the only guide.

This brings us to the one thing in life that can never be counterfeited. CONSCIENCE! Conscience is strictly a personal possession for which there is no substitute. One cannot counterfeit a conscience...

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr.

Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Arthur Chandler QCA 'Citizen Of The Year'

Arthur Chandler, owner of the Wollaston Theatre and 16-year president of the Quincy Citizens Association, Inc., was awarded the QCA's Laurence J. Curtin "Citizen of the Year" Award at its 25th anniversary luncheon at Raffael's Restaurant.

In making the presentation, QCA First Vice President Dr. Donald MacLeod said Chandler was chosen to receive the award because of his efforts as president to fulfill the precepts of the association's constitution: "to stimulate in citizens an active interest in governmental affairs; to increase the efficiency of local, citywide and other governmental affairs; and to provide our elected officials with the sentiments of the people on public matters."

In accepting the honor, Chandler said, "We believe over the years the QCA has raised its 'Voice of The People' loud and clear and carried its message to City Hall, the State House and Washington. There have been some successes and some failures but its efforts have brought government closer to the people.

"The QCA has worked tirelessly to improve the quality of life in our city. In 1992 many of our suggestions are included in plans of Quincy 2000 for a revitalization of our commercial areas. 'The Voice of The People' has spoken for many who neither have the time, nor the eloquence to bring their fears to a just conclusion. Never did the QCA lose its determination to work for what is best for all of Quincy."

Senator Paul Harold presented Joseph E. Brett $200 Scholarships to two recent graduates of North Quincy High School. The two are David Ziolkowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ziolkowski of Brunswick St., who will attend Southern Methodist University and study theatre; and Christopher Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hill Jr. of Elliot Ave., who will attend Tufts University and study political science and government.

Guests attending the celebration included Harold, Rep. Michael Morrissey, City Council President Charles Phelan,

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to the mayor; Maureen Mazzimas, chairman of the Board of Appeals; Jane Reikard, chairman of the Rent Grievance Board; Lillian Austin, director of the Adams Shore Community Center; Mary Centola, assistant director of the Beechwood Community Life Center; Frank Kearns, chairman of the Housing Authority; Denis Tardo, chairman of the Board of Election Registrars; and candidates for state representative Susan Gallagher, Michael Cronin, and George Miller.

Members of the 25th

Anniversary Celebration Committee were Elenda and Saul Lipsitz, Rita O'Toole, Michael Morad, William Reardon, Alice Delaney and Dorothy Kelly.

Entertainment for the 100 guests was provided by Quincy accordionist Mabel Biagini with tenor solos by Kolson.

Morrissey Asks MWRA To Move To Quincy

State Rep. Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy) renewed his call Tuesday that the MWRA relocate its executive offices to the Quincy Shipyard.

In a letter to MWRA Executive Director Douglas MacDonald, Morrissey said, "The recent events at the sludge plant indicate the need for supervision and oversight of the operation.... The fires and faulty operation over the past few months clearly indicate that the public does not have confidence in the MWRA's ability to safely operate the plant."

The MWRA currently leases space at the Charlestown Navy Yard for its executive offices. Morrissey said the agency should begin planning now to relocate to Quincy.

"The $4 million spent on the current lease could be used to improve and renovate the existing structure for the MWRA's use. The relocation would not only improve an asset of the ratepayers but would save millions of dollars over the long run," Morrissey said.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Moves On To State Semi-Finals

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team is on a roll.

The Zone 6 Champions advanced to the semifinals of the state championships Monday with a 2-0 victory over West Boylston at Chicopee after coming from behind to edge Lanesboro Post of Dalton, 9-8, in its opener last Saturday. Morrisette improved its record to 26-4.

Monday's win was Morrisette's 14th in 15 games and put it in the driver's seat. West Boylston had overwhelmed Lowell, 17-2, in its opener but southpaw Sean Donovan pitched his finest game of the year as he threw a three-hitter to improve his record to 8-1.

Morrisette was scheduled to face host team Aldenville Post of Chicopee last night (Wednesday). Four teams remained in the tourney after Tuesday's games.

Morrisette will host the Northeast Regionals for the third time starting next Wednesday at Adams Field and will play the Rhode Island champion in the last game Wednesday night.

The Northeast includes the six state champions, Morrisette and the New Jersey champ. If Morrisette wins the state crown, the state runnerup will play.

"I said at the start I thought we had a good chance of winning the whole thing," said coach Dave Perdios, who played on Morrisette's state champions in 1975 and state finalists in 1977. Going to Chicopee was also a homecoming for manager Ray Cattaneo, who coached Morrisette in 1975, when it went to the World Series in North Dakota, and in 1977.

"Donovan was just outstanding against a strong West Boylston team," Perdios said. "And Mike Patch played a great game against Lanesboro after a rough first two innings. He went the entire 11 innings for the first time. After the second inning (Lanesboro scored six runs), Mike started throwing strikes and the defense started making the plays."

Monday's game was a classic pitchers' duel between lefties Donovan and West Boylston's Rich Roach.

West Boylston had a mild threat in the first inning on a leadoff single and two walks but a fly to center and a snappy 6-4-3 double play ended the threat. That was the only time Donovan allowed a runner to reach second base. He gave up two more singles in the fourth and sixth. He walked a batter in the seventh but he was erased on a double play.

Roach blanked Morrisette on three hits for five innings, allowing only singles to Robbie Kane in the first and Dave Reinhart in the second. The only other base runner was Chris MacDonald, who walked in the third.

In the bottom of the sixth Morrisette took a 1-0 lead when MacDonald singled and, with two outs, Mark Kelleher, who has been on a tear since the second half of the season, doubled him home.

The same pair teamed up in the eighth inning as MacDonald opened the inning with a single, Kelleher again doubled to send MacDonald to third and Belcastro was walked intentionally to load the bases. Jay Schnabel pinch hit for Dan Duncan and hit a two-strike, two-out single to give Morrisette an insurance run.

Donovan struck out six and walked three.

This was a classic game with neither team making an error and coming up with many outstanding plays.

Morrisette had nine hits with MacDonald and Kelleher having two apiece and Pat Shea, Kane, Belcastro, Reinhart and Schnabel one each.

Saturday's game was Lanesboro was a wild one. Patch improved his record to 8-0 and did well after a scary two innings.

Lanesboro started off with four runs in the first on three hits, two walks and two throwing errors.

Morrisette bounced back with three in the bottom half when Kane and MacDonald walked, Tom Balzano doubled home Kane, MacDonald scored on Kelleher's ground ball and Balzano scored on Belcastro's single.

Lanesboro added two in the second on a triple which just eluded center fielder Reinhart followed by three singles.

Both pitchers settled down. Lanesboro scored its seventh run on two errors and a hit in the sixth and Morrisette, trailing 7-3, began to slowly come back with single runs in the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth innings to tie the score.

In the sixth Duncan scored on a wild pitch after his infield hit and Patch's single. In the seventh Balzano scored after reaching on a fielder's choice, going to third on Kelleher's single and scoring on an infield error.

In the eighth Kane had a bunt single, went to third on a walk to MacDonald and a fielder's choice and scored on a wild pitch.

Morrisette tied it in the ninth on a walk to Belcastro, a fielder's choice, an error and an RBI single by Shea.

In the top of the 10th Lanesboro took an 8-7 lead on a long home run by Trevor Bayliss.

Again Morrisette bounced back as MacDonald's fly to right field was dropped and Kelleher hit a fly to left and the ball popped out of the fielder's glove when he slipped on the slippery turf (it had begun to rain). The official scorer ruled it a double and MacDonald scored.

After Patch set Lanesboro down in the 11th, Morrisette won it when Balzano reached on the shortstop's error after Patch singled, was bunted along by Shea, Kane singled and MacDonald was hit by a pitch, loading the bases.

Morrisette had 15 hits, three each by Kelleher and Patch, two from Kane and Balzano and one each by Shea, MacDonald, Belcastro, Reinhart and Duncan.

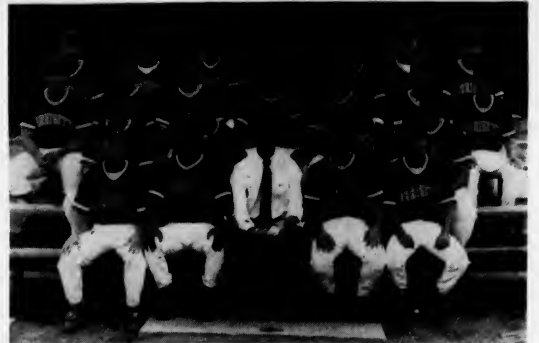

This is Morrisette's first trip to the state finals since 1977. Last year it lost to Spartan A.C. of Brockton in the South Sectional finals and two years ago bowed to Fall River in the sectional finals.

This year Morrisette, Zone 6 runnerup Braintree and New Bedford all survived the South Sectionals and the three were still in the running for the state title going into Tuesday's game.

"The 18-year-olds set a goal to get by the sectionals this year," said Perdios. "They know what it is to win, then lose. They want it more and for them this is extra special."

Morrisette won its last eight games to win the Zone 6 title, won two out of three from Walpole, two straight from Brockton and now two in a row in the state finals.

Police, Media Win Koch Softball Doubleheader

The Quincy Police and News Media were victorious on the field but the true winner was the Muscular Dystrophy Association at the annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader last week at Adams Field.

This year's charitable event, founded by the late Dick Koch in 1977, raised $1500, bringing the 16-year grand total to $23,200. All proceeds from the game are used in the fight against Muscular Dystrophy.

The Quincy Police kept their winning streak alive with a 30-12 victory over the Quincy Fire. The News Media downed the City Officials in convincing fashion, 28-16, to even that series at eight games each.

The doubleheader featured some superb fielding, timely hitting and plenty of highlights and good-natured lowlights.

In the first game, the Fire jumped out to an early, albeit brief, 4-2 lead. Over the next six innings, however, the Police outscored the Fire, 28-8, to win city bragging rights for another year.

The police squad, which plays regularly in an organized league, is one of the best law enforcement teams in the region. The fire banded together for a good cause but could not pull off the upset.

Hitting stars for the Police were Dan Minton, who had 3 home runs and 7 RBI, Barry DeFranco (4 hits, 2 HRs and 3 RBI), Steve McTomney (4 hits, 1 HR, 4 RBI) and Billy Brabazon (4 hits, 2 HRs and 4 RBI).

Other Police standouts were Tony Balzano (5 hits, 3 RBI), Joe Manning (2 hits, 4 RBI), Jim Buhl (4 hits, 3 RBI) and Bruce Tobin, 2 hits, 2 RBI.

Also contributing for the Police were Brian Tobin, Bill Shea, and Dick Churchill.

The Fire attack was paced by Ed Ellis (2 hits, 3 RBI), Gary Smith (2 hits, 1 HR and 2 RBI) and Fred Baldock (double, 2 RBI). Also pitching in for the Fire were Jim Devlin, Steve Graham, Bob Servaes, and Jim Kennedy, who each had 2 hits and 1 RBI; John Jackson (triple, RBI), Paul Leonard (2 hits), Bill Arienti (2 hits), Steve Shaw (single), Mike Butts (single) and Mike Radigan.

In the nightcap, the News Media outslugged the City Officials in a nine-inning affair under gorgeous conditions at illuminated Adams Field.

The Media was led by Quincy Sun Editor Bob Bosworth (7 hits including 2 HRs and 8 RBI); Mike Robinson of Quincy Continental Cablevision (4 hits, 1 HR and 6 RBI); and the Patriot Ledger's Jay Pinsonnault (3 hits and 4 RBI).

Other big hitters for the Media were former Patriot Ledger reporter Eric Schwarz (3 hits, 3 RBI); Brett Rudy of the Patriot Ledger (5 hits, 1 RBI); WJDA's Mike Benjamin (3 hits, 2 RBI); Quincy Continental Cablevision Program Director Ed Fiddler (3 hits, 1 RBI); Quincy Sun advertising representative Mark Crosby (2 hits, 1 RBI) and Patriot Ledger reporter Katy Comeel (2 hits, 1 RBI).

Also contributing to the media victory were Quincy Sun reporters Steve Kavanagh and Mike Whalen (3 hits each); Jay Weaver of the Patriot Ledger (2 hits); WJDA Station Manager John Nicholson (one hit); Rob Hawley of Continental Cablevision and Jean Enright of Continental Cablevision who made several outstanding plays at second base.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth managed the media to victory.

The City Official offense was led by Park and Forestry Department Director Ray Cattaneo (4 hits, 3 RBI); Councillor Mike Cheney (2 hits, 3 RBI); Rep. Steve Tobin (2 hits, 1 HR and 2 RBI); and Councillor Tim Cahill (2 hits, 2 RBI).

Other key hitters were Planning Director Richie Meade (two hits, including a triple and 1 RBI); Executive Secretary Tom Koch (two hits, 1 RBI); Councillors Tom Fabrizio and Chuck Phelan (2 hits apiece); and Mike Shaheen, sealer of Weights and Measures and Councillor Bruce Ayers who each knocked in one run.

Also playing for the City Officials were John Cattaneo of the Quincy Housing Authority (2 hits); Acting City Solicitor Jim Timmins, Councillor Larry Chretien, Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley and shipyard museum director Bill MacMullen (one hit each).

Other local officials seeing action were Rep. Ron Mariano, Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Councillor Peter Kolson, Bill Cochrane of the QHA; city custodian Jim Walsh; Lester Gerry of the Quincy DPW; and Treasurer Dana Childs.

Assistant City Clerk Joe Shea managed the City Officials.

Over the first five innings, the local journalists jumped out to a 14-6 lead. In the bottom of the fifth, the City Officials battled back to tie the contest.

With the bases full, Cheney scorched a single to right center, plating all three pols. Then, with one man on, Cahill hit an RBI single followed by a two-run double by Ray Cattaneo. Koch slammed a single to tie the game at 14.

With the officials threatening for more, Benjamin, who pitched for the Media and earned the win, snared a line drive by Chretien. Rudy then snagged a bullet by Phelan at shortstop to end the inning.

The Media failed to score in the sixth, the only inning they were shut out.

In the bottom of the sixth, the City Officials pushed a run across on a single by John Cattaneo and two fielder's choices.

With the officials leading 15-14 in the seventh, the media took a commanding 24-15 advantage by scoring 10 runs and sending 13 batters to the plate. The offensive attack was highlighted by a three-run blast by Robinson, a two-run tatter by Bosworth and a two-run triple by Schwarz.

The officials could muster only one run the last three innings while the media padded their lead with four runs in the top of the ninth to finish the scoring.

In the bottom of the seventh, the pols plated one run to make it a 24-16 game. Threatening for more, the media, behind some great defense, snuffed out the officials' last rally.

With the bases jammed and two outs, Cochrane hit a grounder to third and threw to second for the force. Enright, the second baseman, took the throw and was knocked down by Buckley. She held onto the ball for the third out and end the officials' last serious threat.

Both games will air tonight (Thursday) on Quincy Community Television Channel 3 starting at 7 p.m.

$9,000 Raised At Marina Bay For Q-N Coaches Assn.

In a group effort by Marina Bay, Boston Harbor Marina Company and the North Quincy and Quincy Coaches Association, about $9,000 was raised during Sail Boston 1992.

Volunteers from various teams at North and Quincy worked in the parking lots at Marina Bay.

The Coaches Association was formed in May in an effort to raise funds for equipment and various materials not allotted for in the public school budget.

"As corporate citizens, it is important for Marina Bay to give back to the community from which we have received so much," said a spokesman. "From a pragmatic perspective, the athletes we support today will be our consumers tomorrow. It is the nature of Marina Bay, as part of the Quincy community, to give opportunities and a strong foundation to the future of its community.

Harold Urges Senate To Adopt 'Donnelly Housing Amendment'

Senator Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy), a candidate for Congress in the Tenth Congressional District, urged the U.S. Senate to adopt the "Donnelly amendment" to the comprehensive housing bill, H.R. 5534, which recently passed the House of Representatives.

The amendment would allow public housing agencies to designate projects as being available only to elderly tenants age 62 or older.

"The passage of this amendment is a victory for elderly residents in public housing units," Harold said. "For the past two years I have been fighting on the state level to have this mixed population requirement removed from the books. Seniors will once again be able to feel secure in their own units."

Since the law requiring the placement of non-senior, non-handicapped residents in senior housing passed, senior citizens in public housing have been complaining about harassment, threats and verbal and physical abuse from the non-senior residents of the housing.

"We have an obligation to properly house both groups, but to put non-senior, non-handicapped residents in senior housing without the appropriate support services is a disservice to both groups," Harold said.

In a letter to Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry, Harold also noted, "Senior housing is for seniors. They have earned the right to live in peace and quiet. They should not have to worry about their security in their own homes."

Miller Says He Would Work To Strip MWRA Authority

Outraged over recent problems at the MWRA's sludge treatment facility in Quincy Point, state representative candidate George Miller said he would work with the legislature to strip the authority of its power if elected.

"Now is the time for the empty political rhetoric to end and action to be taken. In 1984 the legislature gave up its control over the sewer and water systems by stripping the MDC of its sewer and water responsibilities.

"If elected state representative, I will work with the legislature to strip the MWRA of its authority and create an entity that would be required to seek approval from the legislature for its action.

"By requiring the legislature's approval," Miller said, "the politicians can be held accountable to the voters at the polls for any rate increases, appropriations or problems at MWRA facilities.

"Additionally," Miller continued, "many of the politicians have claimed that the state cannot provide additional funding for the harbor cleanup, funding which would result in reduced sewer and water rates. However, if the politicians were held accountable for rate increases, they would find the money in the state budget to help fund the cleanup.

"The voters should not be fooled this election year by the politicians who claimed they've sponsored this bill or that bill to increase control over the MWRA. Any legislation that falls short of putting rate increase decisions into the legislature's hands does not go far enough," he said.

As an example, Miller noted a bill that would give the Department of Public Utilities regulatory power over MWRA rates. However, this legislation falls short since the voters have no control over the Department of Public Utilities.

"The MWRA issues are not going to go away and with the continuing problems with the pelletization process at the MWRA's sludge plant, renewed talk of incineration may not be far off," Miller added.

$45,555 For Newport Ave.

Road work will begin soon on Newport Avenue near the State Street Bank to repair bumps in the road which have been damaging cars.

The City Council approved $45,555 to fix the road during a Special Council Meeting Monday. "The bumps have become so bad that cars routinely 'bottom out' even at relatively low speeds," said DPW Commissioner David Colton in a letter to Mayor James Sheets.

Because the Newport Ave. Extension was built over marsh area the weight of the road causes it to sink in some areas which creates the bumps.

Colton told the Council that asphalt would be added to the area and graded. He also said the repairs are only a temporary solution which would only last "three or four years" before needing work again.

"Every time we do it... it adds more weight to the road and makes it sink faster," Colton said.

Motorists have filed claims against the city for damages to their automobiles caused by the road in the past year.

Colton said he had hoped to use state funds for the project but that the money is not available yet.

Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien criticized Gov. William Weld for the delay in releasing money for road repairs. Chretien said the public has been paying the state gas tax which is supposed to be used to fund repairs on roads and bridges.

Eatery Turned Down On Liquor License

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board Tuesday rejected a request from Webster's Eatery, 13-17 Scammell St., for a Common Victualer-All Alcohol license.

The board made its decision after Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro said he was opposed to the license being granted.

"This is one of the times that I don't like my job," said DeCristofaro, "but I am opposed to any new licenses being granted in the Ward 2 area. We've rejected other similar licenses in the area and we can't grant this one after turning other people away."

"I'm very sorry, because he (Maroun Abouzeid, owner of Webster's) runs a wonderful, wonderful restaurant, but I must go on record as strongly opposing this request."

Abouzeid, who already owns a beer and wine license, said he made the request because his customers have requested cocktails and other mixed drinks to go along with their dinners.

He added that Webster's, which is a family-operated business, could use the extra income that might be brought in by sales of additional alcoholic beverages.

"We're really struggling as a family," said Abouzeid. "My wife and I have worked seven days a week for the last eight years without a vacation. This license could allow us to maybe take off a day a week and have some time to ourselves."

The board, however, was unanimous in its support of DeCristofaro's opposition.

"You're looking at a man (DeCristofaro) who has done a lot of work in Ward 2," Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey told Abouzeid. "I always try to help the councillor whenever I can, and I can't give the thumbs up if he doesn't."

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue voiced her agreement to Mulvey's comments, as did Police Chief Francis Mullen who said, "the councillor represents the people, and we have to support him."

DeCristofaro, in his own support, added that he didn't believe adding more alcohol to the menu would make or break Webster's.

"I don't see that this (alcohol) is the panacea that makes the difference between a great business and a good business," he said.

Rather than denying Abouzeid's request outright, however, the board allowed him to withdraw it without prejudice.

Quincy Calls For Safeguards If MWRA Sludge Plant Reopens

The city has several immediate and long-range concerns if the plant is allowed to resume the dewatering process.

First, Timmins said the city wants to be assured that there will be no trucking of sludge material through Quincy, Braintree or Weymouth. "Any sludge transported should be done by rail or barge," he said.

The trucking issue could prove to cause the biggest rift between the community and the MWRA. Local officials and residents are clearly against the option, but as of Tuesday, the MWRA was still considering truck hauling as an option.

"We're trying our hardest to stay away from (trucking)," said MWRA Spokeswoman Sheila McGann. "We want to use rail cars but we're not sure about the availability of rail cars."

If trucking is an option, McGann said the MWRA may use between 10 to 20 trucks a day.

That plan will certainly anger local officials and private citizens living near the plant, some of whom protested the possible use of truck hauling outside the facility Tuesday morning.

Timmins said the mayor is adamant against the use of trucks to transport the sludge.

"I want to make certain there is no truck or odor problem because these people in the vicinity of the plant are the mayor's concern, and that's my concern," Timmins said.

A second concern of prime importance for Quincy and surrounding communities is odor. Timmins said the city wants to be sure the dewatering process does not create any noxious or obnoxious odors. He said the MWRA told him the dewatered sludge would be filled in containers inside the facility.

The containers would then be sealed and loaded on flatbed rail cars. Loading would also occur inside the facility, Timmins said. The rail cars would take the dewatered sludge to landfills.

"We have to be sure all activities take place inside the facility so that the process does not cause an odor problem," the acting city solicitor said.

A longer range concern, Timmins said, is assurance that New England Fertilizer Co. has adequate agreements to transport the material landfills. NEFCO operates the plant under a contract with the MWRA.

"We don't want the rail cars to be filled with sludge and then have NEFCO run out of landfill space," Timmins said.

Details on how often the rail cars would depart Fore River and their precise destinations were not known at press time.

Mazzone may put a limit on the hours of operation if he permits the Fore River facility to resume the dewatering process. Under normal operations, the facility produces 30 to 40 tons of fertilizer pellets per day.

McGann said the authority does not know how much "sludge cake" would be produced if the facility begins around-the-clock operation.

With Mazzone's approval Monday, the MWRA can now store liquid sludge in four concrete storage tanks at Fore River. Each tank has a capacity of one million gallons.

As of Tuesday, McGann said the tanks were at 30 to 50 percent capacity. Normally, the tanks are used to store liquid sludge from Nut Island and Deer Island but not at full capacity. "That's what we might have to do," she said.

Unlike the pellet storage silos, it is unlikely there will be a fire in the liquid storage tanks because of the water in the sludge. In the past three months, there have been two reports of "hot flashes" or spontaneous combustion in the pellet silos.

'Accommodate, Not Divert, Traffic' Traffic Signalization Improvements Part Of Downtown Project

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

As part of the second phase of the $800,000 Quincy Center reconstruction project, a number of state-of-the-art traffic signalization improvements designed to provide pedestrian safety and accommodate traffic through the city's central business district will be implemented.

According to Traffic Engineer Jack Gillan, the changes include two new traffic lights, synchronized traffic signals, and two lanes of traffic northbound on Hancock St. for a few hours during the morning commute.

"The new traffic system will be put in place to provide pedestrian safety and to accommodate traffic, not divert it, through Quincy Square," Gillan said.

Highlights of the traffic improvement plan include:

"Two lanes of traffic northbound on Hancock St. stretching 100 feet south from the Granite St. intersection between 7 and 9 a.m. A "lead green" light northbound at the Hancock St.-Granite St. intersection will operate during those hours for motorists taking a left-hand turn westbound onto Granite St.

The second lane will allow other motorists to proceed northbound on Hancock St. without backups caused by left-turning motorists.

"The left-hand lane is needed to provide left-hand turns onto Granite St. It will act as a left-hand lane but it will not be a dedicated left-hand lane," Gillan said.

To accommodate the two-lane traffic between 7 and 9 a.m., motorists will be not be allowed to park in four parking spaces on the easterly side of Hancock St. near the Granite St. intersection. Parking will be available in the spots after 9 a.m.

"There shouldn't be a very high demand for these spaces before 9 a.m. in the commercial district," Gillan said.

Motorists who ignore the parking ban in the four spaces between 7 and 9 a.m. will be ticketed. Repeat offenders will be towed.

"The city will take the proper action to ensure the lanes stay open," Gillan said.

"Two new traffic signals will be placed in front of the South Shore Bank for southbound traffic on Hancock St. taking a left turn onto Chestnut St. The signals will feature green arrows and "detectors."

Gillan said the detecting mechanism, placed under the street near the end of Christmas Island, will be able to detect when a car is approaching the Chestnut St. left-turn. The detector will send a signal to the controller within the traffic signal light. The light will then turn green after a 15 to 90 second delay.

Gillan said there will be no signal for northbound motorists on Chestnut St. approaching Hancock St. because all traffic must

City Wants MWRA To Develop Emergency Plans For Sludge Plant

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Mayor James Sheets wants the MWRA to develop emergency procedures to deal with future problems that may arise at the sewage sludge treatment facility at the Fore River Shipyard.

"We are looking for the MWRA to have something to put in place in case of an emergency," said Acting City Solicitor James Timmins.

Two weeks ago Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman ordered the plant shut down following a fire there.

Last week U.S. District Court Judge David Mazzone allowed the plant to begin limited operations despite protests of Quincy officials.

Mazzone gave approval to the dewatering of sewage sludge and transporting it out of state by railroad.

Monday morning the MWRA began the dewatering process again. Specially designed rail containers were also at the plant waiting to be loaded with "sludge cake" for transport to a location in the southeastern United States.

At the request of City officials, the MWRA has agreed to supply an on-site monitor to oversee the work of the company hired to operate the plant, New England Fertilizer Co.

Timmins said that the MWRA has attributed past problems at the plant to NEFCO employees.

In addition, engineer David Standley, a technical consultant to the city, monitored the dewatering operation on Monday and Tuesday and checked on the environment around the plant. Timmins said that Standley reported that the plant was operating satisfactorily under the conditions.

Timmins said it would probably take NEFCO 10 to 14 days of hauling to make a significant impact on the backlog of "sludge cake" being stored at the plant.

Last week, Sheets expressed concern about odor control. The plant's primary method of odor control occurs during the pellet making process which was shut down following the fire.

To prevent odors the MWRA will treat the "sludge cake" with chemicals. Timmins said the plant also has an internal system which "vacuums" the air and filters the odor.

"We will be wary, however, once the weather gets warmer that the odor controls are still working properly," Timmins said.

Sheets, Tobin Testify For Federal Relief In Harbor Cleanup

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Testifying last week before a House subcommittee in support of a bill which would create a National Clean Water Investment Corporation, Mayor James Sheets and Rep. Steve Tobin urged lawmakers to funnel more federal revenue into the multi-billion dollar Boston Harbor cleanup to help overburdened ratepayers.

JAMES SHEETS

cleanup. The two officials also expressed the plight of many local homeowners overburdened by the escalating water and sewer bills charged by the MWRA.

The authority is under federal court order to clean the harbor. Presently, the majority of the cleanup tab is being picked up by citizens living in the MWRA district.

To date, only $100 million in federal dollars has been appropriated for the cleanup, a mere 1.4 percent of the total cost.

In his testimony, Sheets pointed out that the entire cleanup project was a result from a lawsuit filed by the City of Quincy against the state. "Although we understand that our community's environmental activism does have a price," the mayor said, "our citizens were not prepared for the substantial impact the cleanup would have on their pocketbooks."

"We took action because the filth in Quincy Bay was eroding the quality of our lives... only to find the financial impacts of such action to be so burdensome that the quality we sought is being further diminished."

"The people of my city are frustrated and angry because the sewer rate has risen by 70 percent in the last two years. By the year 2000 the cost of water and sewer services for a typical family of four will surpass what they currently pay in property taxes to prove for all city services including public education, public safety, and public works."

"The result," Sheets said, "is predictable. Without federal and alternative sources of funding, public support for clean water will collapse... even in a city that takes pride in its environmental record."

"Make no mistake, the crisis is real. It is felt by each and every rate payer in the MWRA district." As an example, Sheets noted the water and sewer bill of one Quincy family of five has climbed from $210 in 1990 to $635 this year. The bill is projected to soar to nearly $2,000 by the end of the century.

"Substantial aid is needed to make a difference to our Quincy families. The proposal of the Congressional Research Service, in response to the request of this committee, directly addresses this problem."

"If appropriate legislation could be promptly enacted, and adequate funds made available within the next two to three years, the projected 50 percent MWRA rate increase from 1996 to 2000 could be reduced or avoided entirely," the mayor told Congressional leaders.

The mayor pointed out the MWRA will spend about $500 in 1995 for continuation of the court-ordered capital improvements to its wastewater systems. From 1996 to 2001, another $1.4 billion is required.

"In 1994, the sewer-water bill for my Quincy family of five will be nearly twice the projected average for 25 metropolitan areas."

New MRI Center Opens At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital recently hosted an open house and ribbon-cutting ceremony for its new magnetic resonance imaging facility, The Quincy MRI Center.

The ribbon was cut by Ward 2 City Councillor and Acting Mayor Ted DeCristofaro; Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets; Ellen Zane, director of Quincy Hospital; Dr. Grace Lee, director of the Quincy MRI Center and a representative of MTL, Inc., Quincy Hospital's partner in the venture.

The Quincy MRI Center is the first MRI to be permanently situated on-site at a Massachusetts community hospital.

The open house featured tours of the facility, information about MRI technology and refreshments.

MRI utilizes a powerful magnet, radio signals and a computer to form images of internal anatomy without using invasive techniques or x-rays.

MRI enables doctors to see parts of the anatomy more clearly than other techniques allow and can help diagnose some disease states that have not otherwise been detectable.

"While MRI is available at free-standing facilities on the South Shore, having this state-of-the-art technology on the hospital campus is unique and is much more convenient for our inpatients who need a scan. They no longer experience the discomfort of being transported to and from another facility by ambulance," Zane said.

"Outpatients will have the benefit of being able to schedule all their radiology procedures at one location. We are very pleased to be able to enhance the scope of service we provide for our community and to further develop the excellence of our radiology department."

MRI is superior to other techniques for providing diagnostic information about the brain, lower skull area, pelvic region and spinal cord. In addition, it holds tremendous promise in detecting heart attack damage, analyzing the quality and quantity of blood flow in the heart and brain, serving as an early warning system for a number of disorders.

It is hoped that MRI will help lower health care costs by detecting diseases in the early stages, when treatment is less expensive, and by reducing the need for exploratory surgery and other expensive tests.

Dr. Lee, an MRI specialist, has joined the Quincy Hospital staff from the Johns Hopkins Medical Center.

MRI RIBBON CUTTING--An open house and ribbon cutting were held to celebrate the opening of Quincy Hospital's new Magnetic Resonance Imaging facility. The first MRI to be permanently situated on-site at a Massachusetts community hospital. Washington St. Concrete Layering Starts Today

The city's watermain contractor, MPF Corporation, will begin laying the bituminous concrete top on Washington St. today (Thursday) at 6 a.m. or earlier starting from the Southern Artery intersection to South St., a distance of approximately 2500 feet, announces City Engineer Fred Mirza.

The work is expected to be complete by Friday, Aug. 21.

To minimize any inconvenience to businesses, residents, other abutters and the travelling public, the city has directed the contractor to take, as a minimum, these steps:

- Construction operations shall last only two days, Aug. 20-21. Work will start at 6 a.m. or earlier as conditions permit.

- Traffic police details will be provided for the convenience and safety of the public.

- All traffic signals in this stretch will be in a flashing or manual control.

- Parking will not be allowed on either side of the street.

- One traffic lane will be maintained in each direction at all times during the work.

- Work would first start on the southerly side of Washington St. and progress toward the northerly curb line.

ULCERS: FACT AND FICTION

Few diseases are associated with as many misconceptions as stomach ulcers. They used to be considered status symbols among the high-powered and hard-driven, but peptic ulcers are now known to be linked to heredity as well as to stress levels. These sores in the lining of the stomach or small intestine can occur in infants as well as octogenarians. Milk, which has been found to increase stomach acid, is no longer recommended.

The most common symptom is pain a half hour to two hours after eating. Most ulcers heal within six weeks with proper treatment, although they do tend to recur over months or years.

Untreated, ulcers can lead to serious complications or even death.

P.S. About one out of every ten people get ulcers at some point during their lives.

Patients with ulcers are often asked to curtail their caffeine intake. If you

Missing Republicans

Looking at the Sept. 15 primary ballot lineup, you can't help notice missing Republicans on the local front.

Republicans who not too long ago vowed they would challenge any Democrat that moved apparently decided not this year.

The GOP, you could say, tossed in the towel on three major local seats: state senate, and state representative in the Second and Third Norfolk Districts.

It means Democrats will hold those three seats with no independent candidates running and no write-in contenders in the wings.

The new state senator will be one of four Democrats:
City Solicitor Steve McGrath, Rep. Michael Morrissey, who is giving up his state representative seat to run for the senate, Holbrook Selectman Joanne Koval or Dorothy Shea of Quincy.

Democrat Rep. Steve Tobin has no opposition in the Second Norfolk.

In the Third Norfolk it will be either Democrat incumbent Ron Mariano or Democrat challenger George Miller.

The only local evidence of Republican candidate activity is in the First Norfolk District where the Morrissey seat is up for grabs.

Republicans Michael Cronin and Susan Gallagher are willing to take on one another in the primary and one of four Democrats in the November final election.
The four Democrats battling for the nomination are Michael Bellotti, Ward 3, Councillor Larry Chretien, Atty. Stephen Colman and Susan Lydon Walsh.

Quincy, of course, is a Democratic stronghold with Democrats outnumbering Republicans by nearly 20,000. And unenrolled by 14,000.

With campaign funding hard to come by in the current sick economy maybe discretion is the better part of political valor this year.

But if we are ever going to get back to a real two-party system, Republicans have got to be willing to take some lumps if need be to keep the franchise open.

The worst thing that could happen to the community is to have one party able to just toss their hats in and walk off with the prizes each year.

We need a two-party system — not a one and a half party.

PAUL HAROLD'S BROTHER, Bill, is in from Coronado, Calif. to help him in his campaign for the 10th Congressional seat.

Bill calls himself the "social director" of the campaign and got off to a good start Sunday. He organized a Harold family rally at the South Shore
Country Club in Hingham with 62 members attending.

When the pep talk was over they left armed with bumper stickers, roof-rack signs, cards and other paraphernalia to hit the campaign trail with.

The rally was held prior to a reception at the Country Club held for Harold sponsored by a committee comprising Republican, Democrats and unenrolled.

Bill Harold, who is the sales director of a California Halloween costume manufacturing company (annual sales $26 million) is now preparing a bus brigade Aug.
29 when his brother opens a headquarters in Plymouth Center. Four buses will leave the Quincy headquarters, picking up Harold supporters enroute to Plymouth.

"We'll arrive with four full buses," says Bill Harold, matter-of-factly.

Friends Keep Eileen O'Malley's Memory Alive With Laundry Room

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Eileen O'Malley of Quincy cared deeply about the homeless.

"It's so cold outside," she would tell her close friend, Carol Rizzo. "Nobody should have to live outside in this weather. Nobody should be homeless."

O'Malley always had great concern for those without homes, even while she was being hospitalized for terminal breast cancer. And when she died last April 15 at age 47, Rizzo decided that something must be done to keep O'Malley's spirit alive.

"I said, 'It's not going to end here,'" said Rizzo. "I had never been involved with homelessness before, but I told my husband, 'We have to do something.'"

That something turned out to be four months' worth of work which will culminate Saturday at 1 p.m. when a new laundry room will be dedicated in O'Malley's memory at the Quincy homeless shelter Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St.

EILEEN O'MALLEY

"After Eileen died, I spoke to (Father Bill's Executive Director) Joseph Finn," explained Rizzo. "I wanted to do something to help, and he told me that Father Bill's could use a new linen service."

Rizzo and her husband, Joseph, who both work as toll booth collectors for the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, decided to post signs all along the turnpike asking for donations in O'Malley's memory.

"Some people called me and said they wanted to give but couldn't, because the economy is so tight," said Rizzo. "I asked those who couldn't send money to save their extra (redeemable) cans and bottles and to send them to me."

Rizzo said O'Malley's sister, Claire Polvarelli, who works for the New England Telephone Co., and Katerina Koumendakos, an employee of Alfredo's Restaurant (where O'Malley worked for 10 years as a waitress) were also extremely helpful in getting people involved.

"The telephone company gave generously, and so did the patrons and employees at Alfredo's," said Rizzo. "It shows you that you don't have to have a lot of money to make a difference."

A total of $4,500 was raised, enough to pay for three new washing machines, two new dryers and carpentry work that included a paint job and shelving for the new laundry room. Rizzo said extra money that is collected will be "locked into the laundry room for future use."

It has been worth all the hard work, she said, to see the new room dedicated in O'Malley's name. Rizzo said she first met O'Malley in November 1990 through her involvement with Reach for Recovery, a volunteer program of breast cancer survivors.

"It's hard to describe," said Rizzo, herself a former breast cancer patient and Reach for Recovery's Quincy-Milton coordinator. "I was asked by a local surgeon to visit Eileen at Quincy Hospital to comfort her, and yet I was the one who came away comforted."

"She had tremendous, tremendous sensitivity. She had been given the worst possible prognosis a breast cancer patient could have—she had to go through six months of aggressive chemotherapy just to see if she was even a candidate for surgery—and yet she always thought of other people first."

Rizzo said the last four months have been a "real learning experience."

"I've learned that homeless people are just people that didn't get the breaks," she said. "They're not all drug addicts and alcoholics like I thought. I've learned that shelters really do work, and that people can make a difference if they pull together."

She added that she and others in her life have learned, also, from Eileen O'Malley.

"She made each and every one of us want to go the extra mile," said Rizzo. "She had these powers of drive and determination that none of us had ever seen before."

"In one of our last conversations together, we talked about how, in life, you have to give something back. And that's true. You have to give back in order to have a meaningful life."

Quincy's Yesterdays

Boston Gear Head Won't Run For Mayor

Harry H. Kerr, president and treasurer of the Boston Gear Works, spiked rumors that he would run for mayor in 1932, although, he added, "I will say our City Council could be improved upon."

"The day is coming," he predicted, "when Quincy will have at its head not a mayor but a highly efficient city manager whose salary will be commensurate with the position."

"WINE BRICKS" LEGAL

Quincy Police said no legal action appears to be possible against so-called "wine bricks" that have made their appearance in two Quincy stores. Federal authorities pronounced them fruit.

The bricks were composed of a dried grape product which could be converted into juice by adding water with the warning on the package that it "must be consumed within five days or it will ferment."

FIGHT ZONING LAW

The Quincy Industrial Development Committee opened headquarters at 15 Saville St. and 67 Saville Row to campaign against the new zoning ordinance which goes on the ballot at a special election Sept. 1.

The committee warned that any advantages won by residents under the new law would be offset by its new restrictions on industrial development.

Such development, said the committee, "is absolutely necessary in order that we may someday shift some of the tax burden from home owners to industry and business."

Rita's Own Chicken Marinade (And Beef, Too)

The usual wet weekend didn't prevent our daughter Rita and son-in-law Jonathan from their planned cookout, even though the food was barbecued outside and eaten inside. And somehow, when there is a gathering of friends and family combined with great food, the weather becomes insignificant!

Rita used two different marinades, one for chicken and one for beef kabobs. Both were equally delicious, and can be interchanged from one kind of meat to another. Both recipes will be great to use on Labor Day.

RITA'S OWN

CHICKEN MARINADE

Four or five garlic cloves (mashed)
1 Tbsp hoisin sauce
1 Tbsp plum sauce
1 Tbsp rice wine vinegar
1 Tbsp sesame oil
1 Tbsp brown sugar

The chicken was left in the refrigerator overnight, but an hour or two will be fine. It had a nice hue when it was cooked over the fire, as well as having a great taste!

RITA'S BEEF MARINADE

1/2 cup soy sauce
1/3 cup of Balsamic vinegar
2 tps dry mustard
2 garlic cloves (mashed)
1 Tbsp olive oil
1 Tbsp worcestershire sauce black pepper

Rita used mushrooms, cherry tomatoes, red, green and yellow peppers and cut zucchini with the beef. Pour the leftover marinade over the kabobs and let set before barbecuing. Then when done, just slip all the vegetables and meat off the skewer and into a platter so everyone may enjoy the great flavor.

entries received annually, 288 exceptional athletes are selected as regional semifinalists. Twelve girls are selected in six regions for four months--June through September.

Because of Nolan's outstanding abilities in soccer, she is competing for a spot as one of the 24 finalists that will appear in the November issue of 'TEEN Magazine. Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

'Sharing Our Stories' Quilt To Be Displayed

Tina Kluetmeier, coordinator for the Literacy Volunteers of America, English as a Second Language (ESL) program at the Thomas Crane Public Library announces display dates and locations for the quilt, "Sharing Our Stories."

This spring, tutors and students and their children met at the Adams Shore library to work on an oral history project, a handsewn block quilt. The quilt, composed of 20 individual squares, each representing one person's story, was initiated after several tutors expressed concern that their students were lonely and isolated during the day.

Students from countries all over the world stitched a square that told a story about about family history, a religious belief, a childhood memory or a frightening passage to America.

Tutors who volunteer their time to teach ESL or basic reading through the program at the library are from communities throughout the South Shore.

The quilt and a booklet of stories about each square will be on display at the following locations:

Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., yesterday (Wednesday) through tomorrow (Friday); Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St., Aug. 24 to Sept. 4; Thayer Library, Washington St., Braintree, Sept. 7-18; Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Sept. 21 to Oct. 2.

For more information about becoming a student of volunteer, call the library at 376-1314.

Chretien Calls For Reforms

Larry Chretien, candidate for state representative in the 1st Norfolk District, has called upon the legislature and his election opponents to support a comprehensive campaign finance and ethics bill that is now being debated on Beacon Hill.

The bill, entitled the Act for Accountable Politics, is sponsored by Common Cause.

Chretien said the bill will make elections fairer for non-incumbents and reduce the influence of money and special interest groups on politics.

"Many of our problems today have come about because the special interest groups have far more influence on politicians than do ordinary citizens. For example, that's why we are now spending billions on bailing out the savings and loan industry, and at the same time we are cutting education budgets," Chretien said.

"Voters obviously want better government, but the only way we can get it is by first changing the system. The Common Cause bill would accomplish a lot of needed changes, such limiting the influence of political action committees and lobbyists.

"That's why I collected signatures for their petition. Furthermore, as of Aug. 12, of the candidates in my race for state representative, I am the only one who has expressed support for the Common Cause legislation," he added.

"Although I support strengthening the campaign finance and ethics laws, I'm not going to wait for the politicians on Beacon Hill. In this campaign for state representative, I am not accepting donations greater than $100 from any individual and I am not accepting financial contributions from any political action committees.

"My purpose for running for state representative is to do what I can to help improve the economy, our schools, and the environment. In doing so, I want to work for the people of Quincy and not the special interest groups," Chretien said.

OBITUARIES

Joy M. Hanlon, 9

In Accident

A funeral Mass for Joy Marie Hanlon, 9, of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 15 in St. Joseph's Church.

Joy died Aug. 12 after being electrocuted while climbing a tree near her Quincy Point home.

She came in contact with a 7,800-volt wire while climbing the tree with her sister, Diane, 11, and a young friend. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation by her father, Richard J. Hanlon, and Quincy firefighters failed to revive her.

She would have entered Grade 5 at Daniel Webster Elementary School this fall.

Her mother, Ann (Lewis) Hanlon, said that Joy had climbed the tree before but had never gone as high as the 25 feet she reached on the day she died.

At the time of her death, Joy was making plans with Diane for Diane's 12th birthday party. She was in the swimming program at Lincoln-Hancock School and the summer book program at her school and also enjoyed playing soccer with her father.

She attended Girl Scout Camp Wabasso in Bradford, N.H. last month and won first prize for riding a horse bareback.

She is also survived by two brothers, Kevin R. Hanlon, 6, and John T. Hanlon, 4; and her grandparents, John J. Hanlon of Braintree and John W. and Cecilia (Carbajal) Lewis of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Funeral arrangements were by the Mortimer N. Peck Funeral Home, Braintree.

Donations may be made to the Leukemia Society of America, 180 Ruscourt Rd., Dedham, MA 02026 or to St. Joseph's Church, 550 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Ellen G. Lewis, 52

A funeral Mass for Ellen G. (Seaver) Lewis, 52, of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 14 in St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Lewis died Aug. 11 at Cardinal Cushing Hospital in Brockton.

Born and raised in Boston, she attended Boston schools.

She is survived by her husband, Charles G. Lewis; six daughters, Grace Sheridan of Brockton, Loretta Diaz of Quincy, Vivian Fulmer of Metter, Ga., Deborah Rogers of Randolph, Robin Lewis of Boston and Caryn Lewis of Stoughton; a brother, Robert Seaver of St. Petersburg, Fla.; a sister, Barbara DeCristofaro of Quincy; and nine grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Trope Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Mary T. LaTora, 78

A private graveside service for Mary T. (Todd) LaTora, 78, of Quincy, was held Aug. 7 in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Mrs. LaTora died Aug. 2 in Jewish Memorial Hospital, Boston after a brief illness.

Born in Niagara Falls, N.Y., she was a resident of Quincy for many years.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The pre-arranging of a funeral is an important decision. There are many factors which must be carefully considered.

Planning from complete knowledge of the various practical, legal, economic and psychological factors is essential.

If a formal pre-arranged funeral agreement or an informal one is desired, the inherent uncertainties of such an agreement make it highly desirable to get expert, professional counseling from a funeral director.

We at the Deware Funeral Home have provided this expert and professional counseling through the years. We invite you to call us or stop by to acquaint yourselves with the many plans we have available. This, of course, is without cost or obligation ...

Morrisette Rides Win Streak To State Title

By TOM SULLIVAN

The sizzling Morrisette Legion baseball team not only is host for the Northeast Regional tournament which began yesterday, (Wednesday) at Adams Field, but it is the state champion for the first time since 1975.

Morrisette, which has won 16 of its last 17 games and took a seven-game win streak into the Regionals, swept through the state finals unbeaten and clinched the state title with a 13-2 victory over West Boylston. Morrisette's record stands at 28-4.

With Morrisette winning the states, West Boylston joins Morrisette and the champions of the other five New England states and New Jersey in the Regionals.

"I said we had a good chance of winning the state title but I just wanted to get as many games in as possible to keep us sharp for the Regionals," said coach Dave Perdios. "Winning the state title is frosting on the cake and we certainly have momentum going into the Regionals."

Morrisette is red hot, having won its last eight regular season games to win the Zone 6 crown, winning two out of three from Walpole, two straight from Brockton and four in a row in the state finals.

"This is almost a carbon copy of the 1975 season," said former longtime coach Nick Malvesti, whose son Tom is the team's pitching coach and whose grandsons, Mike and Tom, are among the team's mainstays.

"Morrisette finished strong that year, won the state title and the Northeast Regionals and went on to play in the Legion World Series in Rapid City, South Dakota. Present coach Dave Perdios starred for that team and hit the first home run of the series. The ball was sent to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, Ray Cattaneo, the present manager, coached that team."

Morrisette also hosted the Regionals in 1977 with Perdios again starring and Cattaneo coaching.

The title win in the states at Chicopee followed wins over Lanesboro, 9-8; West Boylston, 2-0, and Aldenville, 12-7. Although the win wasn't very interesting except for Morrisette fans, it gave Perdios a chance to get everyone into the game.

The winner of this week's Regionals will go on to the Legion World Series in Fargo, North Dakota.

Morrisette was scheduled to play its first game last night (Wednesday) against the Rhode Island champion.

If the Zone 6 champions won they will play the winner of last night's New Jersey-Maine winner tonight (Thursday) at 8. If they lost last night they will face the New Jersey-Maine loser today at 1 p.m.

Morrisette had little trouble with West Boylston in the state championship game as WB, which had edged host Aldenville, 2-1, earlier in the afternoon, committed seven errors, making things easy for Morrisette.

Matt O'Toole pitched outstanding ball, going seven innings of shutout ball, allowing two hits, striking out eight and not walking a batter. He improved to 5-0 and helped himself with two hits and a RBI. He also has a save.

Morrisette, which pounded out 58 hits and scored 36 runs in its four games, scored three runs

At Adams Field 7 State Champs In Regional Tourney

Eight teams, including six New England champions, the New Jersey champion and host Morrisette, were scheduled to begin action in the American Legion Northeast Regional tournament yesterday (Wednesday) at Adams Field.

West Boylston, runnerup in the state championships, qualified as host Morrisette won its first state title since 1975.

Also playing are Orono, Me., Post 84; Hudson, N.H., Post 48; R & R Construction of Newport, R.I.; Bennington, Vt., Post 13; Nutley Post 471 of Iselin, N.J.; and the Connecticut champion, who hadn't been decided at press time.

Due to the steady rains, it was possible that the opening day games Wednesday could be delayed, although at press time the first game between Hudson, N.H. and Connecticut was still scheduled to start at 10 a.m. The infield was covered with puddles Tuesday.

Morrisette is one of the hottest teams in the tournament, which it is hosting for the third time.

The Zone 6 champions took a seven-game win in the first two innings without a hit as WB committed four errors.

The winners added three runs in the third when Tom Balzano reached on an error, Mark Kelleher singled and Serge Belcastro scored both with a double. Belcastro scored on an infield out.

Morrisette added two in the fourth when Balzano was hit by a pitch, Kelleher walked, Belcastro singled home Balzano and O'Toole singled in Kelleher.

In the seventh, Kelleher's second double brought in Tom Malvesti, who ran for Chris MacDonald, who had singled.

In the three-run eighth Mark Cahill and pinch hitter Pat Clifford walked, Pat Shea drove in Cahill with a single, Clifford scored on an error and Danny Duncan scored Shea with a sacrifice fly.

The final run scored in the ninth when relief pitcher Mike Malvesti walked and was driven in by Shea.

Also having key hits were Dave Reinhart,

Robbie Kane, Adam Calvert and Noel DiBona.

In the semifinals, Morrisette collected 22 hits in downing host Aldenville, 12-7.

Sixteen-year-old Duncan was the starting pitcher and went the five innings Perdios wanted. He recorded his first Legion win.

Fifteen-year-old Tommy Malvesti went 2 2/3 innings, pitching out of a no-outs, bases-loaded situation in the sixth. When he ran into trouble in the eighth, brother Mike came in and put out the fire.

Morrisette trailed, 4-2, going into the fourth but batted around and scored five runs on seven hits. Reinhart and Cahill had hits and they scored on Shea's double.

MacDonald singled home Shea, Balzano singled and MacDonald scored on Kelleher's single, Balzano scored on Belcastro's single.

Morrisette added a run in the fifth when Cahill singled, stole second and scored on Kane's single. It added two in the seventh and two in the eighth.

MacDonald, who had five hits in an earlier state tournament game, led the attack with four hits and two RBI. Kane had three hits and three RBI, Balzano three hits and an RBI, Belcastro three hits and two RBI, Cahill three hits, Shea a double and two RBI, Tommy Malvesti 2-for-2, and Kelleher, Duncan and Reinhart all a hit.

"We peaked in the state tournament after finishing up the regular season with eight wins in a row," said Perdios. "We have been getting some great hitting, the pitching has been excellent and the defense has really tightened up. These kids worked their tails off all season and I can honestly say that no one in Zone 6 worked harder."

Things haven't changed much in 17 years. Perdios was the shortstop and Cattaneo the coach for the 1975 World Series team, Frank Osborne, now the athletic officer, was the scorer, Eddie Ryan was the bat boy and his father, Richard "Berger" Ryan, is now the scorer and statistician.

Six Individual Awards To Be Presented At Regionals, World Series

Besides the American Legion Northeast Regional Championship Trophy, six other awards are presented to individual players competing in the regional tournament and American Legion World Series.

The Dr. Irvin L. (Click) Cowger RBI Memorial Award is given to the American Legion baseball player credited with the most runs batted in by official scorers at the respective regional tournaments and World Series.

The National Americanism Commission established the award in memory of Dr. Cowger, a dynamic pioneer who died during the 1970 season.

The Jack Williams Memorial Leadership Award is presented to the manager and coach of the National Championship Team as representatives of the adult leadership Williams stressed during his lifetime.

Williams led the American Legion Department of North Dakota as adjutant for 49 years prior to his death in 1967. His great love for the game of baseball was the evident in his early efforts to establish American Legion Baseball as a youth citizenship training program of the American Legion. He constantly encouraged qualified men to work in the program.

Bob Feller Pitching Award, named for the American Legion's first graduate to be elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., is presented to the player striking out the most batters in the regional and national competition.

Despite an active business career, Feller continues to maintain a keen interest in the program by annually attending the national finals. The National Americanism Commission salutes his participation by the presentation of the award.

The list of past recipients includes two current major leaguers. New York Met Sid Fernandez won the award in 1980 while pitching for the Moiliili Legion Post in Hawaii. Gregg Olson, ace reliever for the Baltimore Orioles, received the award in 1985 as a member of the Omaha, Nebraska Legion Post.

James F. Daniel Jr. Memorial Sportsmanship Award is given annually to the player participating in the World Series who best represents the principles of good sportsmanship emphasized by the program.

Former Red Sox hurler Mike Boddicker won the award in 1976 playing for the Hanford Post in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

In 1988, Pete Rose II, son of All-Time Hit Leader and World Series MVP Pete Rose, won the award.

American Legion Baseball Batting Champion will be crowned by the Hillerach and Bradsky Company of Louisville, Kentucky, which has presented a "Louisville Slugger" trophy annually since 1945 to the player compiling the highest batting average during national competition.

American Legion Big Stick Award (formerly the Adirondack Big Stick Award) recognizes the player who compiles the highest number of bases in regional and national competition. The award is arranged with officials of Rawlings Sporting Goods Company.

In the B Division, Brigham & Women's Hospital is on fire, having won seven straight games and eight of the last nine to move into a tie with Granite Rail for the final playoff spot.

Applications Available For City Tennis Tournney

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces that applications are now available for the 22nd annual Quincy Tennis Tournament hosted by the Quincy Recreation Department.

Welch also noted that this year's tournament will be sponsored in part by Continental Cablevision of Quincy.

"This marks the first year that Continental Cablevision has teamed with the Recreation Department to conduct this always popular event. With the closing of the Granite Bank we have lost our sponsor for the past 13 years," he said.

"I am particularly thankful that Continental General Manager Steve Farhquar has seen an opportunity to continue this wholesome and healthy recreation activity. Residents of all ages will be able to benefit by their community-minded generosity."

The Quincy Tournament will be held at the tennis courts at the Quincy Vo-Tech and has 10 divisions of play for both men and women and divisions for boys and girls under age 16. The tournament is for Quincy residents and will take approximately two weeks to complete with play at night and on weekends.

Welch also noted that longtime tournament director John Franceschini has returned to head this year's event. The tournament is considered to be one of the largest municipal tournaments in New England, with an anticipated 125 participants.

"This is a fine event with the competitors giving their all to be crowned city champions, but at all times friendship, sportsmanship, and having fun is the prevailing spirit," Welch said.

Applications are available at the Quincy Recreation Department, City Hall, and Continental Cablevision in Quincy. For more information call 376-1386.

Over 2000 At Marina Bay Antique Boat Festival

Over 2,000 people viewed and boarded more than 40 vessels which were built as early as 1914 at the 10th annual Boston Antique and Classic Boat Festival recently held at Marina Bay in North Quincy.

Boston Voyages in Learning, sponsor of the event, announced the festival's awards. Stealing the show was the winner of the Judges Jubilee for Outstanding Restoration, the Rendezvous, a mahogany and brass trimmed liberty launch built in 1943.

According to Jim Penock, captain of the Rendezvous, the festival gave the visitors a chance to experience the art and majesty of antique and classic vessels.

"When people have a chance to board these ships, see the intricate detail and touch the polished mahogany, they begin to appreciate the workmanship and pride that's often missing in today's crafts," Penock said.

The Rendezvous is available for private charters from Lewis Wharf through September. For more information, call 726-0980.

Other award winners included Spectator's Choice, Chautauqua, Best in Original Condition, Speedwell; Best Sailboat, Saudade; and Best Powerboat, Gadfly.

"To hold the rate at the 1994 level will require nearly $2 billion in federal/state grants to the MWRA over that six-year period. The need for relief is urgent."

Sheets, who has been on vacation outside the city, was not available for further comment. He is expected to return to Quincy this week.

In an interview with The Quincy Sun last week, Tobin said his testimony emphasized the need for federal assistance and stressed the federal government's obligation to help finance the cleanup since the project was mandated by a federal judge.

He also said wanted to send a clear message that common citizens are struggling financially with rising water and sewer bills. The average sewer bill for a family of four in Quincy is $450. Without federal assistance, that amount is expected to increase to $750 in three years.

If approved, officials estimate the legislation could provide as much as one billion dollars to Massachusetts over the first few years. The MWRA could receive 70 percent of that amount, perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars.

"That is significant ratepayer relief," Tobin said.

The two-term state representative said he testified in Washington because "I think the need for rate relief is the number one concern in my district. This is the first piece of legislation to be put forth into Congress that shows a commitment to fund the Clean Water Act.

"I wanted to emphasize how necessary federal relief is and stress the federal government's obligation to assist with the cleanup."

In addition, Tobin deemed it meaningful for the "members of Congress to have a counterpart in state government come before them and detail the financial difficulties his constituents are facing.

"I hoped my presence would bring credibility to the issue and to urge them not to delay passage of legislation which would help ratepayers because it's critical now and it's getting worse.

"The only meaningful relief is going to come from Congress. I felt obliged to be there and voice the concerns of my constituents," he said.

Tobin said he is "deeply concerned" that the plight over rising rates will fall on deaf ears. Without federal relief now and if the economy does not improve, he speculates in five homes in his district will face foreclosure in three years because homeowners will not have the money to pay the bills.

Already, Tobin said he knows of one homeowner in his district whose bill has reached $1000 a year. By 1995, the average bill is expected to increase $300 from $450 to $750.

"My deepest concern is that they (Congress and the MWRA) will pay us lip service and hope that we will pay the bill and go away.

"Unless we get relief now, we will be pushed beyond our means to pay and we will not be able to pay the bills and that's a fact.

"A lack of federal relief will lead to a lien on a home and then foreclosure in a worst case scenario but that day is fast approaching," Tobin said, adding the situation is worse today because of the high number of people unemployed and on welfare.

Those on fixed incomes, like retirees, are hit particularly hard by escalating bills, Tobin said. "People are doing things to conserve water but still the household budget is being stretched.

"People on fixed incomes can't make adjustments—they can only make cuts."

Tobin said he has been frustrated at the state level to make changes. "As an elected representative, I thought that I brought some credibility to the issue from someone who has seen the problems and has been frustrated by a lack of other means.

"We don't have the votes to makes changes (on Beacon Hill). There's no other means to bring relief to ratepayers.

"Recommitting the federal government to fund the Boston Harbor cleanup would bring meaningful relief," he added.

Cronin Wants Mandatory Sentence For 'High Speed Pursuit' Criminals

Michael J. Cronin, a Republican candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, has called for legislation to impose a one-year minimum mandatory sentence for criminals who lead police on so called "high speed pursuits."

Cronin said, "Our police officers are faced with a major dilemma in these areas. They must choose between endangering the public by ending a chase and allowing the suspect to evade capture or endangering the public and themselves by continuing a chase."

Cronin said he believes that the legislation will not prevent all high speed chases but "certainly the knowledge that there is a one year mandatory minimum sentence would deter some."

Throughout the country, a number of police officers and innocent motorists have been seriously injured or killed as a result of high speed chases. In California recently six people were killed in a crash during a pursuit by the U.S. Border Patrol. Earlier this year, a Quincy police officer was seriously injured on Quincy Shore Drive while assisting with a chase originated by Boston police.

"Clearly the time has come to address the issue," Cronin said.

The idea for a one year minimum mandatory sentence came from a Quincy police officer who also serves on the Cronin campaign committee, the candidate said. Ironically, a few days after discussing the plan, the same officer was forced to engage in a short pursuit in order to capture a narcotics suspect in West Quincy. At that point, Cronin decided to formulate a plan for legislation.

Cronin, who was awarded a departmental commendation while working as a civilian employee in the Quincy Police Department's Communications Division, said, "Whether you're the officer in pursuit, an employee in communications monitoring the chase, or a concerned citizen at home listening to a police scanner, I think everybody winces at the thought of what could happen before the chase ends."

"I think my legislation would literally put the brakes on some of these chases before they get started."

Currently, violation of Chapter 90, Section 25, "Failing to Stop for a Police Officer" calls for only a $100 fine, and only recently became an arrestable offense.

Traffic Signalization Improvements Part Of Downtown Project

turn right away from the intersection. The stop sign will remain.

"Traffic signals will be 'interconnected' at Washington and Temple, Washington at Hancock, Hancock at Temple, Granite at Hancock and Granite at Burgin Parkway to improve traffic flow."

"We will synchronize the traffic signals to accommodate the vehicle flow by maximizing the number of green lights and minimizing the number of stops within the network. It will take some fine tuning," Gillan said.

"A 'pedestrian phase' will be part of the traffic synchronization at the Hancock St. and Granite St. intersection as well as the School, Elm and Hancock St. intersection."

When the phase kicks in at Hancock and Granite St., all traffic will get a red light except for southbound traffic taking a left onto to Chestnut St. Pedestrians can then cross Hancock and Granite St. at the crosswalks.

Gillan said the traffic signals at School, Elm and Hancock St. will be recabled and the signal heads will be changed to comply with up-to-date standards. For example, the push button for pedestrian walking will be moved closer to the handicap ramp.

Also, a light will be added to accommodate the pedestrian phase. "The existing controller cannot do that," Gillan said.

In addition, southbound traffic on Hancock St. approaching School and Elm Sts. will be stopped before the crosswalk at Finian's Restaurant. Presently, traffic is allowed to pass the crosswalk during a red light.

"The delay will not be increased. The idea is to give pedestrians a safe crossing without introducing an undue delay," Gillan said.

"A traffic island measuring 100 feet long and four feet wide will be built on Granite St. from Hancock St. to just short of the MBTA bridge. The island will prevent illegal U-turns from motorists who exit the Parkingway and then try to cut over Granite St. back toward the Burgin Parkway."

Gillan said the median strip will be open for left turns into the Parkingway westbound from Granite St. There will be a dedicated left-hand turn from Granite St. into the Parkingway.

"Signal phases for emergency vehicles such as fire trucks will be incorporated into the traffic light signalization. Emergency apparatus will be accommodated northbound and southbound on Hancock St., as well as eastbound on Granite St. Only one accommodation can take place at one time.

To utilize the emergency phase, Gillan said the operator of a fire truck will turn on an emitter on top of the truck. When turned on, the emitter sends out a signal to the traffic light. The light picks up the signal and changes the light signal to the emergency phase.

As a result, a fire truck will be able to establish a green light to clear out traffic in the lane the vehicle is traveling and hold the green light until the truck is through the intersection. The green light would then revert back to normal operations. "We're still working out the bugs with the program," Gillan said.

The traffic changes should be implemented by the late fall or early winter after the infrastructure work, including new sidewalks and historical lights, is complete, Gillan said.

Other changes are planned as part of the improvement project. One-way vehicular flow on Cottage Ave. will reverse from Hancock St. toward Hancock St.

Also, the synchronization of traffic signals will be carried through the Hancock St.-Dimmock St. intersection.

$200 Stolen From Wollaston Theatre

About $200 was stolen sometime over the weekend from a strong box inside the Wollaston Theatre.

Owner Arthur Chandler told police he discovered the back door of the Beale St. theatre open at about 10 a.m. Monday. Chandler said he believes the door was intentionally left unlocked, perhaps by a movie patron, before he left the theatre Sunday at 10:15 p.m.

"There was no forced entry," Chandler said.

The $200 was taken from a strong box which was placed in a secret area. Several cabinets and drawers were opened up. "Stuff got strewn all over the place," he said.

Chandler also said a wooden door leading to his office inside the theatre was kicked in.

Chandler has owned the theatre since 1979. Monday's incident was the fifth or six reported burglary at the theatre since he purchased it 13 years ago.

Miller Says Now Is The Time For Change

George Miller, a Democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, says he is running for the elective office because "now is the time for political change."

Miller, who is trying to unseat Democratic incumbent Ron Mariano, said, "I believe that we must challenge the political insiders who are more concerned with the creation and maintenance of their own power structure rather than the everyday struggle of our citizens to survive."

While campaigning, Miller said people have expressed their anger over the lifetime career politicians that have "barricaded themselves on Beacon Hill behind lobbyists, special interest groups and other politicians."

"Other people have questioned why I just don't wait for a seat to open rather than challenging an incumbent.

"My opponent, Ronald Mariano, has run for three elective offices during his political career including Democratic State Committee, school committee and state representative. When he sought these elective offices each was vacant."

"I feel Mr. Mariano's failure to ever challenge an incumbent demonstrates his fear of the career political insiders and/or his satisfaction which the way government has been managed. This fear and/or satisfaction offers very little hope for meaningful change," Miller said.

Responding to Miller's claim, Mariano said, "I've always been involved and when there has been an opportunity to serve I have run and tried to serve. I've been involved in the issues working with state reps and working against them."

"I think Miller offers nothing constructive, he's never been involved and he's looking for an issue."

"I've taken the opportunity to serve when it's presented itself. I was involved long before I decided to run for elective office," Mariano added.

Miller said he is not satisfied with what the "politicians have done to our state and community through their actions and inaction and I am not afraid to challenge them so that I can aggressively deal with issues such as the MWRA, local aid, education, crime and medical care."

"As your state representative, I will be able to effectively deal with these issues because I am not, and will not become entangled in the political debt and ties that so many of the career politicians find themselves tangled in today," Miller added.

Wollaston, North Quincy May Get Downtown-Like Project

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A project similar to the street reconstruction underway in Quincy Center could occur in the Wollaston and North Quincy business districts by the end of 1994, Mayor James A. Sheets said Tuesday.

"We'd like to do everything in those areas (Wollaston and North Quincy) that we've done on Hancock St. in Quincy Center," Sheets said Tuesday.

It that happens, new sidewalks with brick accent, new antique-style lights and free two-hour parking will replace old sidewalks, aluminum lights and parking meters in Wollaston and North Quincy, perhaps over the next two years.

Downtown is in the midst of the second phase of a $1.7 million facelift between Granite and School Sts. The first phase, from Granite to Dimmock St., was completed in 1990.

In the first phase, 42 black antique lights were erected while new granite curbs were set and Hancock St. repaved. During the second phase, Sheets said another 36 will be placed along Hancock St. from School St. to Granite St., including six on Granite St. and several more near the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Another four lights will be added on Maple St. which the mayor said will have to be reconstructed because curbs have been pushed into the narrow street by delivery trucks. Along that stretch, curbs will be reset, along with new sidewalks and a new street subsurface.

Sheets said the work may cost as much as $50,000. He said the money will be taken from Chapter 90 funds earmarked for road rehabilitation.

For the second phase of the downtown project, Sheets said 30 lights have been purchased by private groups or individuals at $2,500 each.

By the end of 1993 or 1994, Sheets said he hopes the cosmetic changes taking place in Quincy Center will also occur in Wollaston and North Quincy.

Next year, 15 lights will be added in the area around McIntyre Mall and the Adams Academy. In Wollaston, Sheets said he hopes to put 25 lights in the area of Hancock St. and Beale St. and perhaps Beach St.

If the program's success continues, the mayor said another 25 lights would be added in North Quincy along Hancock St. and Billings Rd., bringing the grand total of lights to more than 140.

Sheets said part of the program's success depends on the progress of Quincy 2000.

"Next year we'll take the lighting program north down on Hancock St. to the area around the Adams Academy and McIntyre Mall and next year we also hope to do Wollaston."

"We also hope to do North Quincy, perhaps next year or the following year, depending on how well Quincy 2000 progresses and the amount of enthusiasm we can generate."

Besides the lights, Sheets said he hopes to eradicate the parking meters in Wollaston and North Quincy. He said he is monitoring the parking situation along Hancock St. from School St. to Granite St. now that free two-hour parking has replaced the parking meters.

"I don't like parking meters. I intend to get rid of them if things work out."

Wollaston, North Quincy May Get Project

He said one concern raised by the business community is how the two-hour free-parking will be controlled in the absence of enforcement officers.

Monday through Friday, officers chalk tires to regulate time. The officers presently do not work Saturday.

Before introducing the two-hour free parking system to Wollaston and North Quincy, Sheets said he wants to "work out the bugs first in the downtown."

And although the removal of parking meters means lost revenue for the city, Sheets said it's the right economic move in the long run.

"I believe the increase in the number of businesses downtown and the number of people shopping downtown will more than make up for the loss of the parking meters."

"I think free two-hour parking will help business in Downtown Quincy, Wollaston and North Quincy."

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The killing of U.S. Marshal William F. Degan saddened law enforcement officials throughout the country, including a former Quincy police captain who praised Degan for his courage and meticulous police work.

David Rowell of Quincy, a former Quincy police captain who is now police chief in Pelham, N.H., said he and Degan developed a "special relationship" over the past several years working on criminal investigations, both in Quincy and in Pelham.

Degan, 42, was killed Friday after being shot outside a fugitive's heavily fortified cabin on a remote Idaho mountainside. A North Quincy native and Marine Corps veteran, Degan was sent to take charge of a sensitive operation against a dangerous adversary, suspected white supremacist Randall Weaver.

Kevin Harris, a friend of Weaver's, has been charged with Degan's murder. Harris lives with the Weavers.

Weaver is charged with assault on a federal officer.

Degan and other marshals were surveying the Weaver cabin in an attempt to find a way to capture Weaver when Degan was gunned down.

After Degan was shot, marshals returned fire. Samuel Weaver, the fugitive's 13-year-old son, was killed in the crossfire.

Law officials are trying to establish communications with Weaver, who is barricaded with his family in his remote mountain compound and surrounded by at least 100 law officers.

Degan was laid to rest Wednesday morning after a funeral Mass at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy. There was speculation Vice President Dan Quayle would attend the Mass. The Keohane Funeral Home, which handled Degan's funeral arrangements, and Sacred Heart Church did not know whether the vice president would attend the Mass as the Sun went to press.

Federal authorities regarded Degan as one of the best marshals in the U.S. Marshal's service, a criminal investigations supervisor who was eager to take on the most difficult and dangerous assignments.

Rowell attested to that description. Three days after Degan was killed, Rowell remembered the fallen marshal as an "unbelievable human being" and a "meticulous policeman."

For instance, Rowell credited Degan with the successful apprehension of two dangerous fugitives who stole narcotics from a New Hampshire drug store several months ago. A witness who saw the two men leave the scene of the crime informed police of the car's registration number.

The registration number helped authorities identify the suspects. Degan told Rowell the two men were dangerous and wanted by the U.S. Marshall's office; one for a burglary in Florida, the other for bank robbery in Lowell.

"Degan gave the Pelham police vital information which led to the suspects apprehension. He gave us an overview of what they were like and what to expect."

"He warned us that they were the type of people to shoot it out with us," Rowell said.

Two weeks after the robbery, the suspects were apprehended without incident or injuries.

"Degan was one heck of a policeman," Rowell recalled. "He was sort of like something out of the Old Wild West. He'd go anywhere and do anything for you."

"He was a real American guy, hardworking and humble. He was a real role model, too. He was very proud of his family."

"It's an awful loss."

Convicted Drug Trafficker Arrested

Quincy police arrested a convicted drug trafficker last Friday at Quincy Bay Inn.

Ramon Cesar Robles, 28, of Lynn, had been a fugitive from justice for more than two years following a 1990 conviction of drug trafficking, police said.

Robles was arrested by members of the Quincy Police drug unit and a member of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service after the drug unit received a tip that he was at the hotel.

Police arrested Robles in the hotel lobby and turned him over to immigration officials for deportation.

Residents Urged To Take Encephalitis Precautions

Quincy Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue advises residents to take precautions against mosquitoes to prevent cases of Eastern Encephalitis this summer.

An official from the State Department of Health warns that we are now in the risk period for EE, and EE infection. Although it is unlikely, it is possible.

The following precautions are advised:

1. Limit time spent outdoors when there is increased mosquito activity, particularly at dawn and dusk. Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants if outdoors during these times.

2. When outdoors during periods of noticeable mosquito activity use mosquito repellents that contain DEET. Products containing low concentrations of DEET, 15 percent or less, are for use on children and for backyard environments. Products containing less than 30 percent are for adults in high mosquito activity areas. Repellents containing DEET should not be used on infants.

3. Small children and infants, when resting or sleeping outdoors in playpens and carriages, should be covered by mosquito netting.

4. Repair and securely fasten all screens on the doors and windows of your home to keep out mosquitoes.

5. Eliminate backyard mosquito breeding areas by preventing the collection of standing water in old tires, buckets, gutters, or toddler swimming pools.

Eastern Encephalitis is a rare disease for which there is no human vaccine. The first symptoms of EE are high fever, stiff neck, headache, and lack of energy. These symptoms show up two to ten days after infection. The disease progresses quickly in children and encephalitis, or swelling of the brain, is the most serious symptom.

Mosquito Spraying Continues

The Quincy Health Department announces that spraying for mosquito control will occur today (Thursday) in selected areas of Quincy.

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project will spray the pesticide Resmethrin early in the morning.

Areas sprayed will be east of Hancock St. and east of Washington St. including Squantum, eastern portions of Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Germantown and coastal Quincy Point.

Spraying occurred Tuesday west of Hancock St. and west of Washington St., including Montclair, western portions of Atlantic, West Quincy, inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy and inland sections of Quincy Point.

Weather permitting,

spraying will occur between 2 and 7 a.m.

Resmethrin is used due to its compatibility with the environment, low toxicity to mammals, low irritation levels, and the fact it does not harm other wildlife.

Notice of future spraying dates will be available from the Mosquito Control Project, 762-3681, each Friday afternoon during August and September.

'Hug-A-Bear' Program At Quincy Police Dept.

Call it Operation "Bear Hug."

Thanks to a donation from the Neponset Valley Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers, the Quincy Police Department has initiated a "Hug-A-Bear" program to help youngsters deal with traumatic situations, announces Chief Francis Mullen.

The organization, comprised of retired telephone company employees, donated stuffed Teddy Bears to the Quincy Police Department. The toys will be used as an aid when dealing with youngsters involved in traumatic situations, such as accidents, domestic situations or sexual assaults.

"Several other area departments have used them with very positive results," Mullen said.

The Teddy Bears will be placed in all patrol, detective and juvenile vehicles, to be used at accidents scenes or during investigations.

When an officer hands out a Teddy Bear, a report will be filed to the chief's office stating the situations that warranted the use of the bear. The unit will then receive a replacement bear.

"Hopefully, these Teddy Bears will assist the officers and the youngsters in coping with difficult situations," Mullen said.

Free Seminar On How To Bid And Buy At Auction

Jerome J. Manning & Co. will conduct a free seminar for the general public and area brokers on "How to Bid and Buy at Auction" Wednesday, Sept. 2 at 7 p.m. at the Morrisette Legion Post Hall, 54 Miller St., West Quincy.

"This seminar will acquaint potential buyers with the auction process, as well as provide them with information about upcoming auctions, and a forum in which to have their questions answered," said Manning. "We also encourage real estate brokers to attend the seminar to learn how they can take advantage of the opportunity to share in sales commissions. Most of our auction sales offer a commission to the licensed real estate broker whose client is the successful bidder."

Manning is the chairman of the Education Committee for the Massachusetts State Auctioneer's Association and has been conducting seminars throughout Massachusetts for inquiring buyers and brokers and the response has been excellent.

For more information and registration regarding the seminar, upcoming auctions or broker participation, call 1-800-521-0111.

There is only one thing in the world worse than being talked about, and that is not being talked about.

AGONIZING OVER ACNE

For all the life-threatening problems teens face today, you'd think that acne would have dropped off the hit parade of things to worry about. You'd be wrong. Some four out of five teenagers have acne, the condition in which the skin's oil glands shift into overdrive, resulting in plugged, infected pores. Acne can leave nasty physical and psychological scars if not taken seriously, and treated with sympathy. Sufferers should be assured that the condition is brought on by hormonal action, not by sleeping or eating habits, sexual activity or poor hygiene. There is no cure, but by thoroughly cleansing the face two or three times a day can help. There is also an array of prescription drugs and medical procedures that can minimize the symptoms and repair skin damage.

P.S. For most people, acne is a problem for only a year or two, although some can be bothered for ten years or even longer.

Thanks to improved treatments for acne, more teenagers than ever are able to face the world with clearer skin and greater confidence. If you would like to learn more, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. When treating patients, I always try to consider how I would like myself, my wife and children or my parents to be treated by a doctor. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital.

A Rose Is A Rose

Just couldn't resist this one.

It's a short story you might entitle, "A Rose Is A Rose."

My good friend, former School Committeeman Charles Sweeney, an ardent amateur gardener, sent away to one of those flower-of-the-month clubs for three special rose bushes.

He planted them, fertilized them, faithfully watered them every day and proudly watched them grow.

SWEENEY

Charlie kept looking for theroses but none appeared. But patiently and undaunted, he weeded, watered, watched and waited.

But where were the roses? Maybe, Charlie told himself, it might be too much to expect roses the first year. But he kept hoping and looking and watering.

And then, suddenly, like a miracle, three beauties appeared — one on each of the three bushes. Charlie was delighted. He even took pictures of them to show his friends.

With new zeal, he continued the watering and the waiting and the watching for signs of another bud.

The other day a friend stopped by and Charlie proudly ushered him to the rose bushes to view his prized beauties.

"You know," Charlie confided, a little puzzled, "there's something funny about these roses. They feel like artificial ones."

The friend stepped over closer to inspect them and laughed. "Charlie, they are artificial!"

"You can't grow artificial roses," Charlie retorted. "I know you can't," the friend agreed. "But these are artificial — believe me!"

Artificial roses on live rose bushes! How could that be?

Simple.

Charlie's wife, Betty — his college sweetheart — knew how badly Charlie wanted to see some roses on his pet bushes he was giving so much tender loving care.

So, she stepped in as Mother Nature continued to drag her heels.

One day, when Charlie was off playing golf, she got three natural looking artificial roses and carefully wired them to the three bushes, camouflaging the wire so no one could detect it.

Ames St. neighbors are still kidding Charlie about it.

Whenever he steps out into the yard, they call to him: "Don't forget to water the roses."

But Charlie is taking it all in stride — and not giving up.

"Wait," he says, as he continues the watering, "until you see the real ones that are coming!"

McGrath Sponsored Summerfest Concert Sept. 3

A Summerfest concert, featuring The O'Reilly's, will be held Wednesday, Sept. 3 at 7 p.m. at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre, off Southern Artery at Pageant Field.

The event, sponsored by State Senate candidate

Steve McGrath, was scheduled for earlier this summer but was rained out.

The O'Reilly's, a popular group that has appeared in previous Summerfest concerts, feature Irish music.

HERE'S A PRESIDENTIAL "poll" George Bush should be concerned about and Bill Clinton pleased.

Sun Editor Bob Bosworth was at the San Francisco Giants-Pittsburgh Pirates game last Friday night at Candlestick Park and reports a message was flashed on the scoreboard asking Giant fans whether President Bush's acceptance speech the night before at the GOP convention "did the trick?"

There were 18,853 fans in attendance and from them came a rousing chorus of boos. Not the most scientific poll but a lot more people responded compared to news media polls.

The Candlestick reaction could be a California barometer. With 54 electoral votes, California is a prized state for either Bush or Clinton. The candidate who carries the Golden State will have 20 percent of the necessary 270 electoral votes to win the Presidency.

MILESTONE: Atty. George Burke, former Norfolk County district attorney, city councillor and one-time Boston Celtics rookie is celebrating his 60th birthday.

Where did those years go, George? I remember when you had a campaign photo you were afraid made you look too young to run for office.

Congratulations and welcome to the club.

COLMAN

Tickets are $10.

A CAMPAIGN RALLY for Steve Colman, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, will be held tomorrow night (Friday) from 8:30 to 12:30 a.m. at the Presidents Golf Course, 357 West Squantum St., North Quincy.

McGRATH

A PRE-PRIMARY party for Steve McGrath, candidate for state senate, is set for Wednesday, Sept. 2 at 7 p.m. at Kelly's In The Square, Cottage Avenue. Tickets are $15.

DID YOU KNOW that Maryanne Dennis, who has a dance studio at 398-A Hancock St., North Quincy, was a member of the famed June Taylor dancers, who appeared on the Jackie Gleason Show in the 1960's.

She also danced with the Taylor troupe on the Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey show that was a summer replacement for the Gleason show.

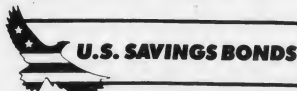

And what was the Great One like?

"He was a brilliant and talented man," Maryanne says. "He did everything in a big way — but he also did everything in his personal life in a big way. He abused himself. He would have been alive today if he had taken better care of himself."

OBSERVATION, via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): "Behind every successful man is an exhausted woman and a surprised mother-in-law!"

Nine of our states got their names from the rivers that flow through them — Minnesota, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Mississippi, Nebraska, Ohio, Oregon and Wisconsin.

Grateful To Those Who Were There To Help

Editor, The Quincy Sun: On the afternoon of July 17, my husband suffered a massive heart attack. I would like to express my sincere thanks to the people involved in his care.

They include: the unidentified man who was walking by and came into the house to assist us; the woman police officer who was a great comfort as she drove me to the hospital and stayed with me until family members arrived; and most importantly, the ambulance crew, fire and police departments who quickly responded and tried in vain to save his life.

Unfortunately, my husband passed away but in the midst of these very sad times, having experienced the caring and thoughtfulness of the people mentioned above provides me with a sense of comfort.

It's Very Important To Vote On Election Day

Editor, The Quincy Sun: America the beautiful has come a long way. The land of the free and home of the brave is at the crossroads in our present generation.

In past generations, when our country began to grow, men and women were the pioneers with real American dreams to have courage and pave the way toward progress. Our nation, prior to having the Republican and Democratic voters during an election year for president, as we the people began to stray and become independent voters, etc.

Our country was in turmoil that began to expand years later when veterans returned home with broken spirits, and many to be hooked on drugs. Riots and crime rates were in a high level bracket. Thunder under solid ground began to rumble during the Watergate scandal, while our overseas neighbors evaluated our nation's strength. To know that with drug abuse we would be unable to unite and stand against injustice. Our young people have to be strong in mind and body to become the pillars of strength in our nation.

To restore order in victory, to protect our country, we must unite to offer ourselves the chance to rebuild in progress.

This year's Presidential election is very important, both to control the rumble under solid ground, and to make many improvements we the people know are needed. It's very important to vote on Election Day to light the spark to unite and restore values with pride in our country.

We must vote with courage so that we might eventually weed out the corrupt individuals that take advantage. It should be our prerogative to bounce out of Congressional office the corrupt who bounce checks while at the same time play chess with taxpayers' money.

We must put a cut in the political employee's paychecks, so that we will have money to balance and assist the many homeless veterans, to offer them food, shelter, and counseling to become adjusted, so that we may then welcome them into our society.

There are many welfare and SSI recipients that have talents to offer as inventors, music composers, writers, etc. that place their trust in individuals to help them. Very often they are taken advantage of as excerpts to be exploited, as the corrupt take credit from the poor folks that cannot afford a reliable agent to assist them in their attempts to become independent.

Praise For Local Efforts On Boston Harbor Cleanup

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Back in the 1988 Presidential campaign, then-Vice President George Bush came to Boston on a campaign stop. He stood with his back to Boston Harbor and called himself the "environmental presidential candidate" and vowed to clean up water pollution in places such as Boston Harbor. He said the water was dirty and that under a Bush Administration things would change.

However, following the election, the Bush commitment like the tidewater quietly receded. The federal government did mandate the cleanup and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) was charged with administering the cleanup. To date, the federal government has appropriated only $100 million in federal funds which is a drop in the bucket when you consider the $6-8 billion price tag.

Spiraling water rates from this MWRA project have risen by 435 percent since 1985. And these current rates are likely to double within the next three years. As Joseph Favolaro, executive director of the MWRA Advisory Board has stated, "By the time this cleanup is completed, we very well could have the dubious distinction of having the highest water rates in the country."

With all this as a backdrop, I have nothing but praise for the recent efforts of Mayor James Sheets and Rep. Steve Tobin ("Sheets, Tobin Testify For Federal Relief In Harbor Cleanup," Quincy Sun, Aug. 20), who travelled down to the U.S. Congress to testify on behalf of the legislation filed by U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds in the Subcommittee on Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation.

When President Bush said he would clean up Boston Harbor, his talk was cheap because the cleanup tab is being picked up by MWRA ratepayers. Property owners and tenants can not endlessly swallow water bills. Enough is enough; it is time for the Bush White House, which used Boston Harbor as campaign fodder in 1988, to come through with the funds to tackle this pollution problem.

Besides congratulating folks like Sheets, Tobin and Studds, I believe some acknowledgment of the efforts being made up on Beacon Hill by Rep. Michael Morrissey should be addressed. He has proposed several good pieces of legislation that would certainly ease the financial burden being placed on MWRA ratepayers.

What good is a clean Boston Harbor if we've all sailed off to the poorhouse in the process? We're drowning and no one offers a lifesaver? At least there are a few good politicians listening.

SHOULD ONE USE ICE OR HEAT ON AN INJURY?

One of the most common questions that I am asked in my practice is whether to use ice or heat in treating an injury. Traditionally patients have been advised to "use ice for the first 24-72 hours following an injury and then to use heat," but there is controversy among doctors, nurses and athletic trainers on this issue. The use of ice or cryotherapy helps by decreasing swelling, (anti-inflammatory effect); by reducing or eliminating pain (analgesic or anesthetic effect); and by decreasing blood flow to the area (vasoconstriction). On the other hand, the use of heat or thermal therapy helps to ease tightened muscles (muscle relaxation effect) and increases blood flow to the area (vasodilation).

Generally speaking, if the primary goal of the treatment is the reduction of swelling or inflammation and the easing of pain, I would recommend ice therapy; but if the main problem is stiff or tight muscles, the use of heat (and more specifically moist heat) might be more appropriate. The following rules of thumb may be helpful.

1. In almost all injuries ice should be applied immediately and used exclusively for at least the first 48 hours.
2. Regardless if one uses ice or heat, it is important to apply it for only 15-20 minutes a session every one to two hours. (Patients have a tendency to abuse this rule, especially when they are using heating pads).
3. There are some situations where the use of contrast therapy or alternating hot and cold treatments proves effective (especially treating chronic back and neck problems or treating joint injuries 48 hours after the injury occurred).
4. Each case must be treated on an individual basis. What works for one person may not help another person so be aware of the feedback that your body gives you and make adjustments in the therapy if necessary.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call

Hurricane Carol Batters Quincy $1.1M Damage

Hurricane Carol, the most severe storm since 1938, battered Quincy for three hours with winds of 93 miles an hour and gusts up to 125 miles an hour causing damage estimated at $1,100,000.

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. declared a state of emergency at 11 a.m. Tuesday morning as all electric power was out in the city and live wires dangled perilously from poles.

No lives were lost in Quincy although watchers from the shore reported that they saw several boats with people in them disappear, including three men and a girl in a dory off Houghs Neck.

Some 100 trees were felled in Quincy. Elm Street and Faxon Road were blocked by fallen trees, another fell on a house at 100 Sherman St., Wollaston, and three more were uprooted at 27 Quarry St., West Quincy.

Rear Commodore Edward Spiers ordered the Squantum Yacht Club evacuated at 12:30 pm when five four-ton floats broke their three-inch thick chains and were in position to batter the clubhouse.

The controversial Kiddieland, the children's amusement park that recently opened over the protest of neighbors on Wollaston Beach, was badly damaged, bent out of shape by the high winds.

Three days later candles were still flickering in one-quarter of Quincy homes and the Quincy Electric Co. said it might be a week before power is restored to some subscribers.

Meanwhile, the fifth hurricane of the season, called Edna, was reported developing as a 30-mile an hour squall in the Leeward and Windward Islands of the Caribbean.

Chicken And Rice Casserole

At our house it's almost always "guess who's coming to dinner?"

And so it was a few days ago when I was preparing a chicken and rice casserole. My husband always tells people that I don't know how to cook for two people and he's right. That day, I made enough for at least six. And that day our daughter Ann Marie called and before you know it she and her husband Dave were invited to dinner!

CHICKEN AND RICE CASSEROLE

8 or 9 chicken thighs (skinned)
1 can pine cone tomatoes (medium sized can)

1 1/4 cups rice (uncooked)

1 cup water

salt, pepper and favorite herbs (I used dill)

Rosemary or any other kind is fine.
Grated Romano or parmesan cheese

In a slightly greased baking dish, place the raw chicken thighs. Season on top. Then sprinkle the uncooked rice over the chicken. Add the tomatoes, water and more seasoning. Cover and bake in a 350-degree oven for an hour. Halfway in between, remove and turn the chicken and rice. Put back in the oven still covered and cook for the remaining 30 minutes. After it is cooked, place in a serving dish, sprinkle with grated cheese and cover until ready to serve. I made it a couple of hours before and then at the last minute, kept it in a warming oven until ready to eat. With it, we had spinach and tossed salad. Our "kids" loved it!

Addition to last week's chicken marinade: Three quarters of a cup of soy sauce should be added to the rest of the ingredients.

UNITED STATES MARINE Drum and Bugle Corps will bring their spectacular "Concert-in-Motion" to Quincy on Saturday, Sept. 5 at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Caddy Detachment Seeking Donations

Marine Corps Battle Colors Coming To Quincy

The William R. Caddy Detachment Marine Corps League is appealing to private citizens and groups for donations to help sponsor a U.S. Marine Corps Battle Color Ceremony at Quincy's Veterans Memorial Stadium Saturday, Sept. 5 at 7 p.m.

Through community support, the U.S. Marine Corps Silent Drill Team, the U.S. Marine Corps Drum and Bugle Corps and the U.S. Marine Corps Battle Colors from Washington, D.C. will perform locally for the first time ever, said Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, a member of the Quincy Veterans Council.

Approximately $14,000 is needed to fund the special event, part of the city's 200th anniversary celebration. The cost includes meals, transportation and lodging. About $4,000 has been raised to date.

The U.S. Marine Corps Battle Ceremony is known throughout the country for its precision drill and exciting musical arrangements. The U.S. Marine Drum and Bugle Corps, the Silent Drill Team, and the Marine Corps Color Guard are featured in a unique display of pageantry.

DeCristofaro said the ceremony is a show everyone can enjoy.

"It is most moving and very impressive to watch, especially today, when we are trying to bring about events that can reinforce family values and patriotic traditions and at the same time make the event accessible to all who wish to attend," he said.

Admission will be $2 the night of the show.

The 80-member U.S. Marine Drum and Bugle Corps, which has performed for countless dignitaries and Heads of State in Washington, D.C., opens the ceremony with a 24-minute drill and concert exhibition known as "concert-in-motion."

Directed by Commanding Officer Truman W. Crawford, the program includes a colorful mixture of popular and patriotic music.

The U.S. Marine Corps Silent Drill team follows with a famed, 10-minute drill exhibition. The calculated drill movements and precise handling of the M-1 rifles are the hallmark of this routine performed without verbal commands. The drill climaxes with the performance of a rifle inspection which includes an intricate series of tosses executed in unison.

After completion of the drill, the Color Guard marches on the field with the National Color, carried by the Color Sergeant of the Marine Corps, and the Marine Corps Battle Color with its 49 multicolored streamers. Dating back to Jan. 18, 1939, the Battle Colors represent the more than 400 awards and campaigns in which the Marines have participated. Following the presentation of the Colors and the National Anthem, the units pass in review to the playing of the Marine's Hymn signifying the conclusion of the ceremony.

In addition, 300 individuals will be sworn into the U.S. Marine Corps.

The Battle Ceremony is presented to thousands of people every year, both in the United States and abroad. Portions of the ceremony have been televised nationally and units within the group frequently perform in White House ceremonies honoring foreign officials.

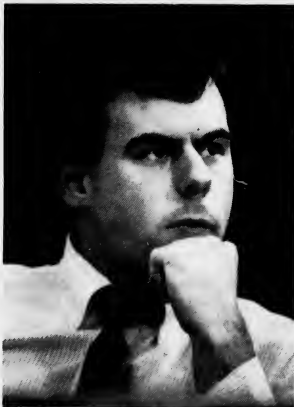

Anyone interested in helping to bring the ceremony to Quincy can send a contribution, made out to Marine Corps League Drill Team Account, to Robert LeFleur, Treasurer, 43 Curtis Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

McGrath Proposes MWRA Billing Plan Based On Water Usage

State Senate candidate Steve McGrath proposes a revised MWRA billing procedure designed, he said, to save South Shore ratepayers millions of dollars.

The McGrath plan would require the MWRA to bill customers based on water usage, known as a flow-based plan, instead of the current system which bills communities based on population estimates.

"A flow-based billing system is long overdue," McGrath said. "Such a plan will more fairly distribute the burden of paying for the $8 billion federally-mandated Boston Harbor cleanup.

Communities on the South Shore are paying too much of the cost."

Under the present unfair estimate-based billing, Quincy overpays its share by nearly two millions dollars each year.

"If the City of Quincy is unfairly paying more than its share, another community is not," McGrath said. "It is the responsibility of our delegation at the State House to see that this stops immediately. As your state senator, I would correct this problem.

"User fees must be based on the water we put back into the system. Basing user fees on population figures simply avoids fair rates at the expense of the people of our district.

"What better an illustration of the need for new leadership in the Senate? The people of Quincy, Braintree and Holbrook agree that the harbor should be cleaned. They know they must pay the bills the federal government has left to us, but they have entrusted state government and the MWRA to bill them equitably. That trust has been betrayed.

"It's shocking that the politicians on Beacon Hill can let a community like Quincy bear an excessive burden of the cost. Some of those politicians have been in office more than 16 years. They are so firmly entrenched, so out of touch with reality that they talk about $2 million like it's Monopoly money. Anyone who thinks Quincy ratepayers don't mind picking up that bill ought to come home and talk to the people.

"This clearly demonstrates the need for new blood at the State House. Voters are asking themselves why politicians who've been on Beacon Hill for more than a decade can't get anything done.

"The people of Quincy and Braintree see and smell the sludge treatment plant everyday. They also see and feel the burden of water bills which cost as much as $1,000 a year...an amount expected to double in the near future. At that pace, water bills soon will exceed tax bills.

"Surely the fair-minded communities of Boston and Cambridge would be willing to abide by a system that requires each city and town to pay only their fair share. No more, no less.

"Together, Cambridge and Boston underpay by more than $21 million.

"The MWRA has the technology to measure the outflow from each community. The MWRA should take that data and bill people the fair way...not based on estimates."

With water and sewer bills soaring out of control, it's easy to feel like we're being squeezed.

Mariano Bill Would Prohibit Sludge Transit By Truck

Rep. Ron Mariano (D-Quincy) has filed a bill aimed at prohibiting the transportation of sludge by trucks through the streets of the state.

of the Fore River basin do not want this material traveling through their neighborhoods," Mariano said.

If approved, the bill would prevent the MWRA from moving sludge and "sludge cakes" over crowded city streets of Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree. "It is important that we make the federal judge (A. David Mazzone) realize that the residents "Truck transportation must be eliminated as an option for the solution of the problems at the sludge plant. The materials contained in these trucks are a potential health problem as well as a major safety concern. The increased traffic places a tremendous burden on our local roads."

The city of Quincy has a signed agreement with the MWRA prohibiting the trucking of sludge but other surrounding towns have agreements that are subject to interpretation.

"I want to make sure that the judge does not use the problems at the pelletizing plant and the loose agreements with some of the towns to force us to accept the trucking of sludge," Mariano said.

Koval Criticizes MWRA, Judge Over Sludge Facility Re-Opening

Holbrook Selectman Joanne Koval, a candidate for the Norfolk District State Senate, sharply criticizes the MWRA and Judge David Mazzone over their lack of concern for the people of Quincy in regards to the MWRA sludge facility.

Judge Mazzone ordered the facility re-opened after a fire recently had forced its closing. Despite the protests of Mayor James Sheets, community leaders, Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and others, Mazzone ordered the facility re-opened.

Community leaders have voiced grave concerns over the safety of residents near the facility who have continually detected a foul odor since its opening. Koval said she agrees with the residents' concerns.

"After discussing the issue with some residents at 1000 Southern Artery, they asked me to come outside to see what they have complaining about," Koval said. "This was two days before the fire. Neither they nor I were surprised when something happened."

Koval, who is a Finance Committee member of the Massachusetts Area Planning Council, also expressed outrage over the failure of the MWRA to have a contingency plan in place to handle the sludge if a plant closing event such as the fire were to take place.

"There should have been contingency plans ready to handle this type of crisis," she said. "And there still aren't. This is another case of MWRA mismanagement and it should have been addressed in court. This hearing was a charade and the victims of this charade are the people of Quincy. Having a safe and healthy environment is not too much to ask."

Koval said she will tour the facility to further investigate possible health hazards to the community.

Studds Steps Up Efforts To Secure Adams Site Funding

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds recently toured the Adams National Site in Quincy to discuss with National Park Service officials efforts to increase funding for the site.

Studds, who has called the site "a key element in Quincy's economic plans," said he was seeking funding to continue work on a general management plan for the site, to develop an interim visitors center and trolley system to transport visitors among the various units of the park, and to plan for the rehabilitation of the Beale Estate.

The Senate appropriations bill for the Interior Department includes over $1 million to carry out these activities. The House bill includes $200,000 requested by Rep. Brian Donnelly to carry out these activities.

Studds said he was working with members of the Massachusetts Congressional delegation, to persuade Appropriations Committee members, who will reconcile the differences between the House and Senate versions, to provide the highest possible funding level for the project.

2 Literacy Students Receive Scholarships To Attend Summer Institute

Quincy residents Kam Ho and Henry Ngo recently received scholarships to attend The Learner Generated Materials Summer Institute at Endicott College in Beverly.

Sponsored by SABES (System for Adult Basic Education Support), the Summer Institute was designed for literacy teachers and learners who wish to focus on development of the writing process.

Ho and Ngo are students in the Literacy Volunteer program at the Thomas Crane Public Library. They meet with their tutors for two hours every week to develop their conversational English skills. Ho and Ngo took a break from their lessons to attend the four day institute, participating in workshops on creative writing, photography projects, and oral history.

Ngo, who recently published a collection of poetry, "Peace and Freedom For Humankind," found it challenging to speak English all day: "I read my poem. I enjoy but I very tired."

Ho agreed, "The program is good but I still have a lot I don't understand. I have concentrate. I very tired. I want to go higher and higher. After 65, I want to go back to school again."

Ho refined her English skills when she spoke to literacy teachers and learners about her experience participating in an oral history project sponsored by LVA-Quincy last spring. In a workshop presented by Ellen Crevison, a conversational English tutor from Abington, and Kari Pratt from the Oral History Center in Cambridge, Kam read a story which described the house in China which she left 25 years ago when she emigrated to the United States. "I read my story," said Ho. "I felt scared but anyway I read, scared or not."

For six weeks last spring, Kam and students from countries all over the world shared their stories. Each stitched a square that illustrated their family history, a childhood memory, or their passage to America. The squares were collected and sewn together, creating a quilt representing many different languages and cultures.

"When working on the quilt, the only language students and volunteers had in common was English. Everyone had to speak English to share their personal experience and stories," explained Crevison, who played a key role in organizing the project. The quilt will travel to area libraries before returning to the Thomas Crane Public Library where it will hang permanently.

LVA-Quincy provides free, confidential tutoring to adults in reading and conversational English. For more information about becoming a student or volunteer, call the Thomas Crane Public Library at 376-1314.

Miller Opposes Non-Seniors In Seniors Housing Law

Responding to concerns expressed by some Quincy senior citizens living in public housing complexes, George Miller, a candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, said he will fight to change the laws that allow the government to place non-seniors in senior housing if elected.

Miller said he recently discussed the problems senior residents are experiencing with non-seniors.

"Some seniors expressed their frustration and anger over noise, loud guests, strangers wandering the halls, and threats made by these non-seniors.

"Other seniors informed me that many of these non-senior residents have alcohol, drug, or psychological problems and that they feel threatened by their behavior.

"If elected, as your state representative, I will fight to change the laws that allow the government to place non-seniors in senior housing," Miller said.

"Most of the seniors in public housing are healthy and self-sufficient, while the non-seniors may need treatment for their alcohol, drug and psychological problems making them unsuitable neighbors for these elderly residents.

"A number of seniors have informed me," Miller continued, "that they have complained about the non-senior resident problem and were told that if they did not like living there they should leave.

"This type of response is appalling and unacceptable and as your state representative, I will also fight against any individual involved in the operation of our public housing that responds to a senior's complaint in such a disrespectful and inappropriate manner," he added.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

"Life belongs to the living and he who lives must be prepared for changes."

... Johann Wolfgang von Goethe

Life is unpredictable.

Change is inevitable and constant. In our busy world today facts, circumstances and figures change from one moment to another...

Changes are happening all around us. The earth and all it contains is in a state of constant growth and change. Perhaps changes are happening to our loved ones or to our friends... they are moving away or they are moving back home... a loved one begins a new job... New acquaintances enter our lives and bring about change... And these changes may not always be a comfortable experience. We may even on occasion think or talk ourselves into feeling fearful about the changes that are occurring. As changes occur, we should remind ourselves to stay poised, peaceful and trusting, for God is with us through every change.

SECOND baseman Robbie Kane of Morrisette looks for umpire's call after forcing E. Hartford runner.

East Hartford Takes Regional Title

Morrisette Comes Close To Repeating

By TOM SULLIVAN

It wasn't quite a repeat of the 1975 season, but oh, how close it was.

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, Zone 6 and state champion, hoped to emulate the performance of the 1975 squad which followed up the zone and state titles with the Northeast Regional crown and played in the Legion World Series in Rapid City, S.D.

The current team nearly pulled it off, but it dropped a 4-3 heartbreaker to more experienced and more talented East Hartford, Ct., in the semifinals played before an estimated 3,000 fans at Adams Field.

East Hartford, the defending Regional champs, finished the tournament undefeated and clinched its second straight visit to the World Series, this time in Fargo, N.D., with a 5-1 decision over Iselin, N.J., in the championship game. It had a 50-8 record this year.

Morrisette's season ended at 30-6 on a disappointing note as it had two runners cut down at the plate in the ninth inning.

In the ninth trailing, 4-3, 16-year-old Dave Reinhart tripled but was cut down at the plate on an infield grounder. Mark Cahill went to second on the play and pinch hitter Jay Schnabel singled only to have Cahill cut down at the plate on a superb throw by center fielder Chris Sawyer.

"Mark was probably our fastest runner," said Coach Dave Perdios. "That whole play just about sets the tone to finish the season. We've played everyone: stride for stride all season long."

"I can't begin to tell you how proud I am of these kids. They played their hearts out all season long and we went farther than most people expected. Our 18-year-olds were the backbone of the club but our 15 and 16-year-olds did a marvelous job for us. It was a tough year to end the season, but what a season it was."

Matt O'Toole was the hard-luck loser for Morrisette. He gave up two runs in the first on a walk, Sawyer's triple and a sacrifice fly. He then settled down, giving up a run in the third on Sawyer's second triple and Rod Johnson's single. It added its final run in the fifth on a single and a throwing error. It was Morrisette's only error.

O'Toole then showed his courage as he came up with stomach cramps in the fifth and had a great deal of difficulty. He was administered first aid between innings but refused to come out and retired the last 10 Hartford batters.

The champions' usually strong defense fell apart and handed Morrisette three unearned runs in the sixth inning. O'Toole led off with a single, Pat Shea reached on an error, Robbie Kane laid down a bunt that was fielded by the pitcher, who threw wildly to first and both O'Toole and Shea scored. Chris MacDonald was hit by a pitch after Tom Balzano flied out. Mark Kelleher grounded to the pitcher, who forced MacDonald at second, but the throw to first on a double play attempt was wild and Kane scored.

Morrisette had a golden opportunity in the fifth when Kelleher led off with a triple but was left stranded.

O'Toole (5-1) was charged with his only loss, but it may have been his grandest hour. He threw 103 pitches, walked three and struck out one.

Morrisette's defense was outstanding. Considered the team's weak point over the first half of the season, it improved in every game and was one of the best in the tournament. MacDonald made a fine leaping catch, an around-the-horn double play was started by third baseman Shea and an excellent play by Serge Belcastro, who made a fine catch of a foul ball behind first base and fired a strike to Shea to double the runner, who had tagged up at second after the catch, was another highlight.

Morrisette made the semifinals by bouncing back from its first loss to defeat Hudson, N.H., 5-3, with 16-year-old Danny Duncan and 15-year-old Tommy Malvesti sharing the spotlight.

Duncan started and was told by Perdios to throw hard and go as far as he could. The youngster responded by pitching 4 1/3 innings of solid ball before tiring.

With a 4-0 lead he gave up a double to Gary Russell and walked three in a row to force in a run. Young Malvesti relieved and gave up and RBI single to Bill Collins and a third run scored on a fielder's choice.

Malvesti blanked Hudson over the last four innings and drove in an insurance run with a single.

Morrisette scored three in the second and one in the third. Kelleher singled, went to second on an error and scored on Belcastro's single in the second. Reinhart singled Belcastro to third and he scored on Duncan's sacrifice fly. Reinhart stole second and scored on Kane's single. It added a run in the third when Kelleher tripled to right and scored on a wild pitch. In the eighth Reinhart and Belcastro singled with two outs, pinch hitter Schnabel walked and Malvesti singled in the insurance run.

Malvesti finished with a 5-0 record, four of his wins coming in relief.

Belcastro had three hits, Kelleher and Reinhart two each and Kane and MacDonald a hit each.

After an opening night win over Newport, R.I., Morrisette dropped a 5-3 decision to Iselin, N.J.

This was one of the team's most disappointing losses of the year. It led, 3-0, going into the sixth inning and southpaw Sean Donovan rolling along, giving up three hits and two walks in five innings.

In the sixth he weakened and lost his control. A leadoff walk, a single, a hit batsman and another walk forced in a run. Tommy Malvesti relieved with no outs and

Regional Tourney Shorts

The Morrisette Legion Baseball Alumni Association, organized two years ago, has done much to raise funds to help keep the baseball program going and the alumni were out in full force to cheer the current team on in the Northeast Regionals last week.

The association, which has an ever-increasing membership of former players, recently held its second annual golf tournament which raised a good sum used to help make up the $8,000 needed to host the Regionals, and has held two alumni baseball games.

Included among the many alumni attending this year's Regionals at Adams Field were several of the 1975 players who won the Regionals and played in the Legion World Series at Rapid City, S.D.

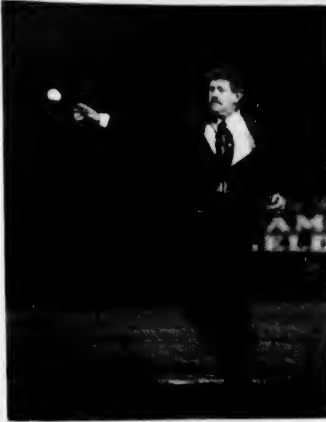

Led by association president Jim Walker, who pitched for Morrisette from 1970-72, many former players turned out for the Regionals decked out in their old Morrisette jackets and caps.

Regional tournament director Hank Bradley of Morrisette predicted more than 10,000 people would turn out for the games and he saw his prediction fulfilled with plenty to spare, thanks in a large part to Morrisette advancing to the semifinals.

"Usually your strong point is to have the host team stay in contention," Bradley said.

Longtime athletic officer Frank Osborne and his wife, Elenior, who have helped keep Morrisette's baseball program alive by raising money for an ad book and who this year raised $5,000, did another banner job in collecting ads for the Regionals program. They raised several thousand dollars to help defray the expenses of the tournament.

George Page, who has been in charge of keeping Quincy's fields in shape for 25 years, had the honor of throwing out the first ball to start the Morrisette-Hudson, N.H., game. George and his crew had Adams Field in superb shape and did a particularly outstanding job of having the field ready for the opening games after several days of heavy rain. All visiting coaches and officials had nothing but praise for the condition of the field.

Morrisette's Chris MacDonald, Matt O'Toole and Pat Clifford had the rare distinction of playing on two state champions this season. The three were also members of Archbishop Williams' state high school champions coached by former Morrisette assistant coach Connie Carlozzi.

The top pitching performance of the tournament was turned in by East Hartford's Stu Perry, who pitches for Brown University. He had a no-hitter going into the ninth inning against Iselin, N.J., only to have the no-hitter broken up by Steve Christianson who had his team's only hit.

Tommy Malvesti, 15-year-old pitcher, who did so well for Morrisette in the tournament, and his brother Mike, a pitcher-infielder, are the sons of Morrisette assistant coach Tom Malvesti and grandsons of former longtime Morrisette coach Nick Malvesti.

Nick and his son Tom are members of the Quincy High Baseball Hall of Fame -- the only father-son combination in the Hall. Nick is a member of three Halls of Fame, being named also to the Hockey and Football Halls.

Bill Callagy of Essex County was the public address announcer for the tournament and Merrill Fleck was the official scorer.

This was the third time Adams Field was the site of the Regionals. In addition to hosting the tourney in 1975, Morrisette's World Series year, it also hosted the tournament in 1977.

the bases loaded. He may have gotten out of it, but a checked swing blooper drove in the second run. After striking out the next two batters, two singles drove in the final three runs.

Malvesti pitched well the rest of the way. Donovan finished with an 8-2 record.

Shea, Kane, MacDonald, Balzano (three RBI) and Reinhart all had two hits.

Morrisette got off on the right foot with a 6-2 decision over R & R Construction of Newport, R.I.

Mike Patch pitched a complete game, giving up five hits, striking out 11 and walking only one, giving up two unearned runs.

Patch ended the season with a 9-0 record and had two saves.

Balzano went 3-for-5 with three RBI, MacDonald was 3-for-4 with a walk, Reinhart had two hits and an RBI and Kelleher had a single.

MacDonald had an outstanding tournament, going 7-for-13 and reaching base 11 times in four games. Reinhart went 7-for-16 and Balzano led the team with six RBI.

The 30 wins were the second most wins in Morrisette's 48-year history. It won the Zone 6 crown with a 20-3 mark.

Quincy, North Football Workouts Start Aug. 31

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy and North Quincy football teams will begin full-scale workouts next Monday morning, Aug. 31, with double sessions.

The Presidents and Red Raiders will be preparing for their third season in the Old Colony League.

Last year North finished at 8-2, its best record in coach Ken McPhee's 10 years. Quincy finished at 6-4 under Jack Raymer.

Actually the teams report today (Thursday) for three days of conditioning without pads.

Last season North wrapped up its successful season with a 7-0 win over Quincy in a bitter defensive battle, following only the third losing season for McPhee.

Two years ago, Quincy finished a close second in the Old Colony League with an 8-1-1 record, its best year since the undefeated team of 1970.

Nine-year coach Raymer will greet the Presidents for the start of full-scale drills Monday at 8:30 a.m. and the squad will practice at Faxon Field until 11:15. The players return for an afternoon session from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Raymer will have the same coaching staff as a year ago with Bob Noble, Bob Keuther, Bill Shaughnessy and freshman coach Jack Green. This year former Quincy star and assistant coach Mark Giordani will return on a volunteer basis.

Quincy is scheduled to open at Marshfield in a non-league game Saturday, Sept. 19 at 1 p.m. Last season the Presidents dropped a 20-19 squeaker to the Rams.

Quincy will open its Old Colony League season Saturday, Sept. 26, at 1:30 against Bridgewater-Raynham, the defending league champion at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In addition to a fine nucleus of veterans, Raymer has several good prospects coming up from last year's freshman team.

Raymer plans to shift Robbie Kane, an outstanding three-sport star, from wide receiver to quarterback.

The Presidents will play the same schedule as last year with league games against Bridgewater-Raynham, Weymouth, Plymouth, Taunton, Barnstable, Falmouth, Silver Lake and North Quincy with Marshfield and Medford the non-league opponents.

North, with McPhee starting his 11th year as coach, will report Monday morning at 8:15 and work out at Kavanaugh Field until 11:30. After a lunch break, the squad will meet from 12:30 to 1 p.m. and return for afternoon sessions from 1:15 to 3:45.

Both schools will follow their practice schedules until the opening of school. McPhee lost a lot of players from last year's outstanding squad but will have several excellent prospects coming up from last year's fine freshman squad.

He has the same assistants as a year ago with Peter Chrisom, Tom Carter, Earl Metzler and Pete Zoia. Former Raider star Dick Myer is back as freshman coach and another former North all-scholastic and assistant coach Tom Fitzgerald will also help out.

Fitzgerald is a former Quincy and Stoughton head coach and Weymouth North assistant coach.

North will open the season against Acton-Boxboro Friday night, Sept. 18 at 7 o'clock at Veterans Memorial Stadium and will play its first Old Colony League game Friday, Sept. 25 at Falmouth.

The opening game will mark the return of A-B coach Bill Maver, former Quincy all-scholastic end and head coach and a former University of Connecticut standout.

A-B made its first appearance against North last year with the Red Raiders squeezing out a 13-12 victory.

North will face its same league schedule and will face a new opponent, Don Bosco, which replaces Duffee on the schedule and will host North Saturday, Oct. 24 at 1:30.

6 City Beaches Reopen

Six Quincy beaches closed last week due to bacteria have been reopened and are once again safe to use, according to Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue.

High fecal coliform counts were found Tuesday, Aug. 18 at Avalon, Mound, Nickerson, Parkhurst, Post Island Rd. and Orchard Beaches. Gallahue said heavy rainfall, which often causes sewage to back up in storm drains and overflow into the ocean, was responsible for the high bacteria count.

"The fecal in of itself is an indicator of sewage discharge," she said. "We recommend that residents refrain from swimming for 48 hours after rainfall to allow for the natural flushing power of the tide to take effect."

Samples taken from the water Thursday, Aug. 20 showed that the water was again safe for public use, Gallahue said. Routine tests are done every Tuesday throughout the summer to insure public safety.

Rings Valued At $6000 Stolen From Jewelry Store

Two teenagers stole $6,000 worth of women's rings last Friday (Aug. 20) from the Phase II Jewelry Store on Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

The owner of Phase II told police a teenage girl entered the store about 4 p.m., walked to a jewelry case, slid it open and removed a tray of women's rings, placing them inside her jacket.

Police said the owner, whose name is being withheld, grabbed the girl but released her when she screamed. The girl then ran out the door, along with a teenage boy who was with her.

The owner chased the thieves north on Hancock St. past the Quincy Center MBTA station, police said. But the pair eluded the owner by splitting up, with one running toward Quincy Savings Bank and the other toward Quincy College.

The store owner said the girl was about 18 years old, white, with stringy blonde hair and wearing a dark top and white pants. Her companion was a white male approximately 19 years old, 5-foot-8, with acne and crew-cut red hair. He wore a white jacket, which police found discarded on Seville Ave., with three pairs of stolen sunglasses in the pocket.

be needed under the new program since crime prevention sessions would be conducted "every few weeks" in the schools and before civic, church, business and other community groups.

Sheets also envisioned crime prevention video tapes which would offer safety tips through reenactments and highlight the city's higher crime areas.

"We have to come up with a program that really fits this city," the mayor said.

In addition, Sheets said the program may examine technological advancements in crime prevention made by state and federal law enforcement agencies.

Furthermore, the mayor said he would like to make crime prevention part of the high school curriculum.

"I think it would be good for all high school graduates to know some fundamental (crime prevention) things so that they can protect themselves and their property."

44,366 Total Down 1,093 From March Voter Registration Down But Officials Confident Of Rebound

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city has lost nearly 1100 voters over the past five months but election officials are confident registration will rebound significantly prior to the Nov. 3 fall election.

The latest figures, compiled after the primary election registration drive which concluded Aug. 18, show 44,366 registered voters in Quincy, down 1,093 from 45,459 in March.

Categorically, the only groups to experience an increase in registration between March and August were Democrats and minor political parties. Republicans and unenrolled lists declined.

Furthermore, the decline in registration occurred equally among male and female voters as well as in all parts of the city.

Democrats are still the dominant party in Quincy. In fact, the number of Democrats increased by 220 to 26,707. There were 26,487 in March.

Unenrolled and Republicans, the next two largest political blocks in Quincy, lost voters. Unenrolled (formerly the Independent Party) decreased 1,289 voters, from 12,353 to 11,064. Republicans lost only 67 voters, from 6,608 to 6,541.

The number of voters classified under "other" gained 40 voters, from 11 to 51.

The number of male and female voters dropped 534 and 559 respectively. Female voters, down to 25,051 from 25,600 still outnumber males which fell to 19,325 from 19,859.

City-wide, all six wards experienced a drop in the amount of registered voters. Ward 1 lost 266 (from 7,638 to 7,372) followed by Ward 3's 233 (from 8066 to 7833) and Ward 2's 170 (7,840 to 7670).

Ward 4 fell 156 from 7,160 to 7,004, followed by Ward 5's 154 (7,490 to 7,336) and Ward 6's 114 (from 7,265 from 7151).

The registration did not affect the voter apportionment by ward. Ward 3 still has the most registered voters, followed by in descending order, Ward 2, Ward 1, Ward 5, Ward 6 and Ward 4.

Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea said the two biggest factors contributing to the recent dip in registration is the city census and the number of Asian residents in Quincy.

Shea said voters who did not respond to the city census were purged from the registration list. "If the people failed to respond to the city census, we dropped them. But if they appear at the ballot box, we'll reinstate them," Shea said.

The assistant city clerk also said many Asian residents, who moved to Quincy during the past five years or so, are slow to register. The census, completed earlier this year, showed 9,335 Asians living in Quincy. Of that figure, Shea estimated 90 percent are not registered.

Compared to the pre-primary registration drive in 1988, this year was lighter but nonetheless healthy. "It was lighter than '88 but it was steady, it was healthy," Shea said. "There were more than 500 registrations that last day."

With that in mind, election officials are confident the voter registration will rebound in a big way before the fall election.

"I think we'll pick up another 2,000 to 2,500 voters which will put us above where we were. There is interest (in the election) and (registration) always peaks in October."

"We'll do 1000 registrations the last day alone," Shea added, referring to Tuesday, Oct. 6, the last day people can register to be eligible to vote Nov. 3.

Quincy, like other Massachusetts municipalities, will conduct a special voter registration drive for the fall election.

On Wednesday, Sept. 30 from 7 to 9 p.m., registration will take place at five locations: Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point; Montclair School, 8 Belmont St., Wollaston; Lincoln-Hancock Community School, Water St., West Quincy; Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston; and the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy.

In addition, special registration will be held in the Council Chamber of City Hall Saturday, Oct. 3 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. and Tuesday, Oct. 6 from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Residents can also register during normal business hours at City Hall, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Post Offices Closed On Labor Day

Area residents are advised that all post offices will be closed and there will be no regular mail delivery Monday, Sept. 7 in observance of Labor Day.

'We Were Scared' Hurricane Andrew A 'Real Horror Show' Says Quincy Witness

By STEVE KAVANAGH
When Quincy businessman Bill Fitzgerald and his son Liam recently visited the University of Miami they learned very quickly why the school's nickname is Hurricanes... They spent a sleepless night riding out Hurricane Andrew.

Liam, a freshman at Miami, was spending his first day in his new dormitory room and his father was helping him move in.

Spending the first night in unfamiliar surroundings can be something of an adventure all by itself. Now throw in a hurricane with winds gusting up to 170 miles per hour and you've got a bonafide horror show.

Fitzgerald, who owns Photo Quick in Quincy Center, said he will never forget the experience or the devastation caused by the storm.

"It was all the horror movies you've ever seen rolled into one," he said.

Fitzgerald said the storm lasted about four hours. He said he will never forget the sound of the winds.

"It was an unbearable noise... like a locomotive running through your head. And there was also the noise of the tree's cracking and windows rattling," he said. "The scary part was that noise in the pitch black."

Winds gusted to 170 m.p.h. and blew at a sustained 150 m.p.h. knocking down power and telephone lines right away.

The university, which is located in Dade County just outside the City of Miami, emerged relatively unscathed.

"We were scared during the storm but afterwards it was a matter of inconveniences. Without power or water it was a bad situation for a couple of days," Fitzgerald said.

However, about 15 miles south in Dade County, towns like Homestead and Kendall took a severe beating. The Fitzgeralds drove to the towns which were hit hard and surveyed the damage that Andrew had wrought.

"Being human we complained (about inconveniences caused by the storm) until we got a glimpse of the devastation others suffered. Those people are going to need help for a long, long time," Fitzgerald said.

"People were wandering around. They couldn't find their homes or even discern what block they were on. The devastation was almost beyond belief."

He also urged Quincy residents to send assistance.

"Whatever anyone can do to help these unfortunate victims, please do it soon."

AN ENTIRE GROUP of stores was destroyed by Hurricane Andrew at this strip mall in Homestead, Fla.

Registrar Offers School Bus Safety Tips

"Happy school days for our children can become a reality if parents spend time with their children to educate them on the importance of school bus safety," says Registrar of Motor Vehicles Jerold A. Gnazzo.

The registrar offers the following school bus safety tips for all parents:

Parents should instruct their children to behave properly when riding on the school bus. After boarding the bus, children should find an empty seat and remain seated until the bus comes to a complete stop in front of the school in the morning and at the bus stop in the afternoon.

Children should be advised by their parents not to approach the bus until it comes to a complete stop and the door opens. Should children need to cross the street after leaving the bus, they should always cross in front of the bus.

Children should maintain eye contact with the bus driver until the bus driver waves the children across the street, signaling that the street is clear of oncoming traffic. Children, who do not need to cross the street, should remain on the sidewalk and well back from the bus until it has driven away.

Also, children should be reminded never to endanger themselves by picking up any items dropped on the ground close to the bus. And parents need to know that the color of a child's raincoat should contrast with the yellow of a school bus. A child standing near a school bus with a yellow raincoat will blend in with the bus and may not be seen by motorists.

We should all be concerned about the future because we will have to spend the rest of our lives there.

WHAT IS PERIPHERAL ARTERIAL DISEASE?

Most people know about "atherosclerosis," which occurs when fatty deposits block oxygen-carrying arteries. Less well-known is "peripheral arterial disease" (PAD), which occurs when atherosclerosis cuts circulation and oxygen supply to peripheral areas of the body such as legs and feet. A common symptom of PAD is muscles that easily tire, ache and cramp. The discomfort usually occurs during exercise, as that's when muscles demand increased oxygen. Other signs to look for include changes in skin color or temperature, loss of hair on the feet, thickening or discoloration of toenails, and numbness or tingling in legs or feet. Controlling PAD usually involves an exercise plan, low-fat diet, no smoking, and possible medication.

P.S. Risk factors for PAD include being 50 or over, smoking, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, and diabetes.

You can reap many health benefits by quitting smoking today and switching to a diet rich in leafy green vegetables and low in saturated fats. If you would like to learn what you can do to stay healthy and ward off the dangers of heart attacks, feel free to call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

A Gain But A Loss

Quincy's bottom line on registered voters shows a loss despite a healthy gain of 1727 new votes.

A total number of registered voters eligible to cast ballots in the Sept. 15 primaries is 44,366.

This is a drop of 1,093 from the number of registered voters in the city in March of this year.

How could that be with 1727 new voters registering since March — most of them in the past few weeks during special registration hours? Including 500 on the registration deadline Aug. 18 when City Hall was open until 10 p.m.

"What makes the difference," explains City Clerk John Gillis, "is that we dropped the names of voters who have moved out of the city or have died and they added up to more than the new voters who registered for the primaries."

Gillis says that many of those who have moved out of the city have not been replaced as voters by those who have moved into their residences.

Many of those moving in, he says, are Asian who have not gotten around to registering as voters.

Gillis expects to see a wave of new voters for the Nov. 3 Presidential election.

"We should pick up 3,000 to 4,000 new voters for that election," he says.

That would bring the total enrollment up into the 47,000-48,000-plus neighborhood — still some 3,000-plus short of the total 51,537 voters who were eligible for the 1988 Presidential election.

Deadline to register for the Presidential election is Oct. 6.

Of the 44,386 current voters, Democrats still hold a huge numerical advantage.

There are 26,707 Democrats to only 6,541 Republicans and 11,064 unenrolled — formerly known as independents. There are 51 members of the new Independent party enrolled and two Libertarians.

It means Democrats outnumber Republicans by 20,166 and unenrolled by 15,643. Democrats outnumber Republicans and unenrolled combined by 9,102.

Times certainly have changed. Up until the 1950s, Quincy was a GOP stronghold with Republicans holding just about every elective office. Democrats were so few they could hold a caucus in a telephone booth.

The coming of John F. Kennedy and his voter registration drives turned the city, county and state around for the Democrats.

BELLOTTI

PAUL HAROLD has the backing of fellow Quincyite and former attorney general, Frank Bellotti, in his quest for the 10th District Congressional seat. Bellotti is hosting a reception for Harold Wednesday, Sept. 9 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd. Donations range from $100 to $500.

The invitations contain this Bellotti endorsement: "Now more than ever, the Democratic Party in Massachusetts and the nation as a whole is in need of strong independent leadership."

"I believe Paul Harold possesses the ability to bring about change and to face the challenges which lie ahead for the new 10th Congressional District."

SPEAKING OF HAROLD, he has taken to the air in his campaign for Congress. Harold flew to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket this week in a plane piloted by Tom Corcoran of Braintree. Even though Braintree was moved out of the new 10th Congressional district,

HAROLD

Harold has a number of Braintree residents working for him.

And wherever he goes, he goes running into the Quincy connection. On Martha's Vineyard he has former Quincy resident Gino Montesi, a businessman there, helping him. And at a coffee hour on Nantucket among those attending, was Ernie Grossman of the Quincy Grossman's, who is a former Nantucket selectman — and Republican.

A FUNDRAISER FOR Rep. Michael Morrissey, candidate for the state senate seat, is set for Friday, Sept. 11, 8 to midnight at Morrisette Legion Post, Miller St., West Quincy. Tickets are $5 and may be obtained at the door or by calling the Morrissey headquarters at 376-0900.

THE NORTH QUINCY business community is losing two familiar figures — and nice people. Carmela and Dick Corbin, who have owned Corbin's Fashions on Billings Rd., are closing the shop after 13 years and stepping into retirement.

Carmela has been a sparkplug in the North Quincy Business and Professional Association where she served as president and was active in the annual Sidewalk Sale and other promotions.

She and Dick plan to take things easy and do a little traveling.

"One thing we're not going to do is sit and look at the clock," Carmela says.

We wish them happy retirement. They will be missed.

Critical Of Ad

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I was disappointed and outraged by an ad recently published in your paper and elsewhere on behalf of incumbent Rep. Ronald Mariano.

I was disappointed that the ad praised Mr. Mariano because he "voted against taxes." He voted against a proposal to add a 25¢ per pack tax on cigarettes, with the revenue earmarked for anti-smoking education among children and adolescents.

I was outraged that Mr. Mariano, through this ad, brags of playing a role in efforts spearheaded by the Weld Administration to "eliminate thousands from the state payroll." Over 1,000 of those "eliminated" from state service are registered nurses and other health care professionals, many of whom had spent decades of their lives caring for those most in need of the Commonwealth. Thousands of others similarly treated have been hard workers, providing vital services to the taxpayers. The no-show political hacks and appointees are intact, and the system of nepotism remains in good health.

Rather functioning as the transmission belt of Bush-Weld CLT anti-working class policies, I trust that Mr. Mariano, should he win reelection, will pay closer attention to the impact on people's lives of decisions he makes on Beacon Hill.

Signal Snafu Spoils Quincy Test Blackout

A test air raid blackout in Quincy turned into chaos when a worker at the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. misinterpreted a signal from the Fire Department and turned street lights on in the middle of it.

Residents in turn, thinking the air raid drill was over, turned on the lights in their homes and some air raid wardens were reported to have packed their gear and left their posts.

E.J. MacEwan, the Civil Defense coordinator for the region, said he will ask state authorities for permission to hold the test again until Quincy got it right.

Meanwhile, the Quincy Defense Council received word that the new blackout mobilization signal would be a five-second whistle blast, a two-second pause, a five-second blast repeated for four minutes.

SCRAP IRON SOUGHT

The Quincy Salvage Committee moved to reclaim for the war effort some 150 tons of scrap iron from six rusting hulks that had been eyesores in the Town River for many years.

Chairman D. Foster Taylor inspected the many old barges and boats abandoned in the river and selected for salvage three dredging scows, two towboats and one coastal shipping barge.

SCHOOL CLOSING

The School Committee, after hearing petitions by two Quincy Point residents, voted unanimously to reaffirm its decision to close the 84-year-old Washington School.

City Councillor Louis A. George questioned the legality of the closing and asked the city solicitor for an opinion.

"It is my personal opinion," said George, who was also a lawyer, "that the School Committee has no legal right to close or abandon a public school once it is established."

Studds Requests $1 Million For Adams Historical Site

Congressman Gerry Studds has requested more than $1 million in federal funding for the Adams National Historic Site in Quincy.

The House and Senate have approved different versions of a budget for the National Park Service.

The House bill provides $200,000 for a general management plan and the Senate bill includes an additional $945,000, Studds said.

A meeting will be held soon to reconcile the differences between the bills. A decision will probably not be made until late September or early October, Studds said.

In a letter to Rep. Sidney Yates, chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee that oversees the Park Service budget, Studds asked him to accept the Senate's higher funding level.

"I would note that while the national historic resources of Boston have received ample funding over the years, Quincy's equally valuable landmarks have been given short shrift. Connected to Boston by public transportation, the City of Presidents offers a natural - and accessible - historical enhancement to Boston's better-known sites that annually attract thousands of tourists to the area. Additional funding will allow the Adams National Historic Site to realize its full potential as an important American landmark," Studds wrote.

Studds is requesting an additional $100,000 for general management, $220,000 for an interim visitor center, $75,000 for a trolley system, and $550,000 for the planning of improvements to the Beale estate, located adjacent to the Adams family's "Old House."

Studds praised Quincy Mayor James Sheets for focusing attention on the importance of improving the Adams Site to attract tourists-especially those who enjoy Boston's historic attractions.

"The Adams family's 'Old House' and adjoining grounds are a stunning American historical landmark. With the Adams birthplaces and the First Parish Church, the Site has yet to realize its full potential as a tourist attraction," Studds said.

"An improved visitor center and transportation system will draw greater numbers of tourists to Quincy, who will spend money in area restaurants, shop in local stores, thus creating jobs and generally enhancing the local economy," Studds said.

Harold Endorsed By Four Law Enforcement Agencies

Four area law enforcement agencies have endorsed Democratic State Senator Paul Harold in his campaign for Congress in the 10th District.

Boston Police Patrolman's Association, the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, the Massachusetts Correction Officers Federated Union, and the International Brotherhood of Correction Officers announced their endorsement at a recent press conference on the steps of the State House.

"The endorsements of these law enforcement officials points out the fact that I have made fighting crime a priority during my tenure in the state legislature," Harold said.

If elected, Harold said he would "fight to get the federal government to help out local enforcement agencies by providing funding for training, equipment and new technology. The problems of crime and violence are the number one concerns facing people of the district."

Joining Harold at the press conference were Donald Murray, president of the Boston Police Patrolman's Association; Nick Bradley, vice president of the BPPA; Jim Barry, legislative agent, BPPA; Frank McGee, BPPA; Ray McGrath representing the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, and the International Brotherhood of Correction Officers; Dan O'Neil, president of the Massachusetts Corrections Officers Federated Union; Jack Flanagan, representative for the Massachusetts Corrections Officers Federated Union; and Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall.

The International Brotherhood of Police Officers represents police officers in Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, Marshfield, Hanover, Duxbury, Kingston, Weymouth, Bourne, Sandwich, Falmouth, Mashpee, Barnstable, Yarmouth, Dennis, Harwich, Brewster and Eastham.

The International Brotherhood of Correction Officers represents officers in Norfolk, Plymouth and Barnstable counties.

Mariano Voices Opposition To Car Insurance Increase

Rep. Ron Mariano (Quincy-Weymouth) strongly opposes the request by the auto insurance industry to increase automobile insurance rates by 11%.

Mariano said consumers are being soaked by a system that is out of control. He called upon the commissioner of insurance to reject the drastic measure.

"By proposing to tap consumers with another double digit rate increase, the insurance industry fails to realize that more people will be forced to take their cars off the road because of the outrageous insurance rates. When the elderly, students and average citizens are paying twice the monthly rate for insurance than a car payment, we are forced to ask serious questions about our current system," Mariano said.

Mariano said he supports an auto insurance reform package that aims to make a basic insurance policy less expensive by bringing Massachusetts in line with other states and by halting the costly abuses of the insurance system. He advocated stronger anti-fraud controls since much of our premiums go toward covering the cost of unscrupulous people who try to cheat the system.

"The commissioner of insurance should reject this proposal and ask the insurance industry to tighten its belt like consumers must do during these difficult economic times," Mariano said.

Sheets Suggests Policy Task Force On Fast Food Chains

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets says he is interested in establishing a Policy Task Force to consider whether or not the City of Quincy should have a policy governing the location and/or establishment of additional fast food chains in the city.

Sheets made his interests known in a letter to the Quincy License Board which stated that the Task Force would only take into consideration businesses such as hamburger restaurants, donut shops and 24-hour convenience stores.

"Please be advised that I am not requesting consideration of eat-in restaurants, so-called 'Mom & Pop' stores or small coffee shops," the letter stated.

Sheets added he hoped the Task Force would include City Council President Charles Phelan, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue and Police Chief Francis Mullen. The mayor also said he wanted to include a representative from the local businesses to be impacted by any policy decision, as well as a representative from the Quincy Business Council.

"I would ask that the Task Force contact representatives of the business community to participate," the letter stated. "I would ask that you call the first meeting and temporarily chair it until a permanent chairman can be elected."

Sheets stressed after the meeting that the Task Force will not necessarily take any action in preventing future fast food chains from being established in the city.

"My charge to them was not to do anything except look at the situation and come up with some recommendations," said Sheets. "They may come up with some recommendations for change, and they may decide that things are fine as they are. It will be up to them."

"Another thing I want to emphasize is that when I say I want business people involved, I mean the people involved with the fast food chains. The people affected by the Task Force will have representation."

Sheets said the Task Force can assume its duties after the chairman is elected, adding that Gillis would decide on when a meeting for that purpose would be held.

At press time Gillis said he had not had the opportunity to contact anyone on the matter and therefore had not yet decided on a time for the meeting.

Mullen Pleased With Success Of Alcohol Awareness Classes

Police Chief Francis Mullen said Tuesday he is pleased with the success of four recent alcohol awareness classes held in the City of Quincy.

Twenty-six businesses throughout the city sent representatives to the classes, which were certified by Mike Marcantonio of Dram Shoppe Consultants, a local alcohol awareness group. The program was held in cooperation with Quincy's liquor inspector, Detective Sgt. Richard Laracy.

Establishments sending people to the classes included the Elks, Tully's, The Tent, Shooter's Cafe, Sportlight, Edmund Fitzgerald, Garden Cafe, Quincy Yacht Club, Nickerson Post, Quincy Adams Restaurant, Nostalgia, Cathay Pacific, Pete's Grill, Hofbrau, Hatrack, Alumni, Chantey

Pub, Callahan's Tap, Nally's, Beau's, Dee Dee's Lounge, Dimitri's, Sons of Italy, Joe's Pub, Varsity Club, and Amelia's.

"This is very good for those places," said Mullen. "This is a proactive move for the License Board and we're in very good shape. We're ahead of our times."

"Hats off to the people in the restaurant business who made this a success, and also to our liquor inspector who did a very good job."

Currently there is a Senate bill before the state legislature that would make it mandatory for servers of alcohol to be certified (certification is good for three years). Most servers of alcohol and package store employees in the City of Quincy are already certified.

License Board

The Quincy License Board took the following action at its meeting Tuesday:

•Granted a request for the transfer of the Common Victualer-Wine and Malt license presently held by First Carr, Inc. d/b/a Pilgrim Restaurant, 1472 Hancock St., (Richard Carriger) to Second Carr, d/b/a Pilgrim Restaurant, 1472 Hancock St.

to store 250 gallons of gasoline in tanks of vehicles stored in a garage at 1272 Sea St.

•Granted a request from St. Ann's School, 1 St. Ann's Rd. for a one-day liquor license for a dance to be held Saturday, Sept. 26 from 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Miller Would Work For Election Reform

George Miller, Democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, says he would work for election reform if elected, particularly term limits and campaign finance law reform.

Regarding term limits, Miller said he would limit himself to three two-year terms if elected state representative. He also said the issue should be placed on the ballot so the people will have the opportunity to vote on it.

"Elective office should not be considered a lifelong career for only a few individuals, but rather an opportunity for many in the community to serve and contribute."

"Without term limits," Miller said, "the career politicians are able to barricade themselves in office behind lobbyists, special interest groups and huge campaign chests."

Miller's opponent, State Rep. Ron Mariano, said he disagrees "philosophically" with term limits but added he supports the drive to put the measure on the ballot. "I voted to put (term limits) on the ballot at the Constitutional Convention but I don't think term limits is an appropriate solution to the people's perception of problems in state government."

"Philosophically, I disagree with it because with term limits, a lot of public officials doing their jobs would be forced to leave their jobs. However, I don't disagree with putting it on the ballot to let people vote on it."

At the Constitutional Convention May 13th Mariano voted against delaying the term limit ballot question. Delay proponents prevailed, and the question will be before the next convention later this month. "I'll vote again to put it on the ballot," Mariano said.

Miller said he supports House Bill #5676 which proposes campaign finance and election reform. "This bill attempts to loosen the career politician's grip on public office by limiting the amount of money that a candidate can accept from political action committees (PACs) and lobbyists."

"The lobbyists' and PACs' goals are to influence our elected officials and convince them to support their special interest positions. These PACs and lobbyists influence the politicians by giving them campaign contributions," Miller claimed.

He added he does not accept contributions from lobbyists or PACs.

"House Bill #5676 is a beginning, but it does not go far enough," Miller said.

"As state representative I will file legislation that prohibits candidates for public office from accepting any contributions from lobbyists or PACs."

"Prohibiting these types of contributions will help restore the public's trust in our elected officials," Miller said.

Like his opponent, Mariano said he too supports State House Bill #5676. "It would be a more effective manner to deal with some of things going on in state government. It is fair and opens up the process to allow more qualified people to participate," Mariano said.

On the issue of PAC and lobbyist donations, Mariano said he supports campaign finance reform. "I support the bill in spirit and if that's the playing field everyone will be operating from, that's fine with me."

Mariano said he presently accepts PAC money from unions because they are a "traditional source of Democratic strength."

"I'm not going to shut out anyone from the process but it doesn't mean I'm obligated to any specific voting pattern. It doesn't obligate me to any group," Mariano said.

GEORGE MILLER IS NOT A POLITICAL INSIDER!

George Miller Has Worked Hard For His Family And Community. Not The Lobbyists, Special Interest Groups And PACS That Try To Control Beacon Hill.

George Miller was one of seven children. His mother was from Quincy and his father was from Weymouth. At just 11 years old, George worked as a shoeshine boy, collected scrap metal and delivered newspapers to help support his family.

While attending junior high and high school, George worked as a janitor and warehouse worker to help his family survive.

Despite his parents deaths when George was just a teenager, George and his brothers and sisters decided to stay together and raise each other on their own. George continued working, graduated from high school and worked his way through college and law school. During that difficult time George also volunteered at Quincy Hospital, the YMCA and as an auxiliary police officer.

Today George Miller has his own family to raise and is a practicing attorney. George represents hard working people and families, not big business and special interest groups.

Now George Miller wants to work for the people and families of Weymouth and Quincy as their State Representative.

McGrath Would End Legislators Per Diem Travel Allowance

State Senate candidate Stephen McGrath has called for an end to the legislative per diem travel allowance perk for legislators.

"This is a payment to legislators for merely showing up at work," McGrath said. "Currently, each legislator is paid a salary of $30,000. The per diem travel park is an extra payment for every day a legislator travels to the State House," said McGrath.

People do not get paid just to travel from home to work on a daily basis, and neither should the Legislature, he said.

The per diem payment is based on the distance traveled to the State House from a low of $5 per day for local legislators to a high of $50 per day for legislators from western Massachusetts.

The per diem is a holdover from the days when legislators were also farmers or tradesmen who traveled to the State House for infrequent sessions with very low pay, McGrath noted.

They were allowed compensation for a meal and travel for every day they traveled to the State House with the payment based on the distance of the building to their district, he said.

"Things are different today, with a higher salary and year round sessions. The money could be more appropriately used in other areas of the State budget. This is an example of business as usual in the Legislature and must end," said McGrath.

Sept. 10 Candidates Night Cancelled

The pre-primary Candidates Night previously scheduled for Sept. 10 co-sponsored by the Beechwood Community Life Center, the Wollaston Park Association and the Quincy Citizens Association has been cancelled.

However, a Before-the-November-election Candidates Night will be hosted Oct. 28 at 8 p.m. by the Quincy Citizens Association at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hunt St., North Quincy. All candidates in the Nov. 10 election will be invited to speak. Quincy voters are invited to attend.

The next monthly meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association will held Sept. 23 at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center. Guest speaker will be Dan Karp of Acupuncture Associates of the South Shore.

Koval Says Constituent Service Is First Priority

Holbrook selectman and Democratic State Senate candidate Joanne Koval says she would make constituent service her top priority if elected.

"The only way to run our State House effectively and make our government work for us is to create an environment where everyone can participate in the process of improving their communities," Koval said at a recent campaign appearance.

Koval proposes a plan where volunteer constituent representatives would serve as liaisons between the community and the State House.

"This is the most effective way to determine community needs. Legislators must go to their communities to talk to the people about their concerns and ideas," Koval said.

A seven-year member of the Holbrook Finance Committee, including four as chairman, Koval has been involved in numerous community organizations. She said she strives toward a system of government that works for all the people.

"We need to elect leaders who will work for us full-time," Koval said, "I will be one of those leaders. For too long the State House has been out of touch with ordinary folks.

"It is time for a change. We need to elect leaders who are concerned with our problems, and will work for us.

Sheets, Former Mayors To Host QCAP Breakfast

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. has gathered the support of Mayor James Sheets and five former mayors of Quincy for a breakfast for the business community Sept. 9 at Amelia's in Marina Bay.

The event will give the business community the chance to hear about the accomplishments of QCAP, the city's anti-poverty agency.

The breakfast will mark the first time that five former mayors and the current mayor will gather in support of one cause. The group includes Frank McCauley, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Walter Hannon and Mrs. Sheila McIntyre, who will represent her husband, the late Mayor James McIntyre.

It was Mayor McIntyre who signed the original documents creating Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. in 1965. Since then, the non-profit agency has been helping poor people to become more independent and helping those in crisis to get back on their feet. Current services provided by QCAP include emergency food to 400 families every month, fuel assistance to over 3,200 households each winter, a Head Start pre-school program for almost 200 poor children, weatherization work on 150 households last year, child care information and referral for families of all income levels, placement of 49 homeless families in permanent housing and another 70 families saved from becoming homeless.

At the breakfast, these services and the many others that QCAP provides will be highlighted and illustrated with a video produced by Continental Cablevision. The event is an invitation only affair with a list of over 100 community and business leaders.

Executive Director Rosemary Wahlberg said:

"For 25 years, we have been busy with our mission and haven't had time to let the business community know about our accomplishments. Each Mayor of the City came to know us well during his term of office, so they've all agreed to come to the breakfast and let others know what we do. Also joining us on that day to lend their support, will be our other elected officials such as Congressman Gerry Studds, Senator Paul Harold, Reps. Michael Morrissey, Ron Mariano, Steve Tobin and Suzanne Bump."

Morrissey Calls On MWRA To Clean Shipyard Site

Rep. Michael Morrissey has called upon the MWRA to clean up the debris and construction trailer at the Quincy Shipyard.

In a letter to Executive Director Douglas MacDonald, Morrissey stated, "It's time for the agency to live up to the agreement it made with the City of Quincy and Town of Braintree. The MWRA must do a better job of policing and maintaining its property and monitoring the truck traffic and routes."

Morrissey has continued to criticize the MWRA for its failure to maintain the property and the 150,000 square foot office building which formally housed the executive offices of General Dynamics. Morrissey also said "we must fight the Authority every step of the way."

"If the MWRA had located its headquarters at the shipyard, they would be in a better position to monitor the shipyard and the sludge operations," he said. "The MWRA directors would be the first to know if there are any problems."

Morrissey also asked that any final agreement between the MWRA and the City of Quincy and the Town of Braintree include a plan to relocate the office building to the shipyard. If the MWRA is not going to use the yard then plans should move ahead to work with the ship builders and return the unused portion back to the tax roles for business or industrial use.

"We must develop business use and increase the taxes being paid to Quincy and Braintree. The MWRA can help stimulate job development by putting the unused portion back on the tax roles," Morrissey said.

- ✓ Require the MWRA to get ANY rate increase approved first by the DPU.

I am asking for your help and support in my candidacy for State Representative of the 1st Norfolk District.

We are a society crying out for leaders of integrity, courage and action. That is the type of leadership I will provide.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

On Labor Day let us pay tribute to the workers of America: the men and women whose love and labor have made our country great.

Let us remember those who brought it from a wilderness to a land of plenty with opportunity for all. Let us take time to reflect upon the dignity and the privilege of productive labor. Let us honor those craftsmen who have taken the grandchildren of scientist, engineer and inventor and turned them into products of mass production. This melting pot of talent has resulted in a better life for all Americans.

Yes, strong backs, hands and hearts mixed the gold in our west, laid the railroad tracks across our country and put America on wheels in Detroit.

On this Labor Day let us remember that even with the automation in industry today, the strength of America still lies in the strength of its work force ...

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Wraps Up Best Season Since 1975

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team recently completed its most successful season since 1975 and things look bright for next year with 13 of the 18 players returning.

Morrisette finished with a 30-6 record, won the Zone 6 and state championships and reached the semifinals of the Northeast Regionals.

Coach Dave Perdios loses five outstanding players in Chris MacDonald, Tom Balzano, Mark Kelleher, Pat Clifford and Mike Malvesti.

All five will be going to college this fall. MacDonald and Clifford to Merrimack, Kelleher to Westfield State, Malvesti to Framingham State and Balzano returning to Massasoit Community College.

The five had the unique distinction of qualifying for the state tournament three years in a row, tying for the Zone 6 title twice and winning it outright this year.

The "big three" as they were known throughout the post-season games,

MacDonald, Balzano and Kelleher put up some tremendous offensive numbers, but it was the contribution by all 18 players from the five 18-year-olds to 15-year-old Tommy Malvesti that made the team stand out.

"This team was the most dedicated and unselfish that I have ever been associated with," said longtime scorer-statistician Richard "Berger" Ryan.

Nine 17-year-olds with one more year of eligibility will spearhead the 1993 team.

They are third baseman Pat Shea, second baseman Robbie Kane, first baseman Serge Belcastro, all starters this season; pitchers Mike Patch (9-0), Sean Donovan (8-2) and Matt O'Toole (5-1); outfielder Noel DiBona, infielder Adam Calvert and pinch hitter Jay Schnabel.

Three 16-year-olds with two more years of eligibility are center fielder Dave Reinhardt, Danny Duncan and Mark Cahill. Duncan did some fine pitching and alternated with Cahill in right field.

Tommy Malvesti is a 15-year-old with three more years of eligibility. The youngster did some outstanding pitching and had a 5-0 record, four wins coming in relief.

"Tommy showed a lot of poise and I didn't hesitate to put him in tight situations," said Perdios. "He has a terrific future and will be a key performer next year."

Perdios did an excellent job of coaching in his sixth year and had the team putting out 100 percent just as he did as a Morrisette star back in the 1970s. He played on the 1975 Legion World Series team and hit the first home run of the series.

Pitching coach Tom Malvesti took a staff with little experience and molded it into one of the best staffs in the state. He instilled in his young pitchers the confidence that they could pitch at the Legion level despite their youthfulness.

Both coaches will be back next season and it is expected that manager Ray Cattaneo, former longtime coach, will also return.

Men's Softball League

Close Action In Division Playoffs

In the Quincy Men's Softball League A Division playoffs (best three-of-five) Deco Double G has taken a 2-1 edge over Sagamore Inn and Luke's Lounge and Low Overhead Carpet broke even in their first two games.

In the B Division, Fowler House came out on top in one of the closest divisional races in recent years. One game separated the top four teams which should set the stage for good playoff action.

Fowler House and Hyde Park Pub tied for first place with 21-10 records but Fowler House took the title by sweeping three games from Hyde Park.

Liberty Lounge and Washington Tap finished tied at 20-11. Washington Tap is the defending B champion.

Fowler House was led by the solid play of Scott Davidson, Rob Burns, Board Grants N.Q. Repair Shop License

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from L.J.'s Auto Center, 165 Hancock St. for a gasoline repair shop license and Motor II license for a 30-day trial period.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman told L.J.'s owner Theresa Jurczuk that he would vote in favor of the license if she kept the property clean.

"I visited there recently, and I wasn't too pleased with the condition of the site," said Gorman. "I think the general area needs to be spruced up and given a good general cleaning up. If it looks like a junkyard, no one will want to go in there."

Gorman added that it is particularly important to keep this property clean because it is located in North Quincy, "the gateway to the city."

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, who attended the board meeting, spoke in favor of the request, adding that none of the neighbors he had spoken to on the matter had any serious concerns.

Outstanding real estate taxes owed by the company was another of the board's concerns. City Tax Collector Dana Childs told the board that L.J.'s owed $14,717.03 in outstanding taxes, adding that even though Jurczuk only recently purchased the property at auction, the responsibility of paying the taxes still belonged to Jurczuk.

Jurczuk said her initial impression was that only $10,000 was owed, and asked Childs and the board if a payment plan could be set up.

Childs and the board agreed, telling Jurczuk she could pay $10,000 up front and subsequently make smaller payments to repay the rest of the debt.

City Clerk John Gillis said he was pleased all were in agreement with the decision.

"I don't think it would be fair to ask her (Jurczuk) to come up with the entire amount now," said Gillis. "Let's show a little compassion."

Quincy Schools Gain Estimated 130 Pupils

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon estimates that enrollment will be up by about 130 students this year when classes begin this week.

"I thought we would be down (in enrollment) but it's about the same as last year," Creedon said.

This will be Creedon first "first day" of school as superintendent. He took over for Dr. Robert Ricci last January.

Creedon held a general meeting for all teachers in the school system Tuesday which featured Ron Adams of Broad Meadows Middle School as the keynote speaker. Adams is the 1992 Massachusetts Teacher of the Year.

Mayor James Sheets and Creedon also addressed the teachers.

"I want to share my hopes... and visions for the future (with the teachers)," Creedon said prior to the meeting. "It's my first opportunity as superintendent to speak to all teachers together."

Creedon expects the biggest increase in students to be at the high school level where he estimates there will be 2,490 students as opposed to last year's official figure of 2,430.

At the elementary level (early childhood to grade 5) there were 4,145 students enrolled last year.

Creedon projects 4,183 for 1992-93.

He also expects the number of middle school students to rise from 1,668 last year to 1,700.

The city must file its official totals with the State Department of Education by Oct. 1.

Creedon also added that new enrollment of non-English speaking students is significantly down compared to the past three years.

"A lot of work was accomplished this summer... although people may not notice," Creedon said. "New oil drums were installed at some schools and window and roof maintenance was done."

from a resident on Bennington Street also expressed opposition to the license.

Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea said he wanted to find out if restrictions could be placed on the all-alcoholic license so that Cafe Bianco could serve "cordials" only and not beer, wine or any other alcoholic beverages.

The board also suggested that a meeting be set up between the QCBPA and the concerned business owners to see if an agreement could be worked out in the next two weeks.

Eight Contested Races On Ballot

40-45% Turnout Forecast Here For State Primary

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With eight contested races, including a heavily contested battle for Congress in the new 10th Congressional District, the State Primary Tuesday, Sept. 15th is shaping up to be one of the most interesting and anticipated primaries in several decades.

All total, 34 candidates will be vying for their party's nomination in eight contested races, three of which have open seats.

In Quincy, City Clerk John Gillis predicts 40 to 45 percent of the city's 44,366 registered voters will go the polls next Tuesday. He said the main attractions will be the Democratic primary for Congress where incumbent Gerry Studds is facing a stiff challenge from seven-term State Senator Paul D. Harold. Studds, seeking his 11th two-year term, is also opposed by William G. Zissulis of Barnstable.

With 60 percent of the city's voters registered as Democrats, Gillis also said the Democratic primaries for State Senate and State Representative in the First and Third Norfolk Districts should also drive turnout up.

"I think turnout will be between 40 and 45 percent. Studds-Harold will bring them out, that's the main race. The Senate and State Representative races are also big races. That's big for a primary," Gillis said.

Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea added, "There's every reason for people to come and vote this year."

Sample Ballots, Voting Places On Page 5

If Gillis's forecast is accurate, it will be quite a drop from 1990 when a record 57.6 registered voters went to the polls in Quincy. The big draw two years ago was the battle for the gubernatorial nominations featuring Democrats Francis X. Bellotti, Evelyn Murphy and John Silber and Republicans William Weld and Steven Pierce.

The winner of the Democratic Congressional Primary will face the winner of the GOP contest and unenrolled candidate Jon Bryan in the fall final election Tuesday, Nov. 3. Seeking the Republican nomination for Congress are Michael K. Crossen of Mashpee, Daniel W. Daly of Hingham and Robert E. King of Plymouth.

Michael P. Umina of Mashpee is also running for Congress in the 10th District as a member of the Independent Voters Party.

The unusually crowded field for Congress was put into motion in March after U.S. Rep. Brian Donnelly announced he was stepping down at the end of this year.

Downtown Liquor License Request Continued For 2 Weeks

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board Tuesday continued for two weeks a hearing regarding the request of Cafe Bianco, 1626 Hancock St. for a Common Victualer-All Alcoholic beverage license.

Atty. Paul Barbadoro said the two prospective owners of the site, Joseph Tonello and Rafael Fantasia, wanted to open a "cafe-style Italian pastry and coffee shop" that would served no cooked food.

He added that the only reason for the all-alcoholic license request was so Cafe Bianco could serve "cordials" with its pastries.

A letter from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association supporting the license was presented at the meeting. However, four local business owners—

Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods, Bernie Reisberg of Bernie's Formal Shop, Constantine Kechris of the Colonial 1600 Restaurant and Paul Sturman of Frantic Framers—expressed concern that another establishment serving alcohol would do more harm than good for the area.

'Pub' A No-No For Point Restaurant

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The License Board Tuesday held a hearing regarding usage of the word "pub" in recent advertising for Quincy Adams Restaurant, 60-62A Summer St.

At the request of Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, the board last March told owner Patrick Fallon that he could open the restaurant under the condition that he not use the word "pub" to describe his establishment.

Although Fallon agreed to this request, he recently used the word in newspaper advertisements. Fallon said he was under the impression that he only could not use "pub" in signage outside the restaurant.

DeCristofaro, who attended Tuesday's board meeting, said this was not the case.

"I requested that the name 'pub' not be used (at all)," said DeCristofaro. "I think the place is a beautiful family restaurant, and that the word 'pub' has a connotation today that could bring in an element you (Fallon) don't really need."

The board decided that the March decision was made under the stipulation that the word "pub" not be used to describe the restaurant in any manner and told Fallon to refrain from doing so in the future.

has represented for 14 years, was redrawn after the Supreme Court gave a House seat to the state of Washington because of drop in population.

Hence, part of the old 11th District including Quincy, became part of the new 10th District. And, instead of having an open Congressional seat, Studds became the incumbent congressman in the new district.

Some political observers agree Studds faces the greatest challenge of his political career. And, watchers agree the key for Harold will be a high turnout in his hometown Quincy and neighboring Weymouth.

Besides the congressional campaign, several local races are tightening up and should go down to the wire, boosting turnout next Tuesday.

In the race for State Senate, four Democratic contenders are running to fill the seat vacated by Harold when he opted to campaign for Congress. The race features Holbrook Selectman Joanne Koval, former Quincy Councillor Stephen McGrath, State Representative Michael Morrissey and Dorothy Shea, a political newcomer from Quincy.

Since there is no Republican primary for State Senate, the Democratic winner is virtually assured the seat in the fall election.

Morrissey relinquished his House seat to run for State Senate. That move in turn opened up the first Norfolk District House seat, attracting a seven-candidate field: four Democrats, two Republicans and one unenrolled candidate.

Vying for the Democratic nomination are State Committeeman Michael G. Bellotti, Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, Quincy Attorney Stephen J. Colman and first-time candidate Susan Lydon Walsh.

The winner will face the GOP top vote getter, either Michael Cronin, a former Quincy voting registrar, or Susan Gallagher, who ran unsuccessfully two years ago.

In the Third Norfolk District, Democrat Ron Mariano, who was elected in a special election last October, is challenged by Attorney George Miller of Quincy. The Democratic nominee should coast into office since there is no Republican primary for state representative in the First Norfolk District.

There are also contested races for Democratic and Republican nominations for Governor's Council and two seats on the Norfolk County Commission.

Eight Democrats are seeking their party's nomination for the Governor's Council seat in the Fourth District vacated by Peter Eley of Quincy. They are: Randolph Town Moderator Paul Alpert, Abington Town Moderator Kevin R. Donovan, Quincy businessman Daniel J. Flynn III, Quincy labor consultant Ron Iacobucci, Boston attorney Christopher Iannella, Attorney John J. Kerrigan of Quincy, Milton attorney Paul J. Kingston and Milton Town Meeting member Michael A. Murphy.

The Democratic nominee will face the winner of the Republican race, Kenneth Fortini of Duxbury or Josephine M. Howland of Boston, in the fall.

In the race for Norfolk County Commission, four Democrats and two Republicans are seeking nominations for two open seats being vacated by James J. Collins and Mary Collins.

The two top vote getters on the Democratic primary will receive nominations; both Republican primary contenders will appear on the November ballot.

Candidates on the Democrat ballot are Peter H. Collins of Milton, Quincy City Clerk John Gillis, former Norfolk County Assistant District Attorney William P. O'Donnell, and Norfolk County Advisory Board Member John F. Youngclaus of Weymouth.

On the GOP ballot, Republicans Robert A. Frazier of Canton and Milton Town Clerk James G. Mullen are seeking their party's nomination. Because there are two open seats, they will automatically be nominated and appear on the fall ballot.

Under county government, two commissioners from the same city or town cannot serve simultaneously. The only candidates from the same town on the primary ballot are Mullen and Collins.

There are three uncontested races on Primary Day.

Incumbent Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall of Quincy will gain the Democratic nomination. Marshall, first elected in 1974, will be opposed by Republican challenger Paul F. Kelly Nov. 3.

State Rep. Stephen Arthur Tobin is unopposed for the Democratic nomination in the Second Norfolk District. With no GOP candidates on the ballot, Tobin is virtually assured a third two-year term in November.

Woman Raped In Faxon Park

Quincy Police are continuing their investigation into the rape of a Weymouth woman at Faxon Park Saturday night.

The 30-year-old woman was kidnapped outside a Hull nightclub and forced to drive her car to the park by the assailant who held a knife to her.

Det. Lt. Neil MacDonald said police have a clue in the case.

The victim told police that following the rape she ran from the car and the man ran away. She used a car phone to call police and told them she had been raped and did not know where she was.

Quincy Police located her 30 minutes later and took her to a local hospital.

State Labor Exhibit To Be Part Of City Shipbuilding Museum

An elaborate exhibit detailing the history of the labor and union movement in Massachusetts will become part of the new U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum planned for Quincy Point.

Secretary of State Michael Connolly, who is also chairman of the Massachusetts Historical Commission, made the announcement in the office of Mayor James Sheets last Friday. Connolly said he is enthusiastic about the museum which officials hope opens next year.

Connolly also praised Sheets and other city officials for their effort to boost tourism and historic preservation in "The City of Presidents."

Quincy is "not only a good place to live, it's a great place to visit. Tourism will continue to flourish here as we move toward the year 2000," Connolly said.

Sheets thanked Connolly for making the exhibit, which is now based in the Massachusetts Archives near the JFK Library on Columbia Point, available to Quincy and a permanent display once the museum opens.

"We appreciate him (Connolly) making the exhibit available to us. With the exhibit, we feel it (the museum) will be the premiere shipbuilding museum on the East Coast."

The museum corporation, headed by Executive Director Bill MacMullen, plans to convert the U.S.S. Salem, a Quincy-built "Big Gun" cruiser, the U.S.S. Sailfish, one of the last diesel-powered submarines, and a Fletcher class destroyer into a living history museum with the Fore River shipyard as part of the city's overall objective to attract more visitors.

Sheets said the city is negotiating with the Navy regarding the ships. "We're confident they will release them," he said.

In addition, the city is trying to work out a lease with the MWRA for a small portion of the former shipyard now owned by the agency charged with cleaning Boston Harbor.

The mayor is optimistic the agreements can be reached in the near future. "We would like to see it (the museum) up and running within a year. We think that's very possible."

According to MacMullen, the museum would be the first of its kind in the country. He said the labor exhibit would tie in the "human element" of shipbuilding.

"You have to think about the people who built the cities and built the ships also built an economy which helped drive this city," MacMullen said. "People will be able to understand the human element of shipbuilding and labor with this exhibit."

The exhibit depicts the history of the state's labor movement with, among other things, artifacts, displays and videos. The focal point of the exhibit is the "Bread and Roses Strike" which occurred in Lawrence in 1912.

"There are a lot of similarities in the exhibit that exist today with struggling businesses here in Massachusetts," Connolly said. "It's a tremendously interesting program. It's something you have to experience first hand."

Ronald Iacobucci, a labor consultant for the AFL-CIO, said the labor exhibit details many of the struggles and accomplishments of organized labor. Furthermore, many of those achievements are now at the very cornerstone of American labor, such as Social Security, pension plans and paid vacations, as well as employment and health and safety laws.

"I think it's a tremendous thing to have the exhibit coming to Quincy so that children and their children can see the exhibit," Iacobucci said.

Questions Ad
On Right To Choose

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Today's (Sept. 3, 1992) Quincy Sun carries an ambiguous political advertisement by Joanne Koval, candidate for state senator. She says she "supports your right to choose..." To "choose what?" Why doesn't Joanne Koval say what she means? If she means the "right" to choose to destroy a living human baby in its mother's womb by a deadly procedure known as abortion, why doesn't she say that? The word choice has become the accepted word in the pro-abortion arena, but it is poor camouflage for the mass destruction that takes place when choice is exercised to its extreme—when the baby's life is deliberately snuffed out.

Candidate Koval included in her ad pictures of two other Senate candidates, Michael Morrissey and Steven McGrath, implying that they were not for "choice." As state representative, Michael Morrissey has had a perfect pro-life record. And if Steven McGrath had the opportunity to vote up or down when a baby's life hangs in the balance, I believe he would defend the rights of the helpless unborn. And isn't that what living is all about? Mrs. Mary C. Ginnetty

A "NON-DISEASE" THAT MAKES YOU SICK

Maybe you've just been feeling rotten lately: headaches, upset stomach, chest tightness, sleeplessness. Still, your physical exam and test results all come back perfectly normal. You may be suffering from persistent anxiety. This is a condition that may start "all in your head" but can lead to debilitating and very real physical symptoms if allowed to progress unchecked. Persistent anxiety can be triggered by any stresses in the environment, from family problems to financial worries. Just as the condition takes a toll to build and manifest itself, so treatment is also usually a gradual process. A doctor may recommend relaxation techniques, changes in diet, an exercise program, and/or drug therapy. P.S. Caffeine is often a culprit in persistent anxiety, and frequently one of the first things a doctor will advise reducing. Meditation, deep breathing and use of biofeedback techniques are all effective ways of reducing anxiety and alleviating its symptoms. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We focus on treating the patient, rather than the disease. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Charlie Shea: A Champion

If ever there was a champion of the little guy, he wore a bow tie and his name was Charlie Shea.

As a city councillor and state representative he battled for the have-nots and was never timid about taking on the have-its no matter what their horsepower or ranking in the community.

Charlie was a little guy himself—but in size only. He wouldn't weigh much over 125 pounds with his pockets full of lead. If he had gone into boxing he'd have been a featherweight. But as a fighter for the underdog and needy, he was a pure heavyweight.

Charlie wasn't afraid to dig into his own pocket to help someone in need. You had the feeling that if he ever hit Megabucks for $10 million he'd have half of it given away by the next day. Money didn't mean much to him personally.

Charlie was one of the finest speakers the City Council chamber has ever heard. Not flowery oratory. He spoke plain language, got to the point and sat down, leaving his words ringing through the chamber.

And the point often was that there was someone or something that needed immediate help or attention "And let's do something about it—now!"

His longtime friend, Joe Donovan recalls the time Charlie fought for and won annuities for widows of police, firefighters and other city employees.

"Most of them had little or nothing to live on," says Donovan. "Charlie gave them dignity—and peace of mind—and the right to live without fear of losing their homes."

"He was always kind—he never hurt anyone," remembers another long-time friend, former Mayor Arthur Tobin. Charlie was city auditor during Tobin's administration.

"Charlie was sharp when it came to figures and finances. At City Hall meetings he came to solve problems, not cause them."

As a city councillor in the 1950's, Charlie, a staunch Democrat, spent a good part of the City Council meetings disagreeing with Republican members—especially the city's first—and for a long time—only woman councillor—Edna Austin.

Those attending the council meetings looked forward to seeing Charlie and Austin tangle. Both could give and take.

But when Mrs. Austin decided to retire in 1959, Charlie was genuinely sorry to see her leave.

"We had our differences," he said. "But let me tell you one thing—she always gave an honest vote."

"I'd never question her integrity. She showed honesty and courage in voting strictly on her own convictions. She was a welcomed adversary because of her integrity."

"I've always respected anyone who voted honestly—even if they did vote on the other side from me."

Those same words would have been tailor-made for Charlie himself.

One of Charlie's big political triumphs came in 1958 when he upset a Republican heavyweight, David McIntosh for state representative. McIntosh, a political veteran, served as mayor under Plan E.

Back in those days Quincy was a GOP—not Democratic—stronghold.

McIntosh had only praise for Charlie:

"He conducted a clean campaign. It was on a high moral plane. It was one of the most wholesome campaigns I have ever been in."

But another Republican giant, Amelio Della Chiesa, was too much for Charlie when he challenged him for mayor in 1963.

Della Chiesa breezed to re-election by an 18,039 to 10,774 margin.

"I got trounced," said Charlie with no alibis.

Though political parties and philosophies widely separated them, Charlie, McIntosh and Della Chiesa remained good friends.

Charlie was a pepper-pot who told it like it was. He didn't straddle issues. You knew where he stood. And he was loyal to those he believed in and what he believed in.

Though long out of politics and away from the City Hall scene, Charlie never lost interest in what was going on in Quincy. He was keenly aware.

Charlie entered Quincy Hospital six weeks ago and underwent pulmonary surgery. He was in intensive care most of that time, waging a courageous fight he just couldn't win.

He wanted to vote in the Democratic primary Sept. 15. So his wife, Cecilia, obtained an absentee ballot from City Hall for him.

And, as sick as he was, he made his choices. The ballot was returned to the Election Department. A few days later, Charlie was gone at age 65.

Gone, but he won't be forgotten. The little guys in the world lost a real champ.

JOHN GILLIS, who has been running Quincy elections since he became city clerk in 1959, will step to the sidelines at the Sept. 15 primary election returns.

GILLIS

Gillis, who is a candidate himself this year for Norfolk County Commissioner says: "I'm going to be there but as a bystander to avoid any kind of conflict."

Asst. Clerk Joseph Shea, who is heir apparent to the city clerk's post when Gillis steps down, will conduct the election.

SHEA

THERE HAVE BEEN nearly 300 absentee ballots returned but Gillis expects them to pick up this week.

And if you are going to be away election day, you can still obtain an absentee ballot up to Sept. 14.

GILLIS IS PREDICTING a 40 to 45 percent voter turnout for the primaries but says it might go a little higher.

This would be considerably better than four years ago when with only one local contest on the ballot, just 31 percent of the registered voters went to the polls. The long contest was for state representative in the Second Norfolk District won by Steve Tobin.

This year there are something like 16 Quincy candidates in contested races which are expected to bring out a much higher vote than four years ago.

FONTAINE

He is in Room 1130 in the Bigelow Building but hopes to be discharged today (Thursday). Fontaine, who has been helping out with the election returns at City Hall since his retirement will miss the primary this year.

"But I'll be there for the November final," he says. A speedy recovery, Herb.

N.E. Telephone Employee Initiates $15,000 Grant To Day Care Center

The South Shore Day Care Center of Quincy recently received a $15,000 grant from NYNEX.

The grant will be used for roof repairs and to improve ventilation at the center.

New England Telephone employee Patricia Harding initiated the grant from the NYNEX

Dependent Care Development Fund. The fund is a $6 million program which seeks to improve the quality and increase the number of child care and elder care services available to employees of NYNEX companies.

Harding, a directory assistance operator with NET in Weymouth, got involved because her children are enrolled at the Center.

Unlike other corporate grants, employees initiate the process and their involvement is integral to the success of the program.

The program is a joint effort by NYNEX with the Communications Workers of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

YMCA Raises $108,000 For Camp Scholarships

The South Shore YMCA topped its fundraising goal of $100,000 by raising $108,000 with a big boost from 38 individuals and businesses which joined the YMCA President's Club with gifts of $1,000 or more.

in Hingham and chairman of the campaign.

Members of the 1992 President's Club are:

Anderson Insulation, James D. Asher, Bay State Milling, Karl Briggs, Robert and Kathy Bunstein, R.D. Chase Insurance Agency, the Alex Clark Family, W. Gordon and Marjorie Clark.

Continental Cablevision, the Crofts-Wisch Family, Eleanor Dacey, the Eldred Family, Herbert Emilson, Tom Flatley, Phyllis Godwin, Hancock Paint, Paul and Connie Hurley, David Keefe.

Chamber Forms South Shore Manufacturing Council

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has formed the South Shore Council of Manufacturers to promote regional manufacturing.

The new council provides a forum for the exchange of ideas and networking for area companies.

Board Chairman Tom Galvin and Franklin Meissner, president of the Weymouth-based Electro Switch Corporation, formed the council because they saw a need with the decline in area manufacturing jobs and the lack of a trained workforce.

"Manufacturing councils are flourishing in other parts of the country, and many of these are trying to steal jobs away from Massachusetts," said Galvin, a vice president of Boston Gear in Quincy.

"We need to let people know we have an attractive business climate right here, and can support many businesses. There are over 400 manufacturing companies currently located on the South Shore," he said.

"There seems to be a very high interest in getting help for South Shore companies that add value to products," said Council Chairman Howard Gray. "With vocational and technical schools closing, there is a need for new ways to educate and train workers."

"The council will focus on finding economic incentives to attract new manufacturing businesses into the region," he added. Gray is executive vice president of Electro Switch Corp.

The council held its first meeting in May, and membership is expected to increase following the results of a proposed survey, according to Terry Fancher, general manager of the 2000-member chamber. "Among the many issues is the need for the training of people for specific skills in manufacturing jobs so they can stay here in Massachusetts," Fancher said.

For more information about the council, contact Fancher at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 617-479-1111.

Prostate Screening At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital will sponsor free prostate cancer screenings during Prostate Cancer Awareness Week Tuesday, Sept. 29 and Wednesday, Oct. 1 from 5 to 8 p.m. in the hospital's Ambulatory Care Department on the fourth floor.

The screening will include a Prostate Specific Antigen (PSA) blood test and a digital rectal exam (DRE). The examinations will be conducted by urologists on the hospital staff, including Drs. Denis Blais, William R. Helfrich, and Stephen Starr of South Shore

Urological Associates; Gary Bolgar; Adnan Kaleli; and Prasanta Mitra. About 132,000 American men, or 1 in 11, will be diagnosed with prostate cancer this year. The disease can go undetected for years, since it may not produce symptoms for a long period of time. Screening programs have been effective in detecting prostate cancer in its early stages, and fortunately this disease can be cured when detected early.

Space is limited and advance registration is required. To make an appointment call the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at 773-6100 ext. 4016.

Iacobucci Says He Would Not Be A Rubber Stamp For Any Governor

Ronald Iacobucci, Democratic candidate for Governor's Council in the 4th District, says he "will not be a rubber stamp" for any governor if elected.

The 36-year-old Quincy resident and labor consultant to the South Shore Building Trades Council said:

"If I am going to approve judicial appointments, then I am going to work for judicial reform. If the position is there, then let's make it work for the people."

Iacobucci said he would be a "proactive" councilor and would use the post as an advocacy position within the Governor's office for such issues as health care and court reform.

"If the people want change in their government, then I represent that change to make the Governor's Council a more useful body within the executive branch," he said.

"The Governor's Council has the responsibility to review on a weekly basis the pay warrants--the monies to pay the state's bills and in a sense approving state appropriations," said Iacobucci.

"If we really want to work for the people by eliminating fraud, waste and abuse in state contracts, then it is about time the Governor's Council begin to investigate these pay warrants. In the past 25 years, the approval of these pay warrants has been nothing more than a proforma exercise," said

Iacobucci.

The Governor's Council also has the responsibility to approve pardons for criminals.

"Under no circumstances would I vote to grant a pardon to a criminal that committed a capital crime, a crime related to drug dealing or a crime against children and women," Iacobucci said.

"In the past the Governor's Council has actually voted to allow criminals to go free that have committed murder. This must never happen again. As a father of a five-year-old daughter, I will work on behalf of your family and your children to keep our streets safe from these criminals."

The Governor's Council also has the final say in the appeals process for veterans benefits.

"The veterans have made great sacrifices for this country. There will never be a veteran who will go without benefits while I am serving on the Governor's Council," Iacobucci said.

"I am running for Governor's Council because I have the experience in the public and private sector to be an effective representative for the people of the 4th District," said Iacobucci, a 1977 Boston College graduate.

Iacobucci has worked at the federal, state and local level of government as an aide to former Congressman James Burke, Lt. Governor Tom O'Neill, and as a Little City Hall Manager.

He has received the endorsement of the Massachusetts AFL-CIO, the Quincy and South Shore Building Trades Council and the Norfolk Central Labor Council.

GEORGE MILLER IS NOT A POLITICAL INSIDER!

George Miller Has Worked Hard For His Family And Community. Not The Lobbyists, Special Interest Groups And PACS That Try To Control Beacon Hill.

George Miller was one of seven children. His mother was from Quincy and his father was from Weymouth. At just 11 years old, George worked as a shoeshine boy, collected scrap metal and delivered newspapers to help support his family.

While attending junior high and high school, George worked as a janitor and warehouse worker to help his family survive.

Despite his parents deaths when George was just a teenager, George and his brothers and sisters decided to stay together and raise each other on their own. George continued working, graduated from high school and worked his way through college and law school. During that difficult time George also volunteered at Quincy Hospital, the YMCA and as an auxiliary police officer.

Today George Miller has his own family to raise and is a practicing attorney. George represents hard working people and families, not big business and special interest groups.

Now George Miller wants to work for the people and families of Weymouth and Quincy as their State Representative.

Miller Says Medex Should Be Subsidized

While speaking with a group of seniors at a senior housing complex the Third Norfolk District recently, State Representative candidate George F. Miller discussed the Medex insurance crisis.

"I was informed by these seniors that the proposed 28 percent rate increase for Medex was one of their main concerns this election year," Miller said.

Medex is private insurance that covers seniors medical bills which are not covered by the medicare program.

"Many seniors told me that they would have to drop their Medex insurance if the 28 percent rate increase is approved.

This increase is not affordable by our seniors, most of which live on a limited fixed income and swift action must be taken by the legislature," Miller said.

said.

"The legislature has failed to come up with a solution. If I am elected state representative, I will support using funds from the state's free-care pool to subsidize the cost of Medex.

"Most of the seniors that I spoke with said that Medex is vital to their survival and as their state representative, I will work to help solve this serious problem," he added.

Sheriff Marshall Honored By Norfolk Bar Association

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall recently received a plaque of "Appreciation for Outstanding Service" from the Norfolk County Bar Association.

Helen Abdallah

Donohue, the first woman president of the Norfolk County Bar Association, presented the award.

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office and the Norfolk County Bar Association work together to provide inmate legal services at the Norfolk County Correctional Center, Dedham.

The Bar Association recognized Marshall's involvement and efforts to improve the quality of the criminal justice system.

Mariano Backs Law Which Would Stop Charging Seniors For Medical Records

State Rep. Ron Mariano (D-Quincy) says he supports a proposed law that would stop health care providers from charging the disabled and elderly a fee for copies of their medical records.

The exemption would be granted when elders and disabled individuals apply for federal aid in helping to defray the cost of medical expenses.

The initiative which passed the House of Representatives with the overwhelming support of Rep. Mariano was devised so that health care providers would have to waive their exorbitant fees when an individual asked for a copy of their files.

"Many of these folks cannot afford to apply for benefits, under the Social Security Act, because of the cost of the medical records fee," Mariano said.

Medical records are required by federal assistance programs as a proof of disability.

"It is unconscionable that our seniors and disabled citizens, many of whom are struggling just above the poverty line, are being forced to forego applying for medical relief due to the high cost of obtaining official documentation of their ailments," Mariano added.

Morrissey Calls On Weld To Release Gas Tax Funds

State Rep. Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy) has called on Gov. Weld to release tax funds in order to that they be used for the improvement of the state's highways, roads and bridges.

"Earlier this summer, Gov. Weld vetoed a budget item passed by the legislature to restrict the use of the gas funds to roadway and bridgework repair.

"Gas tax funds are deducted funds and should only be used for the maintenance of our highways, roads and bridges," Morrissey said. "People are not happy about shouldering a tax burden during tough times. Never mind having their hard-earned money being diverted from the projects for which it was intended.

"Fifty percent of our construction workers in some trade unions are out of a job. Our roads and bridges are falling apart and placing our safety in jeopardy. The money to remedy these problems is being held up. It's not right."

Over the past month, Morrissey has been marshalling votes and working with legislators, members of the building trades and the construction industry of Massachusetts to insure that the money will be spent on its intended purpose.

Morrissey pledged to continue to make this a top priority. "It's an important step for us to take to get the economy moving again," he said.

Administrative Wing Renovated At ENC

Eastern Nazarene College has completed renovations to a two-level administrative wing, the Robert Bower-George E. Grimshaw Center for Institutional Advancement.

Formerly occupied by the college's library, the new wing will consist of administrative offices, a large conference room and lounge, reception area, restrooms and storage areas.

It will house the offices of the Registrar, Financial Aid, Enrollment Management and Admissions, Alumni, Church Relations, Development, and Publications and Publicity.

The wing was named in honor of a friend of the college, Grimshaw of Peterborough, N.H. He has been a contributor to Eastern Nazarene College since 1986, with his gifts primarily going to the new Nease Library and the college's Annual Fund. This summer he added an unrestricted gift of $250,000. Bower was Grimshaw's great-grandfather and a Massachusetts businessman and politician before the turn of the century.

Grimshaw, a retired businessman, was a native of Dover, N.H., and lived primarily in the Lawrence and New Bedford, Mass., areas.

He is best known for his support of medical research, performing arts and higher education. Brown University named its new six-story Medical Research Center in honor of Grimshaw's contributions to the school.

Before his untimely death, Aug. 2, Eastern Nazarene College president, Dr. Cecil Paul, strongly supported the naming of the new center in honor of Grimshaw, and planned to announce the gift and the naming of the new building to the trustees and ENC community this Fall.

Mike Morrissey was the one who sponsored legislation to increase the Estate Tax Exemptions for senior citizens ...and a bill to give tax credits to families who are caring for their elder loved ones at home.

TO BRING BACK JOBS

Mike Morrissey is standing up to Governor Weld and the state bureaucracy to get the gas tax revenues released to repair the roads and bridges....and put thousands of construction workers back to work.

He's pushing state government to release the federal Clean Water Act dollars now available to repair our water and sewer systems...and put people to work, too.

Delahunt Endorses Studds For Congress

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, who contemplated a run for Congress before bowing out of contention, has endorsed Cong. Gerry Studds for re-election in the 10th District.

Joined by several dozen supporters at Amelia's Restaurant at Marina Bay in Squantum, Delahunt lauded Studds for his commitment to jobs and health care for all Americans.

"In my opinion the choice for Congress this year could not be more clear," Delahunt said. "Gerry Studds has the skill, intellect and most importantly the record of effective leadership that has proven to me that he can make a real difference in the lives of the people of Quincy."

Delahunt pointed to Studds' seniority, which puts him line to become chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. "Whether it's reigning in skyrocketing MWRA water and sewer rates, or reviving the Fore River shipyard, we need a congressman who can deliver.

"Gerry Studds will be a position to get the job done for the residents of Quincy, Weymouth and the entire 10th District," Delahunt said.

Regarding health care, Delahunt said, "My paramount concern is that of health insurance, and Gerry Studds is right on the mark on that issue." Studds, a member of the House Health Subcommittee, is a strong supporter of legislation which would provide universal health care for all Americans.

"We have to cut the waste out of current health care system and use those valuable resources to help people who desperately need coverage," said Delahunt, noting there are more than 35 million Americans without any health insurance.

"This is a very proud moment for me," Studds said, "I have admired and voted for Bill Delahunt for years as a resident of Norfolk County. His backing and the support of his many friends means a lot to me personally."

Registrar: Motor Vehicles Require Annual Inspection

Jerold A. Gnazzo, Registrar of Motor Vehicles reminds every owner or person in control of a Massachusetts registered motor vehicle that they must submit the vehicle for inspection annually, no later than the month of expiration on the previously issued Certificate of Inspection. Early renewals are permitted.

The Registrar also reminds vehicle owners to be sure the Inspection Station, a business licensed by the Registrar, performs all mandated inspection services.

For the safety of all, the following emissions and safety items must be inspected at an authorized Inspection Station:

•The catalytic converter on every vehicle should be visually checked for presence and condition.

•A visual inspection must be made in order to properly check the fuel neck restrictor to be sure it is in place, secured and not enlarged.

•Parking and service brakes will also be checked for defects and malfunctions.

•The muffler will be checked for smoke, noise or any leaks.

•The horn will be checked for sound and also to be sure it is properly secured to the vehicle.

•Windshield wipers, seat belts and windows must be intact and functioning properly.

•Tires should be checked for any bulges or exposed cords.

•Fenders should not have any sharp objects protruding and fuel tanks must be secure and leak proof.

•Headlights must be properly aimed and all required lighting devices be in proper working condition.

•Use of tape to repair broken or missing lenses is prohibited.

•License plates must be legible and free from any instructions.

Should the Inspector fail to inspect any of the emissions and safety items, the vehicle owner should ask for an inspection of the item or items the Inspector failed to check. It is vital that every motor vehicle be thoroughly and properly inspected for the safety of all.

A vehicle can also be rejected for any of the following: expired registrations, identification number does not match number on the vehicle or is illegible, incorrect vehicle description, registration numbers does not match number plates, or if plates are incorrectly displayed, including license plate frames that cover any portion of the lettering.

In Wake Of Andrew

City Planning Ahead For Future Hurricanes

By MICHAEL WHALEN

In response to the devastating destruction caused by Hurricane Andrew in Florida and Louisiana, Quincy Emergency Management held a briefing last week to discuss what would be done if a similar storm occurred in this area.

Police Chief Francis Mullen, who acts as director of Quincy Emergency Management, said those at the meeting are determined to prepare Quincy in the event of a hurricane attacking the South Shore.

Mullen, who expressed confidence that Quincy would be prepared should the worst happen, said areas of concern at the briefing included shelters, personal communications, transportation, and other resources.

"We touched base with all of the resources that are involved," said Mullen. "We made sure we had our plan in place in case of a coming emergency."

Those who attended the briefing included Public Safety Committee Chairman Peter Kolson, Executive Secretary Thomas Koch; Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano; Edward Roberts, Quincy Emergency Management's head of shelters; John Blackadar of Quincy Emergency Management's underwater diving team; Traffic Engineer Jack Gillan; Cindy DeCristofaro of the Quincy Health Department; Roger Wallin of the Quincy Building Department; Jeff Harshfield of Quincy Hospital; Lt. William Falco of the Quincy Police Department; Lt. John Menz Jr. of the Quincy Fire Department; Donna Laing of Norfolk Bristol Ambulance; Lester Gerry of the Department of Public Works; Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley; John Noonan, also of the Council on Aging; John "Jake" Comer of the Quincy Housing Authority; Jacqueline Gardner and Louie Garcia of the American Red Cross; and John Tracy, John Tesaro and Donald Pond of the National Guard.

Mullen noted that it was important to have so many people from so many departments present at the briefing.

"Every person there, their department plays a major part in it," said Mullen. "We're a big city, and we all have certain roles to play. Anything can happen at any given moment."

Mullen added that paraphenalia that will help citizens be prepared in case of any possible disaster will be distributed through the mail in the near future.

Gallagher Says MWRA Needs Legislative Oversight

Susan Gallagher, Republican candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, says legislative oversight of the MWRA is needed to give people power over water and sewer rates and to safeguard public health and safety.

"Our legislators followed a politics-as-usual pattern when they made the MWRA an independent authority," she said. "Over the years they created entities like the Turnpike Authority, Hynes Auditorium and Boston Common Garage."

"These authorities provide high paying jobs for their friends, and yet, because they are independent, the legislators can disclaim any responsibility when things go wrong or costs escalate."

"Their crime was in creating the MWRA monster and then walking away from it. The MWRA must either be put out of business or at the very least be put under legislative control so that those who created it will be held accountable to the voters for what has been happening," Gallagher said.

"Water and sewer bills are outrageous and they'll get worse if we don't take action now. But they are only part of our problems," she continued.

"The quality of life in Quincy is being endangered not only by fires and odors from the MWRA but from toxic spills at Clean Harbors and noxious fumes from Procter and Gamble. Must we wait until people start dying before we face the fact that all these operations collectively do not belong in our densely populated area? Where is the common sense on Beacon Hill?"

"The blame must be shared, however, by leaders of both parties. In April the Quincy Republican City Committee wrote Governor Weld to condemn his plan to remove local control over hazardous waste sites. Two months later he replied that it was necessary so that businesses would have somewhere to take their waste. Would he have been so unconcerned if it were happening next to his home in Cambridge? I think not."

Gallagher added: "Placing blame in hindsight, however, will not solve the problem, we will electing people who are part of the old-boy network. We need to elect someone who cares about our community and shares our values."

"As your state representative I will work and fight to bring local control back to the siting process and legislative control to the MWRA rate structure. A liveable, affordable Quincy is my number one priority, and I will always put people ahead of either profit, patronage or politics."

Studds Urges Funding For Old Colony Line Restoration

Congressman Gerry Studds has urged a key House committee chairman and Massachusetts' top transportation official to work to increase funding for the restoration of commuter rail service on the Old Colony Railroad Line.

"The growth of our region's economy is as slow as rush hour traffic congestion that can turn a short drive on Route 3 into an hour-long nightmare. And we could badly use the jumpstart that the 5,000 jobs demanded by the Old Colony restoration will bring. Additional federal funds could help move this project more quickly and create those jobs sooner rather than later." The House of Representatives has approved a bill providing $640 million for rail modernization while the Senate version provides $690 million, Studds said.

Approval of the Senate figure would mean an additional $3.3 million for the MBTA, Studds said.

He said he has sent a letter to Rep. William Lehman, chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation, asking House conferees on the bill to accept the Senate's higher funding level for the rail modernization account. Studds, who has been pressing for the revival of South Shore commuter rail since the 1970s, said MBTA officials have indicated they would use the additional $3.3 million for the Old Colony project.

In his letter, Studds said:

"Restoration of commuter rail service is very important to the communities on the South Shore of Boston. Congestion on the main highways leading from the area to Boston and the arterial routes serving them can reach gridlock proportions during rush hour. And the return of train service will help revive economically distressed downtown areas."

Studds also wrote to Richard Taylor, State Transportation Secretary, urging him to approve an MBTA proposal to allocate $61 million in federal highway funds for the commuter rail project.

Arguing that the federal requirements for using the funds for the Old Colony project are met, Studds noted that only 50 percent of the Old Colony project is currently financed with federal funds. In contrast, he said, the Central Artery-Third Harbor Tunnel project is 90 percent federally-funded.

"This disparity, in my view, reflects warped federal priorities that fortunately are changing. For too long, the federal government gave priority to expensive highway construction, while ignoring mass transit projects that appreciably ease traffic congestion and improve air quality."

"... By allowing National Highway System funds to be used for the Old Colony project, the federal share will be raised from 50 percent to 80 percent, reflecting a change in priorities that I believe is long overdue."

Before it was fashionable, Larry Chretien started Quincy's successful recycling and leaf composting programs. These programs have already saved Quincy taxpayers over $1 Million, while conserving precious natural resources.

Recently, the state released a study showing that recycling has the potential to create 10,000 jobs here in Massachusetts.

In recognition of Larry's efforts, the John F. Kennedy Library awarded him their 1990 Fenn Award for Political Leadership.

Radiation Therapy Service Proposed For South Shore

South Shore residents with cancer are one step closer to having more convenient access to radiation therapy services as a result of a decision reached by the Department of Health's Public Health Council. The council has recommended that South Shore Hospital and Quincy Hospital work together to develop a radiation therapy facility in the south metropolitan area of Greater Boston.

Ellen Zane, director of Quincy Hospital, and David T. Hannan, president and chief executive officer of South Shore Hospital, recently testified at the Public Health Council meeting in favor of the recommended shared radiation therapy service.

The two hospitals have 45 days to develop an estimated maximum capital expenditure, estimate first-year operating costs, identify potential sites for the facility and choose a tertiary affiliation. When patients from both facilities are referred to the new facility, it will make the new radiation therapy service one of the state's busiest.

"The South Shore's cancer rate is among the state's highest, which has created a pressing demand for radiation therapy service in the area," Hannan said. "At South Shore Hospital, we've seen the number of our cancer patients increased by 40 percent since 1980.

"Right now, many patients must wait for access to radiation therapy and are inconvenienced by lengthy commutes to receive their treatment. It is important for the community's sake that we provide radiation therapy's that more convenient and closer to our patient's homes. We applaud the Public Health Council's decision and welcome the opportunity to work with Quincy Hospital."

Zane said, "The recommendation that Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital jointly develop radiation therapy services for residents living on the South Shore is a very progressive proposal. This type of collaborative effort ensures that the residents south of Boston receive excellent medical care in a cost efficient manner.

"We're looking forward to working with South Shore Hospital to provide this much needed service in a location which will be readily accessible to all our patients," she added.

Both hospitals submitted Determination of Need (DoN) proposals almost five years ago to develop radiation therapy services. When the Public Health Council revised the guidelines for radiation therapy services Dec. 17, 1991, it recommended that planning for these services by on a statewide basis and that additional units be distributed to ensure reasonable patient access to quality care at a reasonable cost. In response to these guidelines, the DoN office staff reviewed cancer statistics and radiation therapy needs and determined that only five more units are needed in the state.

Applicants proposing to establish new radiation therapy service must be able to demonstrate a projected need of 250 patients or 6,000 treatments annually. In addition, the travel time to existing services must be in excess of 30 minutes, and/or there must be a waiting time of seven days or longer following consultation for treatment.

Quincy Hospital reported that 366 cancer cases were diagnosed at the hospital in 1990 and 445 in 1991, of which 125 and 135 respectively were referred for radiation therapy. South Shore Hospital reported 565 cancer cases in 1990 and 626 in 1991, of which 218 and 224 respectively were referred for radiation therapy.

Both hospitals reported that patients must wait from seven days to two weeks for treatment at Brockton Hospital and up to two months for treatment at Massachusetts General Hospital and the Joint Center for Radiation Therapy. Analysis also indicated that services at Boston hospitals are less accessible to patients residing in this area.

Quincy Hospital is a public, not-for-profit, 290-bed, acute care hospital serving residents south of Boston. The hospital admitted more than 10,000 patients in 1991.

South Shore Hospital is a private, tax exempt, not-for-profit, 342-bed, regional acute care medical center serving 470,000 residents of Southeastern, Mass. It admitted more than 17,000 patients in 1991.

Dear Quincy Voter:

I am asking for your help and support in my candidacy for State Representative of the 1st Norfolk District.

We are a society crying out for leaders of integrity, courage and action. That is the type of leadership I will provide.

I'm not part of any political dynasty and do not intend to make politics a life-long career. I am, however, a Quincy native who loves his city. A candidate who offers the public five years of legislative experience.

I will be a representative working for your interest. After all, my future is in your hands, not in those of State House lobbyists or other power brokers. Please look closely at my ideas and experience, and compare them to those of my Democratic opponents.

September 15 is the day to elect a new name, a new face, a new State Representative for the 90's. I believe I have the ability, experience and enthusiasm to be an effective State Representative. Please help me achieve our common goal.

IF IT SEEMS LIKE YOU DON'T HAVE AS MUCH ENERGY AS YOU USED TO, PIPE UP.

Over the years, the efficiency of your heating system has probably been sliding further and further downhill. And now, you could only be getting about half the heat you're paying for. But new gas furnaces are up to 94% efficient. Since gas systems also burn cleaner, they stay efficient throughout the heating season, year after year. And if you switch to gas heat now, we'll give you the Boston Gas Home Heating Service Plan, free, for 3 years. So don't let your old heating system take advantage of you. Pipe up.

Koval Supports Universal Health Care

State Senate candidate Joanne Koval announces her support for universal health care.

At campaign stops in Avon, Braintree, Holbrook and Quincy, Koval said that health care should be a fundamental right of citizenship in Massachusetts and the United States.

Koval, a Holbrook Selectman, said: "This should be addressed at the national level. But if the next president does not make it a top priority immediately, then we must act at the state level."

The United States Census Bureau recently reported that the percentage of people without health insurance in Massachusetts grew by 28 percent in the past three years, she said. Over 650,000 people in Massachusetts alone currently do not have health insurance, she said.

Koval said that health care is among the top concerns of the people of the district she has met during her campaign for the state senate. She said she would advocate the "Play or Pay" system of health insurance. In this system, the company either provides benefits to their employees or pays into the uninsured pool for those people without coverage.

"There are too many people in this country, this state, and in this district who are not covered adequately," she said.

"The politicians have been stonewalling on this issue for long enough. It is time to elect someone to the State Senate who can be effective in initiating change on this issue and other issues critical to our lives."

Currently over 35 million people in the United States are not covered by any health insurance, Koval said.

She began her career in the banking industry in 1984, and has worked herself up to her present position of branch manager of The Boston Five's Granite Street and President's Place branches.

Retirement Dinner Dance Planned For Arthur Ciampa

A retirement dinner dance honoring Arthur Ciampa, former executive director of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, will be held Thursday, Oct. 8 at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Ciampa, executive director since 1958, stepped down July 1.

A 1939 graduate of Boston College School of Social Work, he had the heart and conscience of a social worker for more than five decades.

"For over 35 years my burning and consuming passion has been to expand and enhance the services of cerebral palsied and developmentally disabled children and their families," Ciampa said.

After taking the position of executive director, Ciampa spent several evenings talking to groups and individuals gathering support for the young agency. In 1960 the agency opened the first nursery school in Massachusetts for children with handicaps. Two years later, a summer camp on Martha's Vineyard was established for children with severe handicaps.

Under Ciampa's guidance, a building was purchased in 1974 at 105 Adams St. in Quincy; and the Children's Developmental Disabilities Center was established. The center and administrative offices are located at this address.

Tickets for the retirement party, including dinner, are $25 per person. For more information, call 617-479-7980.

After Passing CPR Course

Quincy Man Saves 2-Year-Old Son From Drowning

By TONY FERULLO
(Special To The Quincy Sun)

John Crowley couldn't believe his eyes.

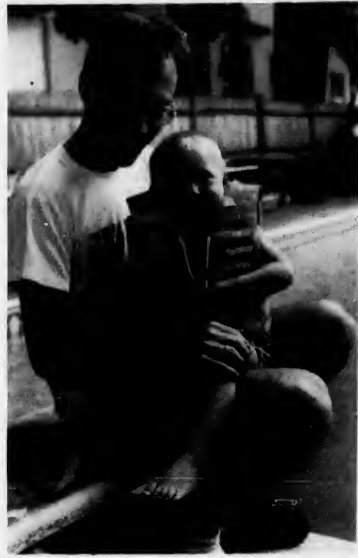

"I looked down into the pool and saw what looked like a Mickey Mouse T-shirt," said Crowley. "Then I realized that's what Joey (his two-year-old son) was wearing."

"I screamed, 'Oh, My God.'"

Crowley immediately dove into the eight-foot-deep pool in his mother's backyard in Quincy. "When I grabbed him, he was chest up," explained Crowley. "I quickly got him out and laid him down on the grass. I was scared to death."

"His body was bloated, he was turning blue, his eyes had no color and I couldn't feel a pulse. I thought he was dead."

During the following gut-wrenching minutes, Crowley proceeded to perform CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) on Joey, and watched his son spit up a lot of water. The ambulance then came and took Joey, who fully recovered, to Quincy Hospital.

Crowley attributes his life-saving efforts to the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay—an agency supported by the United Way of Massachusetts Bay. Ironically, it was exactly a week prior to this incident that Crowley completed training courses in CPR and First Aid offered through his work by the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay.

"I can't say enough about the value of those courses," said Crowley, 26, who is employed as a storekeeper for the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant in Quincy. "They helped me save the life of my son."

Thanks to United Way funding, the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay is able to offer training courses in CPR and First Aid to people in the workplace. "Our goal is to help each student perform life-saving skills the best of his or her ability," said Story

Stephenson, a CPR instructor for the American Red Cross. "We make people focus on exactly what they have to do."

When asked to describe the most gratifying part of her job, Stephenson said proudly, "When I hear stories like John Crowley saving his son's life. I still get goose bumps when I think about it."

Crowley remembers Stephenson's no-nonsense approach in the classroom.

"She was real demanding," said Crowley, who lives in Quincy with his wife, Diane, and two other children, Jacqueline, 7, and John, 3. "She made us do things over and over again until we got it right. And I'm glad she did."

My family and I are very grateful to Ms. Stephenson, the American Red Cross and the United Way. Without the training that I received, I don't know if my son would have survived."

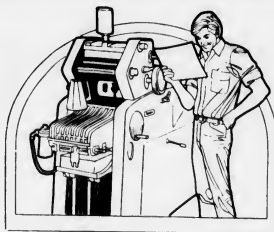

One minute, Joey was playing in the yard; the next minute he was fighting for his life. Each day, the Crowley family counts its blessings.

"I cried the whole next day after it happened," said John Crowley, who son received numerous get-well cards, phone calls and stuffed animals during his three days in the hospital. "I kept thinking back when he was born. Something like this really shows you how precious life is."

Harold Criticizes Studds On Campaign Contributions

State Senator Paul Harold (D-Quincy), a Democratic candidate for Congress in the 10th District, criticized Congressman Gerry Studds for the large amounts of Political Action Committee (PAC) monies and out-of-state monetary contributions he has accepted for his reelection bid.

Studds' total contributions as reported in the Federal Elections Commission filing for the period from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1992 were $402,859.05, Harold said. Approximately $83,326, or 20% of the total monies, were received from national Political Action Committees, Harold said.

Of the $95,381 dollars stated received in individual itemized contributions, $59,276 or 56% of the total individual itemized contributions, were from out of state, according to Harold.

In addition to over $224,151.34 dollars or 56% of the total contributions were listed as unitemized contributions (contributions of $199 or less whose origin does not have to be attributed), Harold said.

"It appears that more than half of Congressman Studds' contributors are unidentifiable," Harold said.

Harold said the combined total for PAC contributions, out of state individual itemized contributions, and unitemized individual contributions equals $366,754.05 or 91% of the total contributions.

"The question the voters of the 10th District have to ask themselves is: 'Who is Gerry Studds really representing, the people who are bankrolling his campaign or the people of the district?'" Harold said. Massachusetts residents contributed $36,105 dollars or 38% of the total itemized contributions. Only $25,655 or 6% of the total contributions reported are from within the new 10th Congressional District and Studds' old Congressional district, according to Harold.

Among the Political Action Committees listed in the filing, Harold said, are the Pacific Seafood PAC, the Inlandboatmen Union of the Pacific PAC, the Miami Cruise PAC, and the American Presidents Line PAC. The filing indicates that less than 20% of the total PAC contributions came from Massachusetts, Harold said.

A geographical breakdown of Studds' filing for this year reveals contributions in the amount of $8,325 from the State of Washington (mostly Seattle), $12,050 from the State of California ($10,000 from the City of San Francisco), $67,399 from the District of Columbia and $24,946 from New York City, according to Harold.

For the filing period of April 1 to June 1, 1992 contributions from New York City ($16,726) exceeded contributions both from Studds' old district and the 10th Congressional District ($15,805) with the remaining $24,050 in out-of-state contributions coming from Florida, the State of Washington, Virginia, New Jersey, and Washington, D.C., Harold said.

"Judging from the large amounts of out-of-state money that he has received, it is easy to see why he is out of touch with the people of the district," Harold said. "Obviously, Studds is not representing the people of Southeastern Massachusetts."

Candidate Profiles For State Senator, State Representative And Where They Stand

The Quincy Sun invited the Democratic and Republican candidates appearing on the Sept. 15th primary ballot for State Senate in the First and Third Norfolk Districts to respond to a questionnaire. The election guide is a public service to voters in those districts.

Each candidate was asked to list his or her name, address, age and occupation. In addition, each candidate was asked to answer four questions.

They are:

Question 1: What in your background or experience qualifies you for the office you seek?

Question 2: What do you consider the most important issue in the district you wish to represent and if elected, what would you do about it?

Question 3: Do you support an eight-year term limit? Why or why not?

Question 4: What is your position on abortion and why?

Candidates were instructed to limit their responses to 150 words per question.

Responses are listed in the order in which candidate names appear on the ballot.

State Senate

JOANNE KOVAL
Age: 51
74 South St., Holbrook
Occupation: Former director of marketing/public relations, Law Office of Alan Segal.

Question 1:

In addition to being a selectman and other elected or appointed municipal and regional offices, my experience encompasses a strong finance background: nine years, four as chairman of the Holbrook town finance committee. Balancing budgets and prioritizing line items to insure necessary services is a must in state government. My experience and expertise will be an asset and is sorely needed on Beacon Hill during these difficult fiscal times. In addition, I served on the Self Help finance committee which was a 20 million dollar budget. Currently, I serve on the finance committee of the MAPC (Metropolitan Area Planning Council) serving 101 cities and towns in the Metro area.

Most importantly, I have been a leader in the district and am proud of my record of accomplishments including the cleanup of the Baird and Maguire hazardous waste site. I have demonstrated the proven leadership necessary to be effective state senator who will work full time for us.

Question 2:

There are many serious issues in this campaign that must be addressed. Our concerns must be to insure that our air and drinking water are safe. We need legislators who will care about the education of our children. Our health care system does not work for everyone and our economy is the worst that I have ever seen. Government has added burdens to us, the ordinary folks, and each day brings another challenge for us.

Sewer user fees have escalated over the past 10 years and our legislators have not been able to control the MWRA. Clearly this needs to change. Our safety and rights need to be protected with the MWRA before Phase II goes forward.

I believe that our elected officials should work for us full time, and be accountable.

Now more than ever before, we, the ordinary folks, need to be represented at the state house.

Question 3:

I believe that the question of term limits should be on the ballot. Personally I wish that all registered voters exercised their right to vote on election day. However, that is not the case. I wish voters would look at the qualifications and credentials of each candidate before casting a vote.

I am in favor of change. I am in favor of reform particularly for the term a Senate president or House speaker serves in that capacity, certainly reform so that consecutive election to this important position will change and allow other legislators a time to serve.

Question 4:

I am pro-choice. This question is pro-choice or anti-choice. I support the right of every individual to make decisions regarding their own lives and I believe that government cannot take away an individual's right to choose. The question is not whether a pro-choice candidate is in favor of abortion, and truly many voters who are pro-choice would not choose to have an abortion.

On the question of abortion, I believe that God has given every individual the right to choose by giving us a soul, conscience and free will. All of us will be accountable for our choices and decisions we make during our lifetime.

STEPHEN McGRATH
Age: 39
Oval Rd., Quincy
Occupation: Quincy city solicitor, on unpaid leave of absence

Question 1:

My commitment to our community is longstanding. Throughout my experience as a public servant I have worked hard to represent your interests. Being active in government at the local level afforded me the opportunity to work closely with the people who elected me.

For too long state government has grown out of touch with the average citizen. Local government has been forced to cut back vital programs as politicians on Beacon Hill worry about protecting special interests and being re-elected.

As finance committee chairperson, as city council president, and as city solicitor, I've worked hard to earn your respect. I've fought hard to protect our interests.

It's clear that voters are frustrated with the empty promises and business as usual on Beacon Hill. We need a state senator from the outside, from our community, to take our concerns, fight on our behalf, and to win at the State House.

I share your concerns. I walk our streets everyday. I live and work here with you. With your help, I can go to the State Senate as your senator. Together we can change state government for the better.

Question 2:

The most important issue in this election is the excessive burden ever-growing MWRA water and sewer bills place on rate payers. These bills continue to rise and so does your level of frustration.

These bloated bills are squeezing us out of our homes. The federal government has turned its back on us. The politicians on Beacon Hill have placed the $8 billion bill on communities such as Quincy, Braintree and Holbrook.

Because of an antiquated billing system the MWRA overcharges Quincy nearly $2 million each year. Some politicians have been on Beacon Hill long before the legislature created the MWRA.

As your state senator, I will revise the billing procedures and save you money. I'll organize other legislators in the MWRA district and I'll lead them in telling the MWRA "enough is enough!" We'll restore our clout in the State House.

I know that while politicians like to talk about filing their bills, you keep paying your bills.

Question 3:

I support term limits. One need only look to Beacon Hill to see politicians who spend more than 16 years getting re-elected to the same office; falling out-of-touch with the people who elected them.

More than 72,000 Massachusetts voters signed a petition urging term limits. I would vote to put that question on the ballot.

I support the concept as I firmly believe that public office is a privilege and not a profession.

We have seen, and we are paying for, the inaction of incumbent politicians whose first priority is getting re-elected. The infusion of new ideas, new talent and the increased involvement of qualified citizens are the benefits of term limits.

Question 4:

I oppose abortion except in the case of rape, incest or when the life of the mother is endangered.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Age: 38
110 Lansdowne St., Quincy
Occupation: State Representative/Attorney

Question 1:

I am the only candidate for the State Senate with legislative experience. I served on several committees including the chairman of the Committee on Counties and, later, as chairman of the Committee on Public Safety.

My history as a legislator is one of speaking out for my constituents. I have been a strong independent voice for the people of the district. I was removed from my committee chairmanship because of my stand on taxes and opposition to the MWRA. I have a history of getting things done, developing coalitions and passing progressive legislation. I don't need on-the-job training. I know and understand the issues and believe that my knowledge and experience will allow me to be an effective state senator.

I have a bachelor's degree from UMass/Amherst as well as a masters and law degree. My academic education has combined with job experience to enhance my effectiveness as a public servant.

Question 2:

The single most important issue to the district is bringing the MWRA spending and rates under control. We must continue to fight for budgetary oversight and for a MWRA presence at the Quincy shipyard.

I have sponsored or co-sponsored legislation that would place the MWRA budget under the Advisory Board for its review and approval; require the MWRA to receive Department of Public Utilities rate review and approval for any increase. I have filed legislation for the 1992 session that would change the billing to a flow based system. I have co-sponsored and continued to fight for increased state participation in helping to reduce the cost to the rate payer.

I would continue to work with the MWRA Legislative Caucus to fight for oversight and reduced rates. I would also lobby for increased federal participation in the cost of building the new system. People must be able to afford to stay in their homes and MWRA rate relief must be a top priority.

Question 3:

I have voted to place the current term limitation proposal on the ballot but do not support the bill that would both limit federal and state office holders to eight years. Massachusetts congressmen and senators would be hindered and their influence severely limited in a seniority based system.

In the last 50 years, three legislators from Massachusetts have served as Speaker of the U.S. House: Tip O'Neil, John McCormack and Joe Martin. Under the current proposal this would never happen again. We would be denying ourselves this opportunity and the tremendous influence that has done so much to benefit the citizens of the Commonwealth over the years.

The best form of term limitation is the voter who can vote a legislator out of office every two years. The Massachusetts House will have over 100 new members with less than three years experience next year and 72.5% of the Senate has changed in the last five years. It appears term limits are being successfully improved by the voters. It is important to have a balance of experience and change.

Question 4:

I'm personally and morally opposed to abortion and would only consider allowing abortion in limited circumstance like rape, incest or when the life of the mother is in danger.

DOROTHY SHEA
Age: 27

Question 1:

My experience as an employee of the legislature has provided me with the insight needed to be an effective legislator. Having worked as a legislative aide in the Senate for several years, I've seen first hand the dedication and hard work that is necessary to make a difference.

At a time when confidence in our elected officials is at an all-time low, I feel that the enthusiasm and open-minded attitude that I will bring to the Senate will be a welcome change. I eagerly anticipate this opportunity to serve the people of Quincy, Holbrook, Braintree and Avon. I am asking for your support.

I want to be your next state senator because of the dissatisfaction I feel toward state government. The political process is not working. I will bring a new young attitude to Beacon Hill.

The two most important things a state senator should do are to be the representative of the people of the district and show leadership in representing the district. And I promise if elected I will show you these qualities.

Question 2:

I consider all of the issues important. But the MWRA is the perfect example of when politicians don't take care of a problem it escalates. President Bush stood on our beaches four years ago promising to clean up our beaches. Where is he today?

The Boston Harbor is the major transportation hub of the whole Northeast. Therefore the burden should be shared equally. And the federal government should pay the majority.

I want to be the next state senator to show new leadership and maybe we will have clean water and if we work hard enough my children will be able to swim in Boston Harbor and not be cheated out of our beaches as today's children are.

Question 3:

No. In my opinion, we already have term limits; it's called an election. State senators are elected every two years. I agree it may be difficult to vote someone out but not impossible. Term limits is a Republican idea because they have never had leadership in Congress.

Question 4:

Being a woman of child bearing years this is a very important issue to me. I support a women's right to choose. I absolutely do not want the government dictating to me what I can or cannot do with my body. I support Roe vs. Wade. The church does not agree with this but they also do not support divorce or birth control. I am pro-choice.

State Rep In First Norfolk Democratic Candidates

MICHAEL BELLOTTI
Age: 29
120 Hillside Ave., Quincy
Quincy business owner

Question 1:

As a Quincy business owner and someone who has spent his entire adult life in the private sector, I understand the way in which laws and programs affect working people.

I have a business that serves the needs of many people in the district and I am proud of that.

Throughout my growth as a businessman and business owner, I have maintained a commitment to certain charities and causes. Now, as someone who grew up in the district I want to further my commitment to North Quincy, Montclair, Squantum, West Quincy, Wollaston, and all of Quincy.

I have learned, growing up, that the right kind of leadership—one that listens and searches for viable solutions—can have a major impact on the way we live and work. In my background I hope one can see that I am not afraid of taking risks. Additionally, that I have looked for ways to make a difference and have tried to make an impact on people's lives. As your state representative, I would do the same. It's my goal to be one of the most effective state representative Quincy ever had.

Question 2:

I consider the most important issue to the people in the First Norfolk District to be the economy. The best social program is a job. From this premise we can begin to build the best educational system, the best health care system, and seriously address the sundry of issues that affect a city like Quincy.

On the state level, I would help to pass laws and create incentives that attract business to this state.

Locally, I would work with the mayor to bolster Quincy's tourism by lobbying hard for dedicated money. Of course, I would focus on bringing industry to the Fore River shipyard to put Quincy residents back to work.

Finally, I am convinced a strong school system will attract and retain the kinds of families that build neighborhoods and make communities strong; which to a certain degree support and strengthen local businesses. That is why I support any measures that include neighborhood input and parent involvement. For example, I would push so that schools and school systems would be compelled to send out report cards on their performance in relation to other schools and school systems to each parent within a given school district.

Question 3:

Term limitations is a question that has to be discussed and examined to a greater degree. That is why it should be placed on the ballot. I would work to ensure it does get on the ballot so the voters have their say.

Question 4:

I am personally opposed to abortion and do not believe in abortion of demand. Yet I understand it is a deeply personal issue and would leave it to each woman to decide for her own. It's not my choice, nor should it be the government's.

LARRY CHRETIEN
Age: 31
51 North Central Ave.
Occupation: Director of Energy Conservation, Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc.

Question 1:

After graduating from North Quincy High School in 1979, I went on to earn a bachelor's degree in resource management at the State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry in affiliation with Syracuse University. I also hold a master's degree in economic policy from Northeastern University.

For the last five years, I have served as Ward 3's city councillor. For four years prior to that, I was a legislative aide to former State Representative Thomas Brownell. I have also worked in the private sector and am now working for a private, non-profit corporation in the field of energy conservation.

As a ward councillor, I have learned about the problems and concerns people have most and I have done my best to respond accordingly. For example, I have been a strong advocate for the basics in city government—fiscal responsibility, education and public safety. We have done a good job in Quincy coping with the bad economy over the last couple of years. Because we have made appropriate fiscal decisions when they were needed, we have been able to avoid drastic tax increases and budget cuts. Our bond rating has remained solid, especially in comparison to other communities, the state, and the federal government.

Question 2:

There are a few major issues and they are all very much interrelated:

•As soon as possible, we have to put people back to work in key industries such as construction, manufacturing, and environmental protection.

•Over the long haul, to build a strong foundation for our economy, we have to renew our commitment to education. That's because we don't have oil wells or cornfields to make money from in Massachusetts, so we will have to invest in the teaching of our children.

•We also have to face up to the fact that our quality of life is going to seriously deteriorate if we don't protect the environment. That's why I am proud of our efforts in starting the recycling and composting programs. As a matter of fact, the state recently did a study showing how recycling has the ability to create 10,000 jobs in Massachusetts. In many ways, it has been proven that environmental protection is good for creating jobs and saving tax dollars.

•The MWRA is overcharging Quincy ratepayers for water and sewer services. Ratepayers in Boston, Cambridge, and Newton are being undercharged. If elected, I will sponsor legislation to stop the MWRA from ripping us off.

Question 3:

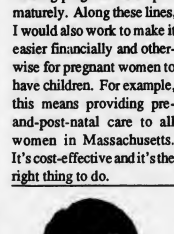

If elected to the House, eight years is enough for me. I believe that a good legislator does the job as hard and effectively as he or she can. To do that requires a lot of energy and an understanding of what things are important to people. So a good legislator should know when it's time to try to move up in government and when it's time to get out of office.

But I don't think there should be a mandatory limit on terms because that takes the decision on who to elect away from the voters. Nonetheless, as a legislator, I would not oppose efforts to put mandatory term limits on the ballot. Once again, that is the kind of decision that voters have a right to make directly.

Question 4:

I am pro-choice. Although I consider the question of abortion to be difficult morally and emotionally, women should have the right to choose.

While on the subject, I would also like to make it clear that I will work towards reducing the number of abortions in Massachusetts. To accomplish this, I will support efforts to prevent unwanted pregnancies. Many young women are having babies because they lack decent opportunities in education and work. If we can give these young women, and young men, hope for the future, not as many will be causing pregnancies so prematurely. Along these lines, I would also work to make it easier financially and otherwise for pregnant women to have children. For example, this means providing pre- and post-natal care to all women in Massachusetts. It's cost-effective and it's the right thing to do.

STEPHEN J. COLMAN
Age: 31
75 Arnold Rd., North Quincy
Occupation: Attorney

Question 1:

What I have to offer the citizens of the First Norfolk District is five years of legislative experience. From January 1985, until January of 1990, I worked for Michael Morrissey in the House of Representatives. Initially I was Michael's legislative aide, but was soon promoted to the position of staff director for two different legislative committees.

During the time I spent in the State House I worked closely with state and local officials to address matters that involved the First Norfolk District and its citizens.

I have maintained a law practice in Wollaston Center for more than a year and can appreciate the frustration the voters have for elected officials. Like other small businesses, sole practitioners only get paid for services they render, (and there are many cases in which we never get paid at all). For us it is very frustrating when politicians who have never been employed in the private sector advocate for more taxes on business. Career politicians cannot represent people they cannot relate to.

Question 2:

There are several important issues that affect the citizens of the First Norfolk District. The state's declining economy must be addressed by the next state representative. The City of Quincy has a more serious and immediate problem, the MWRA. Our citizens can no longer afford the ever increasing rates that the MWRA has forced upon them.

All ratepayers in the MWRA district are experiencing the same problem. The citizens of Quincy have more reason to be upset since our city is hosting no fewer than three facilities that have a detrimental impact on our neighborhoods. Instead of negotiating with the MWRA for mitigation for Quincy, our local officials opposed these facilities and lost.

As state representative I would advocate for lower water and sewer rates for all communities, as well as extra compensation for communities like Quincy that bear more than their fair share of these unattractive facilities.

Question 3:

I support placing the current term limits proposal on the ballot so all the citizens of the Commonwealth have a chance to vote on it, because I believe in the initiative pe-tion process and believe in our citizens right to participate in our government. I would vote against this particular proposal because I believe it will cause more problems than it will correct.

One of the concerns I have with term limits is that it will create "lame duck legislators" who will be more vulnerable to the pressure of lobbyists. As soon as a particular legislator is elected to his final term, every lobbyist on Beacon Hill will have him identified as an official who cannot run again for his seat, and make promises of future employment or gratuities to win his support for legislation that is otherwise unacceptable. This won't help our state, it will hurt it.

I believe that we should focus our energy on limiting the term of the leadership in the House and Senate.

Question 4:

My position on abortion is clear, I oppose abortion, except in the limited case of rape, incest or when the life of the mother is at stake. This issue is a very personal and emotional issue. My position will not change.

SUSAN LYDON WALSH
Age: 38

Squantum
Occupation: Travel

Question 1:

I believe that certain life time experiences, such as being a homeowner, taxpayer and parent set me apart from my opponents that are not. This will better qualify me to represent the district because I can relate to the problems of the people. When it comes to taking the tough votes on quality education, cutting taxes and fighting the MWRA, I will not back down because I know what it is like to have to pay the bills.

I am also prepared to make a full-time commitment to do the job and represent the people at the State House. I am an independent voice that will work for change.

Question 2:

Taking back control of the MWRA. The MWRA is an agency that affects the pocket books of every person in the district and it is out of control. The MWRA is a creature of the legislature—they created it and so as your state representative it will be my priority to fix it. First, I will demand that the MWRA move to Quincy. It is outrageous to allow the MWRA to pay another dollar of our money in rent when the MWRA owns free and clear facilities in Quincy that are more suitable for their headquarters.

Second, it has been proven that Quincy is paying more than its fair share. I will work to establish a new formula so that we pay exactly for what we use.

Question 3:

I support term limitation. I believe it is healthy to have a change in government. It is important that we encourage new leadership.

Question 4:

The issue of abortion is a very personal and emotional concern. It is unfortunate that we have to make this a political issue. However, I believe in the women's right to choose.

State Rep In First Norfolk Republican Candidates

MICHAEL CRONIN
Age: 21
33 Bromfield St., North Quincy
Occupation: Property Manager, Cronin Realty
Trust

Question 1:

A Republican has not been elected to this seat since 1970. Success has eluded our party because we have neglected to field candidates who are capable of attracting the broad bipartisan support needed to win. Republicans have never lacked winning issues, we have merely lacked winning candidates.

I believe my experience and background, combined with the conventional campaign I have waged, will go a long way toward ensuring the first Republican victory in this district in over two decades. Beginning with my unpaid service as an associate School Committee member, followed by my appointment as Registrar of Voters, and continuing through my duties as a civilian employee of the Quincy Police Department, I believe my record indicates strong community involvement. My perfect attendance record on the School Committee and Board of Registrars is a reflection of my commitment to you.

In March of 1991, while serving with the Quincy Police Department, I was awarded the Departmental Commendation for efforts leading to the capture of a convicted felon who had just burglarized a Quincy home. I believe this award is a good indication of my capability to handle this post.

I am the only lifelong Quincy resident in the Republican primary. I am a member of the Republican City Committee, Wollaston Park Association and North Quincy Knights of Columbus. Interacting with other members of these groups has given a good perspective on the needs of this district. I would be honored to serve as your state representative.

Question 2:

Campaigning throughout the district, the economy appears to be the number one issue concerning voters. My plans to revive the economy are straightforward. We must immediately begin to phase out the capital gains tax in an effort to encourage capital investment and speculation in the Massachusetts economy.

On the same note, the estate tax must be totally reformed so that we no longer force our elderly out of state. It has become too expensive to die in Massachusetts because of our outrageous estate tax. When senior citizens are forced to relocate to more tax-friendly states such as Florida, obviously the Massachusetts economy suffers.

Another area where work needs to be done in an effort to improve economic conditions is Massachusetts' attitude toward business. Over the years, costly regulations and soaring state unemployment insurance costs have forced businesses out of Massachusetts. We must reverse this trend by reaching out to businesses with small business loans and tax credits for those wishing to stay in Massachusetts or move here from other states.

Question 3:

I strongly favor the eight-year term limit. Career politicians have abused the public trust in such a manner that the only way to restore faith in government is to impose term limits.

In the early years, statesmen practiced "voluntary rotation" in their service to government. Officials would get elected, make their contribution to government, then move on to allow the exchange of new ideas.

Today, career politicians appear to own their positions rather than lease them from term to term from the voters. I think term limits are necessary to ensure a citizen legislature, rather than a career politician legislature.

If nothing else, the voters deserve the opportunity to vote on the term limit issue. The stalling actions by the Democratic legislature earlier this year, when too few House and Senate members showed up to reach a quorum in order to discuss the issue, was shameful.

When paid elected officials decline to show up for work in order to avoid an issue like term limits, it is an insult to the dignity of every voter who sent them to the legislature in the first place.

Question 4:

Sadly, abortion is a divisive issue where there is no middle ground. I believe my pro-life sentiments on the issue are shared largely around my own upbringing. As one of eight children born to parents who immigrated from Ireland by boat, I was taught at an early age to respect the value of life.

Most statistics indicate that less than 10 percent of the 1.6 million abortions involve rape, incest or the life of the mother. It is not my intention to block these procedures. The remaining 90 percent are reportedly performed for social, economic or "personal" reasons.

When I reflect on my parents' early economic struggle upon arriving here, I am grateful that the "abortive remedy" has always been completely out of the question for them and was never considered. While I am generally supportive of Republican Gov. Weld, I am saddened and slightly embarrassed by his position to allow abortion into the ninth month of pregnancy.

Further, the high demand for adoption, estimated to be between 4 to 20 families waiting to adopt each aborted child, is another reflection of the grim nature of the issue.

While my views may be contrary to those of some voters in the district, I ask you to respect them for their clarity and consistency. In any event, unless the Supreme Court reverses Roe v. Wade, state lawmakers are powerless to enact any changes on the issue.

SUSAN GALLAGHER
AGE: 33

Occupation: Realtor for Prudential Delaney Realtors, Quincy

Question 1:

My background and experience provide me with an excellent foundation as I prepare to represent the people of the 1st Norfolk District in the State House on Beacon Hill.

As a middle class homeowner, taxpayer, and mother of school aged children, I experience first hand the problems which are faced by many of the citizens of my community. As a homeowner, I pay the astronomical water and sewer bills, and quarterly tax bills. As a mother of school aged children, I am concerned about the quality of education in our school system.

Because I live and work in this community, I understand the needs of Quincy residents. As a community activist, I have spoken out on a number of issues of concern to my family and yours including the sewer user fee, quarterly taxes, MWRA, toxic waste incinerator, health issues associated with the Old Colony railroad, environmental issues, road repair, and public safety issues.

I am also the only candidate in this race who was willing to challenge an incumbent in the last state representative election.

Question 2:

There are a number of important issues affecting the citizens in Quincy. Perhaps though, jobs would be one of the issues foremost on people's minds.

In 1990, over 92,000 jobs were lost in one year, more than half of them in the area of manufacturing. Since then, a number of businesses have moved out of state, closed their doors or filed for bankruptcy. Some of these jobs are never coming back leaving many citizens unemployed without the skills necessary to compete in an economy that is quickly becoming a service economy.

Job retaining programs must be implemented so that these people can find work to allow them to feed their families. The elimination of the new track at Northeastern University would provide the first $35 million dollars to start the program. Tax incentives for businesses who agree to participate in the training and to provide employment upon the completion of the training, would jump start the program.

Question 3:

Yes, the word "democracy" means "ruled by the many." The Greeks and Romans chose its citizens to govern by lot. Every few years, new people were chosen to serve the public's interest. They had no use for people who would not participate in the democracy. They knew if only a few people served, the best interest of the citizens would not be served.

Today, not all citizens have the opportunity to govern. Campaigns are costly. Many incumbents have huge war chests to allow them to get media exposure most middle class Americans cannot afford. For this reason, incumbents are re-elected more than 90 percent of the time.

Our forefathers never envisioned the concept of "career" politicians. Like the Romans and Greeks, they sought a government of the people, for the people, and by the people. Term limitations would allow more people to participate in the elective process and eliminate a government which is self-serving.

Question 4:

I consider myself to be pro-life for the following reasons. First, after reviewing a tape of an actual abortion, I determined the following: a) that an abortion is an excruciating death for an unborn child, b) that the fetus, while it cannot live independently of its mother's womb, is a living being within the womb.

(Cont'd on Page 29)

Second, there are adequate birth control methods available for those who want to prevent pregnancy.

Third, the government should not take over the responsibilities of the family. Children should be educated and taught to abstain from sexual relationships until they are able to accept the responsibility that arise from sexual activity.

Fourth, a woman's choice cannot outweigh the benefit to a society as a whole. If a mother takes crack cocaine during pregnancy, she can be held accountable for the damage she does to her unborn child. If a woman chooses to become pregnant rather than to use proper birth control, both she and her partners should be responsible for the well being of that child.

Fifth, over 10,000 abortions are performed each day.

Six, some people have abortions based solely on the sex of the offspring. Although abortion for this reason is rare, so are the number of abortions performed as the result of rape, incest, or the health of the mother (less than 2 percent).

Seventh, there are many couples who cannot have children and who would love to adopt a child. Many have even gone to other countries to try to find a baby.

State Rep In Third Norfolk Democratic Candidates

RONALD MARIANO
Age: 45
57 Presidential Dr., Quincy
Occupation: State Representative

Question 1:
My experience at the city, county and state levels of government will allow me to provide effective leadership in solving the problems that we face. I have spent the past 10 years attending meetings and hearings on all the major issues that confront the Fore River Basin and trying to improve the quality of life in the Third Norfolk District.

My involvement in the community is well documented. I have served as president of the Ward 2 Civic Association, chairman of the Ward 2 Democratic Committee, coordinator and coach of the Presidents Youth Basketball Program, director of the Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution Committee, member of the Norfolk County Advisory Board, and as a member of the Quincy School Committee. The combination of all these experiences gives me the in-depth knowledge to be an effective representative.

Question 2:

The most important issue facing the district and the state is the economy. It is extremely important that the legislature take actions that will stimulate the economy and create jobs. This can be done by investment credits, tax incentives and research and development credits. All of these things will help beginning companies to create a solid base to build a thriving business.

It is important to these new start up companies that Massachusetts provide a climate that will allow them to flourish. I have filed a bill that will create a shipbuilding museum at the Fore River shipyard. This project will create about 75 jobs, plus change the complexion of the area around the Fore River.

It is my hope that the increase in tourism in the area will stimulate the creation of new businesses. I also asked for a study to determine the feasibility of building floating prisons in the Fore River shipyard. This would solve the overcrowding conditions in the prisons while providing jobs for our district.

Question 3:

Term limits is a very controversial issue. I voted against the leadership of the House and Senate who wanted to delay the question at the Constitutional Convention. I wanted to vote on the issue and allow the people of the Third Norfolk District the opportunity to decide the question.

It is my feeling that term limits are not necessary to change our government. I don't want anyone telling me that I cannot vote for an individual that I feel is deserving of my support. If individuals took a more active role and participated in the discussion of the issues, the choice they make would be effective.

I am one of 47 first year legislators and 30 more are expected to come in for the new session. It would mean that 70 legislators out of 160 would have two years or less of experience. It seems that the terms of our legislators are already limited.

Question 4:

As a male legislator I find it very difficult to attempt to regulate a women's right to choose. Abortion is not an option that I would want my family to choose but on the other hand I would not want to limit their choices.

This decision is a very private matter that should be made by the individuals that are involved. I feel that it is presumptuous of me to impose my values and beliefs on all women in society. The right for a woman to choose has been established by the Supreme Court and the erosion of this right is a step back of the personal freedom for all women.

GEORGE MILLER
Age: 28
120 Summer St., Quincy
Occupation: Attorney

Question 1:

I am a lifelong resident of Quincy Point. At just 11 years old I worked as a shoeshine boy, collected scrap metal and delivered newspapers to help support my family. While attending junior high and high school, I worked as a janitor and warehouse worker to help my family survive. I learned the meaning of hard work at an early age.

Despite my parents deaths when I was a teenager, my six brothers and sisters and I stayed together and raised each other on our own. I continued working, graduated from high school and worked my way through college and law school. During that time I was also active in my community as a volunteer at Quincy Hospital, the YMCA and as an auxiliary police officer. Additionally, I marched against Clean Harbors' toxic waste incinerator, testified and attended MWRA hearings and most recently organized and led a rally to protest the possible trucking of sludge through our streets.

Question 2:

The skyrocketing MWRA sewer and water rates is the most important issue facing our district. In 1984 legislation was drafted to create the MWRA. This legislation was embraced by the democratic leadership since the MWRA would deflect criticism and preserve many political careers.

The MWRA, an independent authority, would do the politician's dirty work, i.e., increase water and sewer rates, locate facilities, and spend our money with little or no accountability, in addition to conveniently taking the blame for these unpopular actions, while allowing the politicians to claim they are fighting the very authority that they created.

If elected state representative, I will work to strip the MWRA's of its authority and create an entity that would be required to seek approval from the legislature for its actions.

By requiring the legislature's approval, the politicians can be held accountable to the voters at the polls for any rate increases, appropriations or problems at facilities.

I will also work to force the federal government to contribute more than the meager amount that they are now contributing towards the cleanup.

Question 3:

With respect to the issue of term limits, I have announced that I will limit myself to three two-year terms if elected. Furthermore, I feel that this issue should be placed on the ballot so the people will have the opportunity to vote on this important issue.

Elective office should not be considered a lifelong career for only a few individuals, but rather an opportunity for many in the community to serve.

Without term limits, the career politicians are able to barricade themselves in office behind lobbyists, special interest groups and huge campaign chests.

Question 4:

I am personally against abortion. But as state representative I will support a woman's right to choose. This important decision must be left up to the individual to decide.

Entertainment Extra by Evelyn Ludvigson

Q. I've become a fan of Clint Eastwood since watching some of his old movies on television, and I thought he was great in his newest movie, "Unforgiven." What I'd like to know is, how many movies had he made, and how did he get started? Faye H.

A. Eastwood made 36 films, some of which, like "Unforgiven" and "Play Misty for Me," he directed as well as starred in. He also directed the award-winning "Bird," which was based on the life of the jazz genius, Charlie Parker.

Clint got his big break when he starred as Rowdy Yates in the TV series, "Rawhide," which aired on CBS for eight seasons, starting in 1958. (His costar was Eric Fleming who drowned while making a movie in South America after the series ended its run.) Clint had some problems getting work after the TV show was over, so he went to Italy where he made what many consider the film that made him an international star, a so-called spaghetti western called "A Fistful of Dollars."

You might like to know that both Clint and Burt Reynolds were dropped from a studio training program soon after they came to Hollywood because it was felt neither had any screen potential.

Q. I don't know if you can answer this question, but I hope you can. My whole family are fans of Peter Falk and his "Columbo" series. My aunt said she remembers when he was in a TV musical, but can't recall the name. I'm sure Peter Falk was never in a musical on television. What's the answer, if you can provide it, please? Audrey K.

A. In 1966, Peter Falk costarred in a television production of the Broadway play, "Brigadoon." The other stars included Robert Goulet and Sally Anne Howes.

Q. I once read where Angela Lansbury is going to be seen on a made-for-television movie this fall. Could you please tell me if this is true, what the project is, and when it will air? Kirk B.

ANGELA LANSBURY

A. Next November, Angela will star in the CBS movie, "Mrs. 'Arris Goes to Paris." The flick has Ms. Lansbury playing a working-class widow in 1950s' London who splurges on a trip to Paris and finds adventure along the way. The movie costars Omar Sharif and was filmed on location in London, Paris and Budapest.

Q. Is Rosanne Arnold really going to star in a movie based on the life of Elvis Presley? Richard K.

A. The film you are talking about is titled "Grace Land," and Arnold portrays an Iowa welfare woman who is obsessed with Elvis, and this obsession eventually changes her life.

Q. Exactly how expensive was the Batman outfit Michael Keaton wore in "Batman Returns?" Alexandra P.

A. Michael's Batman duds cost an estimated $100,000.

Q. I really enjoy watching Victoria Wyndham as Rachel Cory on "Another World." Does Ms. Wyndham sculpt in real life as she does on the show? Harrison G.

A. Almost all of the sculpture on the show has been crafted by Victoria herself.

Q. Is Dean Martin busy penning his own autobiography? Elsa T.

A. No. However, author Nick Tosches is, and it's titled "Dino: Living High." However, this tale is a rather sad chronicle of a womanizing, non-emotional man.

Q. Has actor Dick Van Patten retired from show business? Greta L.

A. The former "Eight Is Enough" star has not retired completely from show business, but his time is limited. Dick is a very successful realtor and owns numerous apartment buildings. When not working, Dick can be seen on the tennis courts with his sons.

By TOM SULLIVAN

When the Quincy High football team opens its season at Marshfield on Sept. 19, coach Jack Raymer will have what he calls "one of the best offensive lines I've ever had."

"Most of these kids have played together for three years and have good size and good speed," said Raymer, starting his ninth year as coach. "I really believe it is one of the finest offensive lines we have ever had."

Raymer had a good turnout of 75, including a fine freshmen group of 24.

Holes And Question Marks At North

The North Quincy football team enjoyed an 8-2 record last year, the best in Ken McPhee's 10 years as coach, and finished up with a win over Quincy.

McPhee was hard hit by graduation and when the Raiders open their season Friday night, Sept. 18 against Acton-Boxboro at Veterans Memorial Stadium, he will have a lot of holes to fill.

"We are small and lack experience, having lost so many outstanding players, and we have a lot of question marks," McPhee said. "But we are improving every day and I think we will come along and be very competitive."

On offense North will have senior captain Dave Reinhart, junior Brian Raftery and junior Kevin Ross at tight end and senior capt. Pat Shea, junior Tony Licciardi, junior George Wirtz, junior Danny Duncan and juniors Nathan and Jeremy Gott at wide receiver. Seniors Sean Skahan and Jamie O'Connell will be wings.

Although the Presidents lost Chris Walker, one of the best wide receivers in many years (now at Boston University), Raymer has some fine receivers in Sova, Provost and newcomer Jason Presente who, at 6'5", has good speed and good hands.

Defensive coach Bob Keuther expects the defense to be very strong. "We have some hard hitters and we will be very aggressive," Keuther said. "The defense looked awfully good against Newton North in our first scrimmage."

Kane, Kavanaugh, DiBona and Bogan are the Quincy captains.

Raymer has the same assistants as last year in Bob Noble, Keuther, Bill Shaughnessy and freshman coach Jack Green. Mark Giordani, a former Quincy star and assistant coach and a member of Quincy's Football Hall of Fame, is back as a volunteer assistant.

Following the Sept. 19 opener against Marshfield, which tied for the Atlantic Coast League title last year, Quincy will open its Old Colony League campaign on Sept. 26 against defending league champion Bridgewater-Raynham, at 1:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

McPhee said. "Shea is an outstanding wide receiver."

"Sinclair, Josh Gott and Nee will be fine running backs. Nee, a sophomore, is going to surprise a lot of people. He is small but he has a lot of speed and I see big things in store for him."

"Defensively we will be moving a lot and doing a lot of stunting. We will try to have the other teams pass against us. We will be aggressive and I feel we will be all right defensively. The kids are working hard and we did a pretty good job in our first scrimmage against Needham. I'll be able to tell a lot more after a few more scrimmages."

Following the opener against Acton-Boxboro, coached by former Quincy High all-scholastic end and coach Bill Maver, the Raiders will play their first Old Colony League game Sept. 25 at Falmouth.

McPhee has Peter Chrisom, Tom Carter, Earl Metzler and Pete Zoia back as assistant coaches and former Raider Dick Myer, a former assistant, returns as freshman coach.

Charles L. Shea, 65

Former State Representative,

City Auditor And City Council President

A funeral Mass for Charles L. Shea, 65, of Quincy, a former city auditor, city council president, and state representative, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at Most Blessed Sacrament Church.

Mr. Shea died Sept. 3 at Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

He served as a city councillor from 1955 to 1962 and as state representative from 1959 to 1966.

In memory of Mr. Shea, Mayor James Sheets ordered city flags lowered to half staff Sept. 4.

"Charlie Shea was one of the first public officials that I dealt with as a freshman councillor," said Sheets. "He was a kind, caring and always willing to help kind of person, the kind of person who helps build outstanding cities like Quincy. He will be missed."

A lifelong resident of Quincy, Mr. Shea was a 1950 graduate of Boston College with a degree in economics. He was a veteran of World War II and the Korean War.

He was 26 years old when first elected to the council in 1955 after an unsuccessful bid for a council seat two years earlier. In 1963, he ran for mayor but lost to incumbent Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

A close budget advisor to Mayor Arthur Tobin, he was allied with the mayor in pressing for two major changes in municipal administration—contracting with a private management firm to run Quincy City Hospital and the unsuccessful effort to create an independent water and sewer commission.

"Charlie was a very special human being and a very dear friend of mine," said Tobin. "He was an outstanding city councillor, state representative and city auditor. I had been keeping track of his condition in the hospital and I knew he was very sick, but this is still a shock. I feel I've lost a good friend."

City Auditor Robert Foy, who succeeded Mr. Shea, said Mr. Shea "always a deep interest in both the city and the city officials. He was very sincere, just a great guy."

George Riley, who served as executive secretary under Tobin and as purchasing agent under Mayor James McIntyre, called Mr. Shea "a terrific guy who was always a great representative of the people. He always represented the people of Houghs Neck and Adams Shore and all throughout that area. I feel very bad."

City Clerk John Gillis said Mr. Shea "very a friend close friend of mine. We've been both family friends and political friends for years and years. He was a compassionate and sympathetic individual who helped all he could in time of need."

"He was a great friend of the city and its employees, especially the police and fire departments for whom he worked very hard to see that they were adequately paid for their jobs."

"He will be sorely missed by the City of Quincy and by the Gillis family."

After his retirement, Mr. Shea was appointed by Tobin to the city hospital board of managers and later was named the city's temporary purchasing agent.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, he spent about half his life in municipal and state government as a multi-term city councillor, council president, and as a state representative from Quincy before becoming city auditor in 1975.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It has been said that tolerance is a virtue of the intelligent and the courageous.

Tolerance does not consist of giving up one's firm convictions and accepting the other person's point of view. A tolerant person is one who can disagree but insulate that the other person has the right to express his point of view —

In our hectic, fast-paced life today, too many times it means, "I will go my way; you go yours and let us not annoy one another." This is a "wishy, weeshy" type of tolerance.

Without tolerance we become bigoted, narrow-minded and small in our concepts of life.

Let us be tolerant but never let us be "wishy, weeshy." For true tolerance is a very vital matter, intellectually defensible and has a basis of equality, understanding and love.

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

ARTIST'S RENDERING of the Hancock Street Coalition's proposal for a new state Department of Education headquarters at 1495-1515 Hancock St., Quincy Center. The proposal was prepared by the offices of Mayor James Sheets and Planning Director Richard Meade.

Would Keep 375-400 Jobs In Quincy

City Proposes New Headquarters For Dept. Of Education

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city, which could lose the state Department of Education next March, has submitted a proposal to relocate the department and its several hundred workers to another nearby Quincy location.

According to Mayor James Sheets, the city, together with representatives from the three principal property owners known as the Hancock Street Coalition, has submitted a bid requesting the state agency relocate from its present headquarters at Quincy Center Plaza to a new facility at 1495-1515 Hancock St., Quincy Square.

"This is a proposal by the Hancock Street Coalition which we helped prepare. We think we have a real shot at it," Sheets said Tuesday.

As proposed, a three-story, 75,400 square-foot building would be constructed utilizing space at the old Bank of New England building, Condine Building and Hancock Plaza. The building would have 66,600 square feet for office space and 8,400 square feet for storage and reception area.

The bank building was recently vacated by Fleet Bank which has moved to Quincy Center Plaza. There is some occupancy in the other two buildings but the new headquarters would not take away any space already utilized in the Condine Building or Hancock Plaza, the mayor said.

"We pieced together these three properties for 75,000 square feet," Sheets said, adding he believes this proposal is the city's best chance to keep the Department of Education, and its 375 to 400 jobs, in Quincy.

The state agency's present lease at Quincy Center Plaza expires next March. Workers employed by Stop and Shop will fill the space vacated by the Department of Education.

Sheets and other city officials are determined to keep the agency in Quincy. Sheets said a new headquarters would give the city additional revenue from property taxes and boost business in the city's main retail district.

"We would put 375 to 400 people in the south end of Hancock Street. That would be a tremendous boost for that area."

Studds Overcomes Harold's Huge Quincy Vote

By ROBERT BOSWORTH and MICHAEL WHALEN

Paul Harold rode a 7700-vote margin out of Quincy in Tuesday's Democratic primary but it was not enough as incumbent Gerry Studds overcame that deficit in the rest of the new sprawling 10th Congressional District to win the nomination.

Studds, seeking an 11th term, will face Republican Dan Daly of Hingham and Independent Jon Bryan of Barnstable in the Nov. 3 final.

Rep. Michael Morrissey won the Norfolk District State Senate seat vacated by Harold, defeating City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Holbrook Selectwoman Joanne Koval and political newcomer Dorothy Shea of Quincy. There was no Republican candidate, assuring Morrissey, a 16-year veteran of the House, a seat in the Senate next January.

Michael Bellotti, son of former Atty. General Francis X. Bellotti and a Democratic State Committeeman, won the Democratic nomination for the First Norfolk District state representative seat, edging Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien by a narrow 94 votes.

Michael Cronin, a Boston University student making his first run for office, was the Republican winner in that district, defeating Susan Gallagher by a scant 40 votes.

Possible recounts loomed for both Chretien and Gallagher.

Bellotti and Cronin will square off in the Nov. 3 final election to fill the seat Morrissey left in his successful quest for the state Senate.

Incumbent Democrat Ron Mariano turned back the challenge of George Miller in the Third Norfolk District which assures him of holding onto that seat as there was no Republican contender.

Mariano, who won the seat in a special election last October, received 4,810 total votes in Quincy and Weymouth. Miller received 2,040 total votes.

$15,000 For Squantum Playground Improvements

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
A $15,000 check was presented Tuesday to the Squantum Community Association for improvements at the Squantum playground located behind the Squantum School.

The money was donated by Fiesta Shows as part of the proceeds raised by the Quincy City Festival held at Marina Bay in June.

On hand to accept the check were Mayor James Sheets, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, Squantum Community Association President Alicia Gardner, and Jim and Marie Stamos, co-chairmen of the SCA's Youth Committee.

Ayers said a portion of the revenue was used this summer to refurbish the basketball courts at the Squantum Playground. He said the court was levelled with new asphalt. New markings, new nets and a waiting court were also added, Ayers said.

The councillor said the rest of the money will be used to refurbish the tennis court and install a new street hockey surface in place of another tennis court across the street from the basketball courts.

The refurbishing work is being done by Derbes Bros., a local construction company.

The second refurbishing phase is expected to begin in the near future.

Ayers said the community, especially Squantum youngsters, has become a part of the improvement project. He noted neighborhood youth gave input on the kind of improvements they wanted. He also pointed out that youngsters have helped with the fund raising effort.

"We found out what the kids wanted. They requested new nets, new tennis courts and a street hockey area.

"They've done canning drives. They done other events. They've helped with the fund raising. It's been a joint effort.

"Working with the mayor, we want to give something to the community," Ayers said.

A $15,000 CHECK was recently presented to the city of Quincy from Fiesta Shows as part of the proceeds raised at the Quincy City Festival held at Marina Bay in June. The money will be spent on improvements to the Squantum playground. Ayers Calls Meeting On Discount Marketplace Councillor Bruce Ayers is inviting Ward 6 residents to an informal public meeting Tuesday, Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy.

The application of Discount Marketplace, which will be open for business during weekend hours only under the direction of Tony Abbott, will be discussed.

The proposed location is the building located at 2 Hancock St. in the North Quincy area. The marketplace will contain antique and jewelry dealers. The area being allowed is 40,000 square feet of which Discount Marketplace would occupy a portion of.

Ayers said, "These people have an application before the License Board and it will be discussed Sept. 29. However, before I take a position on the issue, I simply want to let the residents of Ward 6 know what's going on so that they can take a position and ask questions."

6-Year Old Girl Dies From Injuries In Bicycle Accident

A 6-year-old Adams Shore girl died Monday from injuries she sustained in a bicycle accident.

Kerri Marshall of 455 Sea St., who had learned to ride the bike only about five days before the accident, died at Children's Hospital in Boston shortly before 9 p.m., according to police.

The accident occurred

Sunday at approximately 1:30 p.m. on Eaton Rd., police said. According to another girl who was riding bicycles with her at the time, Kerri and some friends were riding downhill on Eaton Rd. when the front wheel of one of the bicycles struck the rear wheel of Kerri's bicycle, causing her to fall.

Police said the bicycle's handle bar appeared to have hit the girl in the stomach. She was taken to Quincy Hospital and later transferred to Children's Hospital. No further details were available.

Kerri was a second grader at Merrymount Elementary School. Funeral arrangements had not been announced at press time.

County Bar Assn. Free Legal Clinics At Quincy Court

A series of free legal clinics is being sponsored by the Bar Association of Norfolk County at Quincy District Court through June of 1993.

The advice and referral clinics allow clients to consult one-on-one with an attorney to discuss issues ranging from divorce, personal injury, wills and trusts, workman's compensation, job discrimination and employment issues, etc.

The attorney may refer the client to a specific agency or a different attorney with expertise in a particular area of the law.

The monthly clinics are held on Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m. and will also be held at Dedham and Wrentham District Courts.

The schedule is as follows:

Quincy, Nov. 4; Dec. 2; Jan. 6; Feb. 3; March 3; April 7; May 19; June 23; Dedham, Oct. 7; May 5; and Wrentham, June 2.

The Bar Association also offers a Speaker Bureau which features 100 attorneys who are available to speak to groups and organizations of 30 or more people on all areas of the law. There is no fee required.

"There are many services the Bar Association of Norfolk County provides the community. I am looking forward to a most challenging and productive year," said atty. Matthew McDonnell, Bar Association president.

Last year, 1,100 people took advantage of the clinics. For information call 471-9693.

City Proposes New Headquarters For Dept. Of Education

"People from all over the state have to come to Quincy to see the Department of Education. It brings workers and visitors into the retail areas of Quincy. And with a new tenant, we get property taxes.

"It's a big plus," the mayor said, adding he believes this is the best proposal Quincy could come up with.

"It's the absolute best we can do. We worked long and hard on it. We got the proposal in 15 minutes before the deadline.

"Planning Director Richie Meade, his office and my office were very much involved in it. If we can keep the Department of Education here in Quincy, it's a plus all around."

Sheets figures the Quincy proposal has a good chance since it satisfies some key factors specified in the department's bid.

First, the location is within close proximity of a Red Line station. Second, the site is 75,000 square feet. Third, 240 free parking spaces, including handicapped spots, would be allotted for department employees in the Ross parking garage and the Hancock parking lot.

The Quincy proposal also makes good fiscal sense compared with the eight other proposals submitted to the Department of Education from cities within the Greater Boston region.

On a five-year lease, the square-foot lease rate in Quincy was the second lowest. On a 10-year lease, the city's lease was the lowest.

For the five-year lease,

Quincy submitted a bid of $14.90 per square foot, 26 cents higher than the $14.64 bid from the Malden Corporate Center. For the 10-year lease, Quincy's bid came in at $13.75 per square foot, 34 cents lower than Malden's bid of $14.09.

"Everything else was more than Quincy," Sheets said, adding four bids were submitted from Boston, two from Cambridge, and one from Charlestown.

The mayor said the only other Quincy location considered was the Kemper Building in North Quincy but there was really no interest.

Another plus to the Quincy Square site would be moving expenses which would be less compared to the other locations. In Quincy, the agency would essentially be moving one block south.

Sheets discussed the city's interest in keeping the state agency here with Education Commissioner Robert Antonucci earlier this summer. "We have not received any indication of how strong our Quincy proposal is," the mayor said Tuesday.

He also said there is no time frame for the decision but added he expects a decision soon. "I would not be surprised to hear something in the next month," the mayor said.

It would be advantageous, he pointed out, for the agency to start moving before the winter months arrive.

There also appears to be ample time to get the new site ready. Sheets said he was told the new headquarters could be constructed in two to three months. "The heating systems are in good shape," he said.

1,500 Apply For Home Depot Jobs

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Droves of people are already flocking to the Home Depot Store on Willard Street. And it's not even open yet.

Store manager Kevin Mullins said Monday that about 1,500 people have already filled out job applications for positions with the home improvement retail store.

Mullins said that Home Depot will hire about 200 people for 122,000-square foot facility. Of the 1,500 who have applied, Mullins said nearly all are from Quincy or Milton.

"Most live within three miles of the store," he said. He added that Home Depot is giving area residents a two-week head start to apply for jobs and that help wanted advertisements will begin running in the Boston newspapers soon.

Although no one has been hired yet, Mullins said that some applicants have already been back for second interviews.

"We've seen a good quality of individuals," he said.

Home Depot agreed to a "local preference" hiring policy when the City Council granted a special permit for the store in Aug. 5, 1991. The policy gives preference to qualified Quincy job candidates consistent with local, state and federal employment regulations and guidelines.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, who is part of the Home Depot Monitoring Committee, said he is satisfied with the project to date.

"So far, Home Depot has fulfilled every obligation," Fabrizio said. "It appears they will be a good neighbor."

The Monitoring Committee, made up of nearby residents and business owners, was organized last year as a "watchdog" for the project.

The City Council approved the project but with 32 conditions attached. Fabrizio said the committee will continue to meet.

HIGH-TECH RELIEF FOR SINUS SUFFERERS

Surgery to relieve blocked sinuses has traditionally involved substantial bleeding and lengthy, painful recuperations. Today, a new technique is changing that picture. Using fiber illumination, doctors thread a slender endoscope through the nostril to the spot between the nose and eye where most of the body's sinuses drain. It is at this site that swollen tissues can cause sinus drainage to back up, leading to headaches, eye pressure and infection.

Studds Overcomes Harold's Huge Quincy Vote

Harold won Avon and Holbrook which he served as state senator by healthy margins but he carried Weymouth and Brockton by small margins. The latter two communities were considered key battlegrounds and Harold had hoped for bigger wins in those areas.

His Weymouth vote was 5,354 to Studds' 4,937—a margin of 417. He took Brockton by a mere 19 votes.

Harold's big Quincy vote got thinned out in the lower South Shore and on the Cape. In Provincetown, for example, Studds rolled up a 1,042 to 47-vote margin.

Harold said he felt the vote he received in Quincy, Avon and Holbrook "was a tremendous vote of confidence."

"It looked good in the beginning but the Cape figures were beyond our projection," Harold said in a telephone interview late Tuesday evening from the Quincy Sons of Italy.

"It was an almost victorious campaign when you consider the limited time and resources that we had. I do think that the amount of money that he (Studds) raised had an impact on the result."

Harold called Studds to congratulate him on his victory and said he plans to support him.

"I look forward to working both with Gerry Studds and the new, hopefully, Democratic president."

Harold said he will return to his law practice but indicated he will be back on the political scene also.

"I don't believe that age 44 is time to retire from politics," he said.

Studds said he looked forward to working with Harold on the Clinton-Gore presidential campaign.

"Senator Harold," he said in tribute, "got an enormous vote of affection from his hometown of Quincy and from Avon. He ran a great campaign and he should be proud."

Turnout in Quincy was 49.6 percent, said Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Commenting on his Senate win, Morrissey credited "lots of people" who worked in his behalf. He also thanked his opponents.

"We were able to talk about a lot of important issues during this entire process. We had a great campaign. Everything went well."

"And hats off to Steve McGrath, a class act who ran a great campaign as well. I wish him well."

McGrath said "I appreciate Mike's comment about my campaign. I think his was a class act as well."

FORMER ATTY. GENERAL Francis Bellotti (second from right) holds campaign sign for his son, Michael, outside the Wollaston School. Young Bellotti won the Democratic nomination for state representative in the First Norfolk District.

(Quincy Sun photos by Tom Gorman)

"It (the loss) was disappointing. I think he (Morrissey) did have more financial resources than I did and I also think that Michael would be considered the incumbent even though he wasn't actually an incumbent."

McGrath thanked "everyone who poured their hearts into this campaign. It was a really wonderful experience to work with everybody."

McGrath said he will return to his city solicitor's post from which he had taken an unpaid leave of absence to campaign for the Senate.

Bellotti attributed his close victory to hard work and a strong grass roots organization.

"Every piece of effort we put into this campaign made a difference. It was literally hundreds of families that carried me through the district."

"I think the biggest factor was our grass roots organization. We made sure our voters came out."

"It's a great relief that a summer of hard work by so many people has ended with this kind of result."

The best part about winning is that everyone that worked with me can take a part of that."

Looking ahead to the final election against Cronin, Bellotti said his supporters will continue their grass roots campaigning. "We're going to make sure we get out and meet each and every voter in the district, some of whom we've met three times. It's a whole new race."

Cronin said he was flattered by his nomination win. "I'm flattered by the victory, having beaten the chairman of the Republican City Committee and a candidate who got 38 percent of the vote in the state representative race two years ago."

"I commend Susan's effort and I appeal to her supporters whom I think agree philosophically with me in opposing the outrageous tax increases and outrageous spending that has characterized the Democratic party throughout the 1980s."

"I believe the Republicans and the unenrolled voters who voted in the Republican primary believe in our theme that this is one Republican candidate who has shown he can win in September and he can win in November."

"People are looking for change and not more of the same," Cronin added.

Bellotti's two main challengers, Chretien and Stephen Colman, said name recognition and finances were the two biggest factors in the race.

"He had more of both," Chretien said, referring to Bellotti, the top fund raiser in the race.

Colman added, "I think the vote here was just name recognition. The only way to get that is to run."

The race went right down to the wire. Chretien was up five votes after eight of 12 precincts and 106 votes after nine precincts.

However, Bellotti won the last three precincts by a total margin of 200 votes (858 votes to 658 votes) to claim victory. The final outcome was not known until the results of the last precinct, Ward 6 Precinct 4, were read at City Hall.

Up 60 votes, Bellotti outpolled Chretien by 34 votes (187 to 153) for the final 94-vote difference.

Chretien said he would consider filing for a recount.

"I'll have to think about it. I have to figure out what my options are."

According to Shea, Chretien or any other candidate has six business days from the day of an election to file for a recount. To file, a candidate must collect 10 signatures from each of the precincts he or she wants recounted.

If recount papers are filed with the proper signatures, a recount would be filed within eight to 10 days. Shea said a recount would cost the city between $10,000 and $12,000.

City Clerk John Gillis who rolled up a 13,955 vote in Quincy—topping the ballot—seemed assured of winning one of two Democratic nominations for Norfolk County Commission.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Hurricane Batters Quincy; Wipes Out Yacht Club Fleets

An unexpected hurricane struck Quincy with 88-mile-an-hour winds and gusts up to 100 miles an hour, tearing up thousands of ancient trees and virtually wiping out the yacht club fleets.

No one was killed but Mrs. Samuel W. Wakeman of 115 Munroe Rd., wife of the vice president of the Fore River Shipyard, spent the night clinging for her life to a tree top near her Marion summer home.

The Wollaston Yacht Club's flagship, Mil-Ed, owned by Harry Arion, was lost when hundreds of yachts broke their mooring and were driven ashore at the Crabtree Estates, Squantum, by the southwest wind.

Most of the power in the city was lost at 5:30 p.m. and the Rev. Daniel W. Staffeld of the Adams Shore Community Church took the communion candles from the altar and distributed them to neighbors.

The roof was blown from the garage of Arthur Olson, East Squantum St., Squantum, flew 100 feet and hit the home of Mrs. Ellen M. Garneau, 735 East Squantum St., demolishing the bedroom and living room.

The huge elm tree at the gate of Dr. Walter G. Kendall's estate in Atlantic was torn up by the roots and crashed into his orchard, destroying many of his prized cherry trees.

Three years work by Amedeo Nardini was wiped out when the wind uprooted his vineyard containing vines imported from Italy and the roof of the pavilion on his Italian villa in North Quincy was torn off.

A 15-ton crane was blown over at the shipyard, tombstones in the Hancock Burying Grounds were broken by falling trees and tiny Acton St., Wollaston, was closed for days by 15 fallen trees.

The stories in question were "Rah, Rah, Russia," which appears in Liberty magazine and "Mr. Koch Comes to Town," published in a magazine called "Iron Age."

Ron Della Chiesa Celebrating 15th Year As 'Music America' Host

Quincy native Ron Della Chiesa will celebrate his 15th year of hosting the radio program "MusicAmerica" this fall.

The program is aired Monday through Thursday at 1 p.m. on WGBH-FM 89.7 and features music including traditional, contemporary, cabaret, big bands and Broadway.

"I'm lucky," he said. "I can play a lot of things that you won't hear anywhere else—Cole Porter, Blossom Dearie, George Gershwin, Michael Feinstein. And they deserve to be heard."

Anniversary celebrations will include live performances Monday, Sept. 28, through Wednesday, Oct. 7, at 3 p.m. on alternating days. Among the scheduled performers are pianist Harvey Diamond and Quintet and pianist Ray Santisi and Group.

"I play great music, great songs that strike a chord with listeners. They may remember a particular song that they danced to or romanced to," he said. "So there is a strong sentimental connection with MusicAmerica. But," he said, "The music also appeals to the younger listener who's discovering it for the first time."

Della Chiesa has expanded the program's format over the years to include live performances and classical features, including Friday's regularly scheduled (1 p.m.) MusicAmerica Presents: Great Voices and The Boston Symphony Orchestra.

During the BSO concert season MusicAmerica Presents: The Boston Symphony Orchestra airs Fridays from 1 to 4 p.m. followed by an hour of Great Voices.

Beginning in January, Della Chiesa will begin his broadcasts with a full hour of classical performances.
